FARE CUT FIGHT ON IN COUNCIL

Malone Man Named Assistant Police Head

Today

Keep Jobs, Money, Here.
Peace Is Scarce.
No Social Equality.
Now, the Spending Era.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE BRITISH, for reasons which we have no right to question, agree to buy from Denmark sixty-two per cent of all pork and butter imported into Britain. Britain limits American farmers to 6.3 per cent of pork and butter imports.

President Roosevelt, for reasons which the British have no right to question, puts an embargo on all British whisky. None of it can come into the United States for the present.

Hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of smoky Scotch whisky, made to come here, must stay in Scotland or wherever they make it.

WHY SHOULD the United States buy any liquor, whisky, beer, wine, or anything abroad? Why send money to foreign growers, wages to foreign labor?

California, Ohio, Virginia, New York, Delaware, almost every state can produce good wine and brandy. American distilleries can certainly supply the country with whisky, and under direct government supervision as to quality.

Milwaukee, St. Louis, Chicago, Newark and a hundred other American cities brew beer as good as any in the world.

Why not keep that business for the United States? And keep a thousand million dollars here at home. It is not too soon to prove to the rest of the world that this country can get along without outside help.

AMERICAN automobile makers, to sell cars in Britain, must open factories there, hire British workers, buy British products. They are not even allowed to send automobile parts ready made. And even so, the sensible British cry:

"Buy British!"

Why not take seriously the "Buy American" program?

Thousands of American merchants advertise "Made in England" or "Made in France."

Do you think any French or British merchants advertise "Made in the United States?" It would ruin their business.

IF THIS country does not know how to make things that Europe sends us, or make them as good, it should learn how.

Before Francis the First and Henry VIII met on the field of the cloth of gold, "the French nobility wearing their fortunes on their backs," not a yard of silk or velvet or a square foot of plate glass was made in France.

For centuries afterward the French had almost a monopoly of those things. They learned to make them, and, meanwhile, France forbade their importation.

"PEACE, PEACE, and there is no peace."

Yesterday, Sunday morning, Bolivia and Paraguay resumed the Chaco war, League of Nations mediation having proved futile.

In China, where wars, floods, plagues and famines are indigenous, the Chinese are fighting each other with the usual persistency. Nanking Nationalist forces have recaptured towns from the rebels in Fukien province.

H. G. Wells is prepared to take his "dying oath" that the most terrible war ever seen will rage from 1940 to 1949, ending only when "cholera, starvation and mass mutiny put an end to it."

AMONG ITS experiments, the German government proposes a "classless German society." Germany is to be a nation of equals, from Chancellor Hitler down to the last workman, ranks and titles to be ignored in private life.

Hitler's plan is more democratic than that of Gilbert and Sullivan's admiral, who said:

"The British sailor is the equal of any man, excepting mine."

ABSOLUTE EQUALITY will not be established anywhere for many centuries. What Charles Fourier calls "the cabalistic passion," the desire to be something that others cannot be, is born in primitive human beings.

Children organize secret clubs and exclude younger brothers and sisters. No Oriental potentate chooses titles more preposterous than those that decorate potentates of secret societies in this "democratic country."

Hitler could learn about human nature from the German cook who arranged to marry a petty official and said to her mistress, "Gnaedige frau, ich bien selber gnaedig:

"Gracious lady, I am also a gracious lady."

WE HAD a great gambling era that collapsed in 1929. Then we spent four years leaning up against a financial wailing wall of depression.

Now we are in the joyous government-spending era. RFC, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, starts the new year lending money to deserving cases, usually big corporations, at the rate of thirty-two million dollars a day.

In the first three business days of 1934 it paid out $96,317,603.50.

THE PUBLIC Works Administration, or PWA, announces expenditures, not connected with government projects, of more than fifty-eight millions in forty-one states. That money will give one month's work to 240,357 men.

Those who say it will be impossible for the government to spend as much as ten to twelve thousand million dollars during 1934 under-estimate this country's spending capacity.

IN GERMANY Bishop Ludwig Mueller, who represents Hitler's power in the religious field, announces a dictatorship

POLICE TOLD TO SHOOT MANIAC

Officers in Four States Seeking Sheriff's Fugitive Kidnapers

MARIETTA, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—As a "shoot to kill" order for Neal Bowman was broadcast to peace officers of four states a man identified from photographs as the escaped desperado held up a grocery store at Coshocton, O., early today and escaped with eight dollars. Bowman and a companion escaped in an automobile.

The former terrorist of southwestern Ohio left a trail of two kidnapings as he fled with a companion diagonally across southeastern Ohio Yesterday.

They kidnaped the Vinton County sheriff, H. L. Partee, of McArthur, forced the official to drive them across two counties, and then stole his car.

At Cambridge, they abandoned Partee's auto, thrust a revolver into the ribs of Harold Hutchinson, 25, forced him to ride on the running board for several blocks and then took $12 and a wrist watch from Hutchinson.

The two kidnapings brought a hurriedly called conference of Southern Ohio County law enforcement agencies who issued the "shoot to kill" order to officers in West Virginia, Northeastern Kentucky and Western Pennsylvania.

The two kidnapings Sunday brought to three those attributed to Bowman since he escaped from the Lima State Hospital for the Insane on Christmas Day by brandishing a revolver and throwing a fire hose over the wall to effect his release.

ONE ROOSEVELT TRIPLET DIES

Her parents have four other children, Ruth, John, Michael and Margaret. Henry, who is a steel mill worker, has been unemployed for three years. Although his name is on the CWA work list, he is still waiting for a call.

Funeral services will be from the home at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Files Her Suit

MRS. DOROTHY WEIR BRECK

WEIR DAUGHTER ASKS DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dorothy Weir Breck, daughter of E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel Corporation, filed suit for divorce from George D. Breck here today.

Mrs. Breck charged cruelty. The couple were married in New York City April 28, 1923. Terms of a property settlement agreement were not revealed.

George D. Breck, Jr., of the Park Mansions, is manager of the brokerage firm of Abbott, Hoppin & Co., and was founder and president of the Breck Fuel Company until 1929. Mrs. Breck's father, E. T. Weir, lives in Schenley Apartments.

U. S. Demands Astor Tax of 17 Millions

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Reversing a decision of the United States District Court, the Circuit Court of Appeals today held that the estate of Lord Astor must pay the American government more than $17,000,000 in inheritance taxes. The taxes are on $46,000,000 worth of American real estate put under deeds of trust by Lord Astor two months before he died in 1919.

Huey Wants to Board At White House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Huey Long filed an application with President Roosevelt today to be a White House "boarder," but hel eft without any promise.

Striding into the executive office to keep an appointment with the President, Long crooked his cane on one arm and scattered copies of a prepared statement to reporters even before talking to the President.

The statement read:

"If you want to know 'how does it happen' that I am here at the White House, then all I know is what I heard, and somebody told me that Baruch and Morgan and his partners, and Woodin and Eugene Meyer and Raskob had gone from this house and wouldn't be back soon.

"If that's so, then maybe there is room for them to take in a boarder like me."

After his 12-minute talk with Mr. Roosevelt, Long still stood on the statement upon departing. He was asked:

"Are you going to be a boarder?"

He replied:

"I don't know. I filed the application."

To all other inquiries he simply replied:

"I did all the talking."

With that he left.

It was learned at the White House that Senator Long sought the interview. There still was no sign of any agreement between the Senator and the administration on patronage. The administration so far has ignored the Long machine in Louisiana appointments.

SWINDLER TURNS GUN ON SELF

Frenchman Trapped In $40,000,000 Fraud Tries Suicide

CHAMONIX, France, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Serge "Handsome Alex" Stavinsky, alleged $40,000,000 swindler, shot himself in the head today when police surrounded him in a hidden villa.

He was at first thought to have died instantly, but a hastily summoned physician found a sign of life.

A battle immediately was begun to save Stavinsky from death in order to turn him over to trial.

Application of restoratives brought an apparent consciousness to the man who had been sought for two weeks following the collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop which he founded.

Later, however, he lapsed into a coma, and the doctor said he feared the wound would prove fatal.

Stavinsky was living alone in one room of a villa at the foothills of the French Alps.

The Secret Service traced him there and its agents entered the unheated house. No signs of life had been seen about it.

One room, later found to be the only heated quarter in the villa, was found locked. The agents knocked at hte door. There was no answer.

Convinced that handsome Alex must be inside, they smashed down the door.

Stavisky was there. As the police burst into his hiding place he placed a gun to his head and fired.

10 DENIED NEW VOTE TRIALS

Ten men convicted of vote frauds growing out of the Muldowney-Felix congressional contest were refused new trials today by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court.

After hearing the arguments, in which counsel for the defendants maintained that the prosecution had not proved conspiracy, Judge Schoonmaker asserted that he had considered the cases thoughtfully and had decided there was no substantial error.

The court also refused a motion to arrest judgment.

The defendants involved are Joseph G. Gagliardino, Domenick Mastranni and Ralph Scanga, of the First District, Third Ward; Anthony Sibilia, Jack Frankel, Henry Silverstein and Harry Kart, Sixth District of the Third Ward, and Mike Wendell, Carman Bosco and Charles P. Betters, of the Ninth District of the Third Ward.

Hearing of similar motions in behalf of seven members of Fourth Ward boards was deferred until Friday. Their counsel, Edward G. Coll, reported sick.

A Patriotic Program For the Republican Party

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD'S article published yesterday was a sound and patriotic contribution to the present political situation.

As he truly says, it is not only the opportunity of the Republican party, but its obligation, to have a program of opposition to the party in power which will be of definite benefit to the country.

The matter is not one of partisan politics. It is one of patriotic duty.

It is not a question of mere political opposition to the administration's policies. It is a question of constructive service to the nation.

There may not be any immediate advantage in such a constructive plan and program. But if the basic policies involved are right, the plan will eventually triumph, and the action of the individuals and the party supporting it will be justified in the minds of the American people.

The only question then is whether the program is sound, and whether the political situation is sufficiently serious to warrant vigorous opposition to a popular trend.

Personalities need not enter greatly into the situation.

The question for the opposition party to consider is not whether the policies pursued by the party in power are immediately popular, but whether they are ultimately beneficial.

A VERY vital question before the whole people of the nation today is how far it is necessary to depart, if at all, from political precedent and customary constitutional procedure in correcting present economic conditions; how far may the whole character of our government be menaced or modified by reposing too much power in the hands of any executive, no matter how great and good a man that executive may be?

The Republican leaders do not have to deny that Mr. Roosevelt is a great and good President.

With all that, they may confidently assert that too much power should not be concentrated in his hands.

Such action is not in accordance with the spirit of our institutions and of our American constitutional procedure.

Let the Republican leaders admit that Mr. Roosevelt is a great man and a good man. He undoubtedly and undeniably is.

Still he is not any greater or any better than George Washington; and George Washington not only did not ask for power, but did not permit enthusiasts to make a dictator of him or to impose too great power in the position of the presidency.

He took into consideration not only the conditions of his time, but conditions which might come after his time.

He threw the full weight of his influence not only to limit the powers of the executive, but to limit the period of the executive's term of office, so that in future years there could be no opportunity for a less worthy executive to misuse the powers imposed in him, or dangerously to protract his term of office.

MR. ROOSEVELT is a good and great man, but he is no better and no greater than Thomas Jefferson, the great American who wrote our Declaration of Independence, who founded the Democratic party, and who doubled the area of the then existing United States of America. He not only believed that it was dangerous to concentrate too much power in the hands of the chief executive, but went so far as to declare that the least governed people were the best governed people.

It is possible to enumerate the whole list of America's great men, including Abraham Lincoln, the founder of the Republican party, and not find one who did not believe in strict adherence to the Constitution of the United States, and in the perpetuation of the fundamental principles of our republican form of government, and in maintaining the co-ordinate and co-equal powers of the three departments of our government—the executive, the legislative and the judiciary.

There is danger in unbalancing this political

POST GIVEN TO EX-CAPT. CHARLES

Detective Vet Ousted To Make Place For McQuaide

Former Police Capt. Andrew Charles, discharged by the Kline administration for his activity in behalf of the mayoralty candidacy of James F. Malone, was named assistant superintendent of police today in a surprise move of the McNair administration.

Edward Harkins, veteran lieutenant of city detectives, was forced to retire on pension to make way for the appointment to his position of Franklin T. McQuaide, ousted head of police under the Herron regime. McQuaide was to be sworn in late today.

These developments came as the McNair budget advisors, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith and Auditor M. C. Conick, revealed they were working on plans for an economy reorganization of both police and fire bureaus, and as police continued their raiding of "small fry" racketeers in an effort to clean up the city.

CHARLES TAKES OATH

Charles took the oath as administered by Public Safety Director Harmar D. Denny, Jr., after he had remarked to his astonished superintendent, Ben R. Marshall:

"Well, here's your assistant."

Charles began his police career as sub-patrolman in 1908. He served successively as sergeant, magistrate's clerk at Center Avenue Station and finally as captain.

He switched from support of the late Mayor Charles H. Kline

J. A. RICHARDSON COUNTY JUDGE

Attorney Joseph A. Richardson has been appointed judge of the County Court to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Judge M. A. Musmanno to the Common Pleas Court. Announcement of the appointment was made today in Harrisburg, and Mr. Richardson's commission will be handed to him tonight at the dinner in honor of Common Pleas Judge Ralph H. Smith.

The selection of Mr. Richardson was made at the solicitation of Judge Smith and Senator William D. Mansfield, whose recommendations were accepted by Gov. Pinchot.

Judge Richardson was born in Pittsburgh July 1, 1892, and was educated in the public schools of old Allegheny, the University of Pittsburgh and Duquesne University.

From 1915 to 1917 he was an instructor in the Ben Avon High School, enlisting in the United States Army in the latter year. He was a second lieutenant in the engineering division, aircraft armament section, and later served in the ordnance department, from which he was discharged in 1919.

DEMOCRATS PRESS FOR REFORMS

Budget Cuts, Slum Clearance Also on 5-Point Program

The Democratic bloc of City Council today presented a five-point program aimed at drastic reforms along a wide front in municipal activities.

Resolutions introduced and referred to appropriate committees called for:

1—Reopening of the 1934 budget with the purpose of slashing $2,000,000 to preclude a deficit.

2—Demanding that the Pittsburgh Railways Company report in 30 days on any plans it may have for improving service and reducing fares.

3—Asking the Health Department to study suitable sites for a municipal garbage and rubbish disposal plant and report on or before May 1.

4—Requesting advisability of issuing councilmanic bonds against delinquent taxes.

5—Providing for an investigation of possibilities of slum clearance.

MALONE NOT MENTIONED

No mention was made of James F. Malone in connection with the directorship of the Public Safety Department.

The Democratic members felt confident that they could muster enough Republican and independent votes to put through a major part of their program.

Councilman Walter R. Demmler fathered a resolution to revamp

"There is nothing to those reports which say we have abandoned our projects. We are going ahead.

"I suggest that Pittsburgh select a committee of representative citizens to confer with our director of the division of housing, Mr. Robert Kohn."

Mr. Kohn is to visit here tomorrow or Wednesday, and Mayor William N. McNair and a councilmanic committee plans to lunch with him.

LABOR BOARD HEARS MORE 'CAPTIVE MINE' DISPUTES

STEEL COMPANY REBUFF STIRS MEMBERS

Decision Within Few Weeks Expected At Capital

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Smarting under the strong assertion of the United States Steel Corporation that it has no authority to compel mine operators to make contracts with representatives of the United Mine Workers of America, the National Labor Board devoted the greater part of today to listen to similar labor controversies in 10 other "captive" mines.

The board will consider the testimony and reach a decision within a few weeks. Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, chairman, may ask President Roosevelt for a statement of the agreement he made with the mine operators and the miners last October.

UNION ARGUMENT

John L. Lewis and Philip Murray, president and vice president of the United Mine Workers, respectively, argued in the controversy with the Steel Corporation's subsidiary, the H. C. Frick Coal and Coke Company that the agreement provides for the operators to recognize whoever their miners elect to represent them in "collective bargaining" with their employers.

Nathan L. Miller, counsel for the Steel Corporation, insisted before the board the President's agreement did not mean the company was compelled to make union contracts. He said his corporation will negotiate working agreements with its own employes only and will not recognize Lewis and Murray, elected by some of the Frick miners to represent them, as officials of the union.

JOHNSON STAND

The union's argument was strengthened by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson. He told the board his recollection of the agreement was that the operators would recognize by their official titles whoever their miners elected to represent them, whether those elected be Lewis, Murray or any one else, but admitted "it was a difficult question because of the many agreements made since the Pennsylvania miners' strike."

The operators won a champion in the recent report of Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company, of New Jersey, a member of the Department of Commerce Business Advisory Council, when he stated his committee's belief "collective bargaining" of workers under the codes should be negotiated by actual employes in the plants and not by outsiders.

Teagle did not mention by name the controversies in the "captive" mine over this issue.

The case for the miners was presented by Murray, who declared that the disputed points were similar to those in the Frick case, including union recognition, the check-off and appointment of mine committees.

Murray stated the operators have shown a disposition to meet the miners' terms on the appointment of committees and that he felt the check-off problem could be adjusted after recognition.

BRIGHTER YEAR SEEN BY LABOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Business year prospects for 1934 were pictured today by the American Federation of Labor as "brighter" but "overshadowed by a danger which may destroy all progress made—inflation by fiat money." The review added:

"Fear of inflation is the chief obstacle to restoration of confidence at present."

The labor organization estimated 6,400,000 persons had been put to work largely as a result of government measures, but added that in November 10,702,000 workers remained unemployed and that Civil Works Administration funds giving temporary work to four million persons would be exhausted by February 15.

The report stated:

"In wages, there have been definite gains under codes for the lowest wage groups, but workers of average or higher wages have been forced to a lower living standard.

"Millions who got jobs during the year are better off, but those who had jobs at more than a minimum have lost ground."

when the latter ran for his second term and became one of the chief lieutenants of Malone. When Kline was inaugurated for his second term one of his first acts was to dismiss Charles. The latters' father-in-law, Elias John, for 33 years chief clerk in the Safety Department, was compelled to retire on pension.

In the four years he has been out of police service, Charles has engaged in selling insurance and automobiles.

He resides at 3412 Iowa street.

ECONOMY PLANS

Disclosing that plans were ready for revamping the Police Bureau, Mrs. Smith said:

"We can go into Council today with certain recommendations, but we are not ready as yet. We hope to cut a sizeable chunk from the 1934 budget. To date our recommendations as to all departments we have taken up would result in a saving of $800,000."

Mrs. Smith indicated that economies in the police bureau would be effected by "pruning here and consolidating there." She and Conick also hope to bring about savings in the fire bureau, she said.

Whether Council will accept their recommendations remains to be seen. The Democratic bloc, led by Councilman John J. Kane, has given notice, however, they will reopen the 1934 budget as passed by the old Council in an effort to pare $2,000,000 and avoid a deficit.

ARREST ORDERED

The arrest of the proprietor of a confectionery at 12 Smithfield street was ordered by Magistrate Ralph E. Smith in Morals Court after John Morsilli, 19, 4906 Yew street, a clerk, testified his boss ordered him to sell numbers.

Morsilli was held under $500 bail. He said John Decimo was proprietor of the store.

The cases of three others accused of writing numbers were held over by Magistrate Smith in Central Police Court. The magistrate said he would seek information from the City Law Department on what charges may be made and the amount of bail to be set in such cases.

Those held were Blaine Rhe, 33, of 7345 Bennett street; Eli Doss, Negro, 30, of 217 Yardley way, and Howard Chilton, Negro, 26, of 7211 Monticello street.

LIQUOR SALE CHARGE

In the Hill police said they found a "five and ten cent" dispensary of untaxed liquor in the entrance of a vacant store. Edwin Smith, 40, of 1641 Fifth avenue, and Patrick Carney, 38, of 5 Marion street, were arrested.

Capt. Nuncie Marino and squad in the East End broke up an alleged gambling game at 6329 Frankstown avenue and arrested Rowland Mayfield, 39, of 7267 Mulford street, and Edward Veney, 41, of 268 Paulson avenue, on charges of keeping a disorderly house. Seven visitors were arrested. Dice, cards and dice table were reported seized.

A small quantity of moonshine was seized in a raid at 3 Pride street, by Lieut. Edwin McCoy, upon an establishment police said was operated by Sam Guarano, 30. He was fined $10 by Magistrate Charles B. McCall in Center Avenue Police Court today, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

GAMBLING FINE

Charles Owens, charged with keeping a gambling house at 1717 Center avenue, was fined $25 or 30 days to jail by Magistrate McCall. Four visitors were discharged. Police testified they found cards in the place.

Herbert Hovington and Buddy Reese, Negroes, of 12 Crawford street, were fined, the former $25, the latter $10, on charges of keeping a disorderly house, in Center Avenue Police Court. Police said they confiscated a small quantity of moonshine in a raid Saturday night.

Arthur Oswald, 40, of 104 East Ohio street, was held over today by Magistrate Ralph E. Smith in Central Police Court, charged with keeping a gambling house. Oswald was arrested Saturday in a raid on his alleged "bookie" shop. The raid was led by Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd.

Oswald testified he had operated his place until last Friday when he "closed up."

His son, Howard, 21, and Lawrence Mellinger, 22, of 614 East Diamond street, North Side, held as visitors, were discharged.

RUM REVENUE CASE

Michael Mirasole, 38, of 1021 Wolfendale street, was turned over to state revenue agents by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in North Side Police Court today on information charging him with violation of the state liquor laws. Police arrested him yesterday and confiscated 21 pints of whisky alleged to have been untaxed.

The proprietor and two visitors were arrested at 405 Rosedale street, Homewood. Dominic Guzislino, 38, was charged with violating the liquor law and keeping a disorderly house. They were discharged by Mayor McNair, sitting as magistrate.

Raids late Saturday night were reported at 7449 Finance street with six arrests and one arrest at 6318 Station street.

Women Clash in Church; Pastor's Son Arrested

A hair-pulling contest between two angry young women in a Duquesne church cost a young man $10 today.

It happened in the Slavish Lutheran Church at Fourth street and Viola avenue. The congregation seemed divided over the election of officers.

The women seemed especially indignant because only the widows were to be allowed to vote.

When two young women started pulling each other's hair, John L. Mureck, 22, son of the pastor, testified that he tried to stop them. The upshot was that a squad of police arrived and arrested him and George Pisko, 30, of Arch street, Duquesne.

Mureck was fined $10 on a disorderly conduct charge in Duquesne Police Court today. Pisko forfeited $10, failing to appear.

Last July there was a fight in the church over another issue which divided the congregation.

the 1934 budget. Councilman W. A. Magee took exception to the wording and, as amended to make it a recall of appropriation and salary bills, it was referred to the Finance Committee. It will come up in committee tomorrow.

Councilman John J. Kane presented the trolley fare resolution. After citing that overcapitalization, high fixed charges and interest charges have resulted in the insolvency of the Railways Company and asserting that no improvement of its service or lowering of its fares is possible until these charges are changed, the resolution calls on the company to report in 30 days "What plans, if any it has, to reduce its fixed charges and capital and to improve service and lower fares."

INCINERATING PLANTS

Councilman John M. Huston presented two resolutions, one requesting Health Director Ray P. Moyer to study sites for incinerating plants, the other asking that the City Solicitor, Treasurer and Controller study and report on the issue of bonds on delinquent taxes. Council has been advised bonds may be issued up to 80 per cent of such taxes without such bonds being charged against Council's borrowing power.

Councilman Kane asked that five members of Council go to Washington to confer with federal housing authorities. This motion was withdrawn when Council was told by Magee that Robert D. Kohn, president of the Federal Housing Corporation, would be in Pittsburgh Friday. A conference with him then will be sought.

SCHOOL STRIKE GRIPS CUBA

HAVANA, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Public school teachers of Cuba initiated an island-wide strike at the opening of classes today, protesting two recent salary cuts and non-payment of back wages.

Havana railway workers, meanwhile, awaited the United Railway's answer to their demands, threatening to strike within 72 hours if they are not granted.

An estimated 25,000 doctors, nurses, internes and hospital employes awaited only executive committee orders to begin a strike.

M'NAIR HOLDS POLICE COURT IN EAST END

'Awful' Booze Spoils 'Hizzoner's' Dignity And Pleases Crowd

Well, let's see what he did today . . .

Mayor McNair heard that Magistrate Charles F. Papale was ill, so His Honor dropped into East End Police Court and conducted the hearings himself. He freed 45 defendants and reserved decision on the forty-sixth.

The big moment came when the Mayor sneezed—a performance enjoyed by the crowded courtroom.

Like most sneezes, this one was a surprise even to the Mayor himself. He was examining moonshine taken in a raid when, while holding the bottle to his nose, the sneeze arrived. Tears formed in His Honor's eyes, but he bore up gamely. His comment was:

"Boy, that's awful stuff."

'KILLING PEOPLE'

To the defendant, one Roy Herron, 30, of Hamilton avenue, he said:

"You're killing people."

Nevertheless, Herron was discharged.

His Honor conducted one case in the Italian language. The defendant, Ralph Sabataso, 54, of Mignonette street, was the only one held over. He was accused of a liquor violation.

Seven alleged gamblers were lectured by the Mayor and reminded that the odds were against them.

A woman complained that she had had her cousin locked up simply because he seemed to be starting on a bender. The Mayor freed the cousin and congratulated the woman:

"That's all right. A good idea."

James Dallas was discharged because, although the police reported finding booze in his place at Kirkwood and Beatty streets, they hadn't made a buy.

WOMAN IN CASE

Saul Marnoff, of 5854 Forbes street, wanted to testify against a red-haired woman and two men who he said had beaten him, but the Mayor insisted he file information before a 'squire and offered to furnish "the wagon" to haul them all to the nearest office.

"A drunk" informed the Mayor he had voted for him, which brought this reply:

"Look what you got me into."

The Mayor hurried out to visit the home of the ill Magistrate Papale, but not before somebody suggested that his performance might clinch his right to the $1,000 which the county has been paying annually for years to whoever is Mayor as a magistrate's fee—one of those things. The Mayor smiled as he said:

"I suppose that's why I did it. You say that anyhow."

For lunch the Mayor grabbed a Swiss cheese sandwich and a glass of water at Dutch Henry's. He walked through the downtown to the Hungry Club, munching the last half of the sandwich. In the restaurant a young man approached him with:

"I'm taking up a dare, Mayor. Will you buy my lunch?"

The Mayor said he couldn't afford it.

JOSEPH VOLPE IN RUM NET

Joseph Volpe, 19-year-old brother of the three Volpes slain in Wylie avenue almost two years ago, was in East End Police Station today awaiting a hearing on charges preferred by a state highway patrolman.

The officer, A. A. Regdon, said he had arrested Volpe and a companion, Carmine Marzo, 22, of 115 Cord street, Wilmerding, after he had found 30 gallons of moonshine and an automatic revolver in their machine when he searched it in Frankstown road, near Center.

The patrolman said he stopped the machine to check the license of the driver. The car was owned by a resident of McKeesport who said Volpe had his permission to use it.

Volpe is to be arraigned before a justice of the peace on charges of possessing liquor upon which the state tax has not been paid.

Doughboys to Eat 'American' Food, Woodring Rules

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Doughboys and the CCC boys are going to be "fed American" this year.

They are also going to eat more cheese.

Assistant Secretary of War Woodring notified President Roosevelt today that all the corned beef bought for the Army and the CCC this year will be domestic product.

In the spring there were some purchases of Argentine beef, which caused considerble criticism on the part of domestic producers.

Dairy interests petitioned the Army authorities recently to include more cheese in the Army rations, and Woodring informed the President today that the Army proposes to include about 1,000,000 pounds in future rationing.

Dancing Again

JUNE TRIPP

PEER'S EX-WIFE BACK ON STAGE

By THOMAS C. WATSON
Universal Service.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—"June" is back on the stage to earn a living. Once Lady Inverclyde, proud chatelaine of Memyss Castle and a magnificent Mount street house in London, today "June" again was doing a soubrette-and-dance girl turn in a provincial pantomime.

That's what divorce has meant to June Tripp, famous English dancer and musical comedy actress.

When the Scottish courts granted Baron Inverclyde, young multi-millionaire shipping power, a divorce in December, the annual $5,000 alimony stopped.

Then reverting to her once-starred stage name, "June," June Tripp went back to the stage.

Poor little June was rich and successful and married her prince. But she lived unhappily, got a Reno divorce, which the baron had courts here set aside in order to get an English divorce himself, and then found herself free.

With her name no longer in Debrett's or Burke's Peerage, June is trying to get it back on the playbills.

LAGUARDIA SEES LEHMAN AID

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia predicted today that Gov. Herbert H. Lehman would support the city's plea for a larger share of the state's tax revenue. He said:

"I'm sure the Governor will recommend that. It is in keeping with the fundamental principles of our American system of government, with equitable representation and equitable allocation of taxes. I am sure that is what the Governor has in mind."

Questioned on the fact that there was a great deal of talk about a possible compromise with the Governor, LaGuardia said:

"Any time anyone disapproves anything they must have something to take its place—not talk."

The Governor's refusal to sanction legislation which would give LaGuardia financial dictatorship until October 1 caused the Mayor yesterday to accuse the state executive of injecting the problem "into the field of political maneuvering."

2 Water Assessors Face McNair Ouster

Two Republican members of the Board of Water Assessors, John A. Collins and Lon Mackintosh, are expected to be dismissed today by Mayor McNair. Their successors will likely receive $1 annual salaries, if the Mayor adopts the recommendation of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, his budget observer. They now get $3,600.

RUSSIA READY FOR WAR WITH JAPANESE

Nation Prepared For Conflict, Bullitt Says on Return

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Soviet Russia realizes war with Japan may come and is prepared for it, William C. Bullitt, America's first ambassador to the Soviet Union, said today.

Back to report to President Roosevelt on his brief visit to Moscow as American envoy, Bullitt confirmed reports that war clouds threaten the Far East. He said:

"Soviet Russia is sincerely striving to maintain peace. No country in the world, except possibly the United States, wants peace more than the Soviet. However, Soviet Russia realizes war may come and is prepared for it."

WAR FEAR DENIED

Asked whether Soviet government was taking any measures to prepare the Russian people for the possibility of war with Japan, Bullitt replied no efforts were being made to conduct any "hate" campaigns but that war would not exactly be a surprise if it should come.

As to whether the Soviet people were fearful of war with the Japanese people, Bullitt replied:

"Fearful, no. They are not fearful of it. They are ready for it if it does come."

STRIVE FOR PEACE

Bullitt said the Soviets were sincerely striving to maintain the best of friendly relations with the United States and that the people of Russia as well as the government had this desire. He added:

"The Soviets always have persisted in maintaining friendly relations with the United States, even when we had not recognized them. The Soviets always have felt they had nothing to fear from our country, that we were not going to attack them.

"Our engineers over there have had extraordinarily good treatment. The Soviets liked the way our engineers would go out to places where living conditions were bad and stand the weather. Our technicians made an extraordinarily good impression."

Bullitt said he did not discuss trade or undertake any other serious discussions with the Soviet government during his visit but spent most of his time seeking living quarters for the American embassy and staff which shortly will be established there.

W. Homestead Council Feud Ended by Court

West Homestead's Council fight over which of two men—both dentists—should be seated was settled today in court.

Judge W. Heber Dithrich in Common Pleas Court made an order restraining Burgess Richard H. Lawry from excluding Dr. William J. McGill from Council and enjoining Council from organizing with more than the required seven members.

The judge said it would be illegal to organize with eight members and that McGill would have to be given an opportunity to vote on all matters brought before Council.

On Saturday, McGill filed a bill in equity asking for an injunction to restrain Burgess Lawry, Joseph C. McGuckin, J. Wesley Baird, Dr. John C. Sullivan and William J. Klein from interfering with his being seated in Council tonight.

The Judge's decision will automatically rule Sullivan out, although he piled up 200 more votes than any other Council candidate. The recount board gave a certificate of election to McGill. The borough's election boards gave the seat to Sullivan.

The recount board's action was made on the grounds of a court ruling which prohibits a candidate from accumulating votes under different names. Sullivan ran on two tickets, Republican and Independent. On one ticket his name appeared as John Sullivan and on the other as John C. Sullivan.

ALEX MDIVANI, DODGING LAW, DESERTS HEIRESS-BRIDE

PRINCE FLEES HONEYMOON TRAIN

Turns Up in Oregon as Barbara Hutton Waits In San Francisco

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—America's beautiful blonde $40,000,000 princess, the former Barbara Hutton of "5-and-10" heritage, was in the midst of San Francisco's social whirl today awaiting the arrival of her wandering prince, who was reported to have turned up in Portland, Ore.

She said, with an expressive sweep of her hands and a little toss of her golden head:

"I'm sure—I hope—I mean I know he'll be here in time to sail with me Thursday."

The last she saw of the prince, his Royal Highness Alexis Mdivani, of the former principality of Georgia, was when he dropped off her $120,000 private car at Reno yesterday upon receipt of word that in Sacramento, a couple of hours' ride over the high Sierras into California, a process server from the Los Angeles district attorney's office waited to interview him.

She labeled as "ridiculous" the report that she would go to Seattle to join the prince in boarding the Japanese N. Y. K. liner Tatsuta Maru, on which she has engaged $5,000 worth of cabins for a trip to the Orient.

It was suggested:

"But maybe the prince will board the boat at Seattle and meet you when you get aboard here."

She replied:

"I don't think so."

It was pointed out that the prince could thus avoid the Los Angeles investigator who was reported to have a subpena to serve which would call for the prince's presence in Los Angeles at the trial of his brothers, Princes David and Serge, on charges of alleged oil frauds.

A WAITING SLEUTH

The princess merely shrugged her white shoulders.

The investigator, Harry Owens, made sure in Sacramento that the prince was not on the luxurious private car and said he would motor to San Francisco and wait. Owens said:

"I just want to take a statement from the prince. Don't want to interfere with his trip—only a little statement on what he may know about his brothers' business affairs."

The princess gave International News Service a three-hour interview on her private car between Sacramento and Oakland and across the bay by ferry to San Francisco.

Garbed in a green sports outfit from Paris, she discussed everything from liquor to European nobility as she puffed several cigarets, declined any stronger drink than soda water, and apologized for her "horrid" appearance because of a cold.

However, she was a picture of blonde beauty, cold or no cold, with tawny golden hair, deep blue eyes shaded by long black lashes, sharply defined features and a flawless skin.

She waved a waiter aside in her car as he passed highballs:

"No, thank you. I just can't stand the taste of liquor so I never touch it."

But she added, with a smile:

"I am smoking—took it up last September—had to have one vice."

Mdivani Eludes Sleuth, Turns Up at Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Alexis Mdivani, skirting around the edges of California where a process server waited for him, arrived in Portland at 6:50 a. m. today from Salt Lake City.

The prince and his party planned to continue to Seattle on the 11:15 a. m. plane. They went from the airport to a hotel.

No comment was made on the prince's sudden departure at Reno, Nev., from his honeymoon train, which carried his bride, the former Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress, to San Francisco to await the boat on which they had reserved an elaborate suite for an Oriental voyage.

FELL-DONAHUE TROTH BROKEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The New York Daily News says the engagement of Miss Dorothy Fell, descendant of the Drexels and Van Rensselaers, to Woolworth Donahue, one of the heirs to the Woolworth 5 and 10-cent store fortune, has been broken.

The engagement was announced last September and the ceremony was to have taken place at the Catholic Church of St. Vincent Ferrer on January 20.

The newspaper quotes an intimate friend as saying:

"They just couldn't get along. So, first of all, Dorothy postponed her wedding from December 18, and now she's called it off.

"Friends? Yes, they're still friends, but nothing more."

Miss Fell's mother now is the wife of Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury.

Donahue, a cousin of Barbara Hutton Mdivani, was reported by the news to be in seclusion at the Carolina hunting lodge of his mother, Mrs. Jessie Woolworth Donahue.

By adding the total vote of Democratic candidates in all counties, state headquarters of the party claimed an aggregate of 1,241,113 out of 2,454,480 votes cast in Pennsylvania last November. A committee statement said:

"On the basis of this vote the Democratic party is the majority party in Pennsylvania."

It also declared that Democratic candidates polled a quarter of a million more votes than the total Democratic registration in the state, "whereas the Republican vote was less than 50 ped cent of the number of voters enrolled in that party."

STERILIZATION UP IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A British government project for sterilization of mental defectives is expected to be presented to Parliament within the next 10 days.

A government committee has completed a report on the subject after long study, but its recommendations are being closely guarded.

Undertakings of the committee have aroused great interest in view of the current European furore over the subject, following upon adoption of compulsory sterilization by Germany and the Pope's sharp criticism of such measures, issued recently at Vatican City.

Religious, political and other interested quarters are preparing for a battle, particularly in the event drastic measures are proposed.

The committee studied system of sterilization in vogue in other countries, presumably including certain states in the United States.

3 RIVERS NEAR FLOOD STAGE

A crest of 22.3 feet, 2.7 feet below flood stage, was reached in the rivers here shortly after noon as a result of heavy rains over the Monongahela and Kiskiminetas watersheds.

The rainfall here over the weekend totaled 1.01 inches.

The only damage anticipated in this district was the probable flooding of the coffer dam of the government's new Montgomery Island dam under construction in the Ohio River below Beaver. The machinery has been removed, but pumping out of the flooding waters would entail an expense of several thousand dollars.

Colder weather is in store for the next day or so, Observer W. S. Brotzman said. Yesterday the mercury rose to 54, nine degrees below the maximum for that date. Tonight a low mark of between 25 and 30 is predicted.

YOUNG BRIDE TAKES POISON

Married to her cousin a week ago, Mrs. Nina Jones, 22, of 1235 Sheffield street, North Side, was in Allegheny General Hospital today after an alleged attempt to end her life by taking poison, according to police.

Walking to the front porch of her home last night, Mrs. Jones swallowed a poison tablet in front of "Buddy" Jones, her 9-year-old brother-in-law, police said. He prevented her from swallowing another by knocking it from her hand, according to police.

George Stevens, 19-year-old brother of the young bride, told police his sister married George Jones, 19, in Cleveland, a week ago. He said George was their first cousin.

Police said they learned Jones' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Jones, also residents of 1235 Sheffield street, planned to have the wedding annulled.

At the hospital, Mrs. Jones blamed domestic troubles for her act, police said.

THE WRECKAGE OF THE U. S. ARMY OBSERVATION PLANE THAT LIEUT. ANDERSON LEFT BY 'CHUTE . . . . . THE PLANE CRASHED, BURNED TO A SKELETON ON AN IMPERIAL FARM

ARMY OFFICERS PROBE PLANE CRASH HERE

Pilot Escapes Death By Jump From Blazing Ship

Three officers of the 99th Division today were to investigate the responsibility for the airplane crash in which Second Lieut. E. W. Anderson, Army pilot, yesterday escaped death by "bailing out" before his ship crashed in flames near Cliff Mine.

Lieut. Col. F. A. Prince, acting chief of staff of the 99th Division here, said last night that in accidents of this type, Army regulations require that the nearest military organization investigate and take charge of the wreckage.

Lieut. Anderson, 30-year-old Army flier, left Rodgers Field at 11:30 a. m. yesterday for Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., his base, from where he had flown Saturday on a practice cross country hop. Nearing Imperial, he ran into heavy fog and was unable to see the horizon.

The ship, he said, was not equipped for blind flying and he was not following the radio beam. He zoomed low in an attempt to find holes in the fog, but the visibility was so poor he feared hitting ground obstructions. He said:

"I climbed again to 2,500 feet, cut the switch, and jumped out. My parachute functioned perfectly, and I landed without injury."

Lieut. Anderson came down on the farm of R. C. Chesney, on the Coraopolis-Imperial road, near Cliff Mine. Meanwhile, his plane had skimmed the brow of a hill and crashed in a pasture 200 feet from the home of Harry J. Trautman, a mile from the Chesney property. About a minute after crashing, the plane burst into flames, witnesses said.

THALIA RETAINS FAITH IN LOVE

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Her faith unshattered in the "institution of marriage," Mrs. Thalia Massie, central figure in the startling Hawaiian attack case of 1931, passed through Chicago today en route to Reno to divorce her husband, Lieut. Thomas Massie.

Calm and thinner than when she returned from Hawaii, Mrs. Massie submitted to an interview. Asked if she still loved her husband, she said:

"I didn't want this divorce. Thomas wanted it and so did my family. Mother thinks it is very stupid for two people to stay together after going through as much as Thomas and myself.

"I've not lost faith in the institution of marriage. It's a grand thing."

Mrs. Massie said she intended returning to Washington with her family following the divorce. Lieut. Massie is now stationed on the U. S. S. Oklahoma, out of San Pedro, Cal. The couple have not seen each other in six months.

DYERS TO MEET ON WAGE CUT

Union officials and employers of cleaners and dyers will meet tonight in the office of William Mooney, district administrator under the code authority, to discuss the action yesterday of Cleaners' and Dyers' Local Union No. 18,300 in rejecting a wage cut, union leaders said had been announced by the employers.

The cut was declared in violation of the recently signed wage contract. Employers were said to have based their action on the reduction of cleaning prices from 85 to 70 cents, the new minimum price under the NRA code.

RUM HIJACKED, WIFE BLAMED, SHE CHARGES

Scored for Bein 'Poor Lookout,' Mt. Lebanon Woman Testifies

Mrs. Irene A. Ryan, of Cedar boulevard, Mt. Lebanon, testified before Judge Elder W. Marshall today that her husband scolded her for "being a poor lookout," after $12,000 worth or liquors were hijacked from their residence.

She is contesting the divorce suit of her husband, Clarence E. Ryan, whom she charges was a "big-time" bootlegger.

Denying his charges that she drank to excess, she said that she never drank at all until she married him. She admitted, as he charged, that she had turned the hose on three chorus girls who were in his automobile, and drove them away from the house. She said she told him that none of those girls would use their car.

ARM BROKEN

After this incident, she said, he threw her across the room and she broke her arm against the piano.

She told of her husband going to a camp in Oakmont, and once she accompanied him there, adding:

"I found there a bunch of married men with their sweethearts. I didn't fit in."

She declared that her suspicions that her husband paid too much attention to other women led her to follow him to New York once, and Cleveland again. Each time she found him in a woman's apartment, she said.

CARLOAD OF LIQUOR

She added that once, when they were returning from Florida, he loaded the car with liquor to bring back with him.

Previously, Ryan had testified that he was engaged in the liquor business, but that his wife and two children got 90 per cent of his profit. He charged she embarrassed him in front of his friends, was abusive, drank to excess. He gave her $350 a month, he alleged.

His suit charged cruel and barbarous treatment.

LOSSES LAID TO U. S. DELAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Representative Goldsborough, of Maryland, ranking Democrat of the Banking Committee, told the House today if the United States had gone off the gold standard by January 1, 1933, closing of the banks and resultant loss of money to depositors would have been averted.

Opening a procession of monetary speeches as the House marked time awaiting appropriation bills, Goldsborough declared that as soon as the President went on a policy of gold buying the great banking houses began to say this country was going on a flat money basis.

He scored the resignation of O. M. W. Sprague as Treasury adviser and his articles in the press as "attempting to frighten the people and destroy any good that might come."

'Hill' Palm Reader Gets 10-Day Term

It will cost Thomas Brown, 34, Negro, of 2166 Webster avenue, $10 or 10 days in jail for his alleged offer to read the palm of City Detective William Smith, Negro, last Saturday.

Smith testified before Magistrate Ralph E. Smith that Brown approached him in Wooster street and told him he was going to make some money in real estate transaction.

Welsh Authoress Dies Mysteriously

CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The mutilated body of Miss Dorothy Edwards, 31, Welsh novelist, was found last night along a railway near Caerphilly. Police were unable to explain the manner of her death.

Her chief book, "Rhapsody," is understood here to have attracted notice in the United States.

Two Children Killed As Train Hits Bus

BASSFIELD, Miss., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Two children were killed, one was critically injured, and more than 20 others suffered injuries today when a Mississippi Central passenger train crashed into a school bus at a crossing near here.

SENATORS HEAR BATTLE OVER RUM TAX

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Efforts to both raise and lower the rates in the House liquor tax bill were made in the Senate Finance Committee today, but decisions were deferred until later.

Chairman Harrison, after a two-hour executive session, announced the meeting was taken up with a discussion by Treasury and Alcohol Administration experts, but he hoped to reach the voting stage and report the bill out today.

The Treasury made no recommendations except to propose the one-cent internal revenue stamp to show the tax was paid, he said. This provision was incorporated in the bill passed by the House last Friday.

Harrison asked the group to give serious consideration to his proposal to increase the House distilled liquor spirits rate from $2 to $2.60, with provision made for return of 20 per cent to states which do not enact gallonage levies.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, and several other Democratic Senators said they would urge reduction of the beer levy from $5 to $3.

Still other Senators said they would urge a $1.50 liquor rate with the same end in view.

Edward G. Lowry, of the Treasury and Alcohol Administration, headed the government experts who appeared before the committee.

FRANCE TRIPLES U. S. PURCHASES

International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 8.—Conclusion of negotiations between the United States and France, whereby American exports to France will be increased approximately 300 per cent, was announced today.

The new arrangement will be based on quotas announced on May 31, 1932. Apples, pears and some other American commodities already have been included in the negotiations, which were carried on in Washington.

The new arrangement, it was understood, nullifies recent action taken against American products by the French government, as a result of which the United States refused to grant France an increased liquor quota.

According to a brief announcement by the American Embassy, the new quotas will go into effect immediately.

Negotiations for increased American exports to France were launched last week, immediately after the French government made public a list of projected quotas on various commodities, thereby inviting foreign governments to make bargaining offers.

'MODEL' LIQUOR BILL DRAWN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The National Municipal League today completed the draft of its "model liquor bill" which provides for establishment of state monopolies of the sale of all alcoholic beverages except wine and beer.

Copies of the draft are being sent to each state Legislature.

The aim of the bill, its authors said, is to discourage excessive use of alcohol, to eliminate bootlegging and to put the liquor question back in its proper relation to other social and political issues.

The bill calls for creation of a new kind of public corporation to take charge of the state liquor business. The corporation would be a bit similar to the Tennessee Valley authority.

The state alcohol control authority would be governed by a board of three trustees, appointed by the Governor. All the administrative work of the authority would be done by a general manager, a well-paid permanent official.

2D COUNTY RUM STORE OPEN IN BRADDOCK

The state opened its liquor business in the east boroughs today.

The second liquor store in the county opened its doors at 849 Braddock avenue, in the heart of the Braddock business district. It started out with a couple of truck loads of commodities and a smell of new paint.

SCAN PRICE

A small crowd of buyers and prospective buyers gathered, many of them only looking over the price list. There was only one other place in the county where one could buy bottled goods and that was in distant Coraopolis.

F. M. Hunter was in charge of the new store as manager. His staff consists of an assistant and eight clerks. Hunter said he could not estimate the amount of business done in the early hours of trade.

The first reversal of the State Liquor Control Board on a refusal to grant a retail license in Allegheny County occurred in Quarter Sessions Court this morning. Judge Sylvester J. Snee ordered that a license be granted to Charles H. Rock, proprietor of the Fern Gardens Inn at Cochran and Greentree roads, Scott Township.

TELLS OF RAID

Rock previously had been refused a license by the board after he had averred in making application that he had been arrested and fined for the possession of liquor in 1929. He had appealed the board's decision.

At a hearing last week, Rock testified that when he took over the roadhouse he bought several barrels stored in the cellar. Prohibition agents later raided the roadhouse to find the beer, he said. He pointed out that no charge of illegal sale had been made against him.

The court has final jurisdiction.

Among applications for liquor licenses rejected today by the Board were Mintos Beer Garden, Plum Township; Zappal's Restaurant, New Kensington; Light Lunch Restaurant, Munhall; Makim's Restaurant, Clairton; John Kicz, Sigismund Zabowski's Restaurant, Joseph Szymczak, of Pittsburgh; Thomas Aiello, of Smithton; Caroline Borga, Russellton; Weitzen's Restaurant, Braddock; Bolmer's Cafe, Franklin; Venetian Beer Garden, Clairton.

Those flatly refused included Greek American Political Club, North Side, Pittsburgh; Woodland Avenue Grill, Washington; Polish Falcon Society of the United States, No. 318, Beaver Falls.

BILLY SUNDAY, ANTICS GONE, BACK IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—His voice booming as of old, Billy Sunday began a 14-day revival meeting at Calvary Baptist Church yesterday with the declaration that:

"If we'd all quit sin and serve God we'd have the devil in the hospital by the Fourth of July."

Although admirers said his voice was a loud as ever, the 71-year-old evangelist did not enliven his two-hour sermon with the display of acrobatics that marked his last major appearance here, 17 years ago.

Mr. Sunday, known formally as the Rev. William Ashley Sunday, was immaculately attired in cutaway, striped trousers and spats when he faced a crowd estimated by police at 1,500. He wore a large pearl stickpin in a dark red tie.

NO ONE HITS TRAIL

Taking his text from the first verse of the 17th Chapter of St. John, beginning, "The hour is come," Mr. Sunday adjusted his glasses, smoothed the hair on his partly bald head, and explained that the hour did not mean 60 minutes, but the hour when Christ was born.

He said:

"As a nation we are facing a crisis. Adam and Eve reached a crisis in the Garden of Eden. If they hadn't sinned, we wouldn't have to work for a living."

The blue-velveted aisles of the church saw no one "hit the sawdust trail" to the pulpit. The audience punctuated the evangelist's remarks, however, by an occasional "amen."

Some of his more striking utterances were:

"The people are surfeited with whoopee, ballyhoo, wisecracking jack-ass assinnity."

"If it's important to preach a funeral, over a man when he croaks, how much more important is it to save him from eternal damnation while he's alive.

'PRUDERY NO VIRTUE'

"I came to New York to please God, and if I don't please any more people than their conduct pleases God, then we're going to have a lively time before I'm through.

"I am charged with being sensational. Well, sensation is life. Nothing good was ever accomplished without sensation.

"One reason sin flourishes is that it is treated like a cream puff, a charlotte russe, instead of a rattlesnake. Prudery is no sign of virtue.

"Religion isn't a matter of rites and ceremonies, though some people find them helpful. You can get access to God in a whitewashed shed, in the subway, or in the street."

Mr. Sunday did not mention prohibition repeal, althoug several of his moral anecdotes dealt with drunkards.

Before he began his sermon, his wife, "Ma" Sunday, was introduced from the pulpit.

over the German Evangelical Church.

Preachers must confine their sermons "to the pure Gospel," and not convert the Lord's house into a forum for religious or political controversy.

That promises trouble. Freedom of the pulpit is an ancient German institution.

Cardinal Faulhaber, speaking for Germany's great Catholic population, objects to substituting legendary German heroes for Old Testament dignitaries, and says too much emphasis is laid on the wonderful "Aryan blood." He reminds Germany that the world was saved, not by Aryan blood, but "by the blood of the Saviour."

"The Englishman dearly loves a lord."

Many Americans dearly love a millionaire. Auction of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick's works of art and jewelry in New York attracted a crowd greater by 4,000 than any that ever attended an auction before.

In Chicago, when Mrs. McCormick's furniture is sold in her house on the lake front, which Chicago reporters call "the gold coast," ten dollars admission will be charged to prevent unbearable crowding.

REVENUE OF U. S. UP $62,110,181

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The nation's income jumped upward some $62,110,181 during the 1933 fiscal year—and, what's more, it cost the government less to collect it.

Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, also disclosed today in his annual report to Secretary Morgenthau that, although 3.2 per cent beer and wine were legal only for a small part of the 1933 fiscal year, the former brought in $35,149,492 and the latter $80,948.

With income taxes carrying the bulk of the load, Helvering estimated total revenue for the 1933 fiscal year at $1,619,839,224 as compared with $1,557,729,042 the year before.

Further, it cost the government $1.85 to collect each $100 of revenue during the year. That was 32 cents less per $100 than it cost the previous year. All in all it cost $30,031,722 to collect the revenues of the government for the year as compared with $33,670,903 the previous year.

FARLEY URGES 3-C. POSTAGE STAND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—It looks like the 2-cent stamp, except for use on local letters, is doomed for a lengthy banishment.

Postmaster General Farley in his annual report, echoing the words of President Roosevelt to Congress, suggests continuation of the 3-cent rate to help whittle down an expected bulky postal deficit for the coming year.

Unless the 3-cent rate is reenacted by Congress before it automatically expires on July 1, Farley foresees a postal deficit of $190,000,000 for the year 1935. He estimates the higher rate brought the postoffice $75,000,000 extra last year.

The Postmaster General reports postal business declined last year for the third year in succession, and announces a $112,374,892 postal deficit for the year. Expenditures were cut sharply, but totaled $700,006,256, he says, while income also fell off to a $587,631,364 level. Farley said:

"Even before the depression began the period of constantly increasing postal receipts was approaching an end, the records of the department clearly indicating it was probably due to changed methods of advertising and merchandising."

Saying the Postoffice Department was "the largest single employer of labor in the country, if not in the world," the Postmaster General reported the number of employes as 235,573 persons, a drop from the peak of 254,946 reached December 31, 1929.

An attack on the deficit was made through substantial reductions for transportation, rent, supplies and equipment, but the principal saving was made in expenditures for personal services. Approximately $80,000,000 was saved in payrolls with $58,000,000 of it attributable to reductions through the economy legislation. The remainder was through normal reduction in personnel.

Thomas Denounces Huge Debt Increase

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, in an address here last night criticized the administration's program of increasing the public debt nine billion dollars to an estimated $31,834,000,000 total by June 30, 1935, to pay for recovery measures.

He praised the public works program, but said he would have financed it through issuance of non-interest bearing Treasury notes.

White House Picks Wrong Day for Jackson Fete

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The White House, usually infallible in observance of innumerable historical anniversaries, slipped up today.

The two White House aides, Col. Edwin Watson, for the Army, and Rear Admiral Walter Vernou, for the Navy, were directed by White House personnel which usually handles such matters—not President Roosevelt—to place wreaths on Andrew Jackson's monument to commemorate the anniversary of Jackson's birthday.

The two service aids were all ready to take the wreaths to the monument when they discovered thatJackson was born on March 15, not January 8.

STUDY POSTAL CHECK PLAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The New York Herald Tribune says in a dispatch from its Washington bureau that some of President Roosevelt's advisers are studying the possibilities of extending the Postal Savings System to include checking accounts.

Such a program, which would be limited to small accounts, would carry the advantage of checking accounts into small communities which may be without other banking facilities.

If adopted, the Herald Tribune says, it would be expected to increase by four or five times the present deposits in the Postal Savings System, which amount to twelve hundred million dollars, thus opening up an additional market for government securities that must be issued in large amounts in the next year. Postal Savings deposits are invested in United States government obligations.

Congressman Hurt, Crash May Cost Ear

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Representative Mansfield (Dem.), of Texas, today was threatened with the loss of an ear following an automobile crash that sent him to the Alexandria (Va.) Hospital, near here.

The 72-year-old chairman of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee also suffered a severely lacerated neck when the automobile in which he was riding skidded on the wet pavement near Alexandria and crashed into a parked car.

IMMORTALITY UNPROVABLE, DEAN SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Rejecting one by one the various ecclesiastic and lay authorities who hold the concept of individual immortality, Dr. Howard Lee McBain, dean of the graduate faculties of Columbia University, said in an address yesterday that such a belief was "unproved and unproveable."

He spoke at the university's annual service for members who had died in the last year.

Discussing in some detail the traditional dogmas of Christian churches and the theories of lay philosophers, Dr. McBain rejected their findings, but added that, on the whole, it was better, perhaps, that the fact of immortality should remain unproved.

He said:

"I may be wholly in error, but I am inclined to believe that for thinking men a certainty of an after-life would have graver and perhaps more devastating effects upon us than the certainty of extinction.. It is better that many of us should travel hopefully towards an unknown eternal destiny than that we should have our eyes set upon an eternity fixed, immutable and known of all men."

Observing that the only concept of immortality of interest to the common man is the personal immortality of his own soul, Dr. McBain said this thought was "highly important to many human spirits, but it is also, I think, proof of nothing at all except that one of the strongest instincts in man is the instinct of self-preservation."

To thoughtful men, he said, there were many hurdles in the way of acceptance of such a belief, the most obvious of which is the common knowledge after death the physical body disintegrates. He said:

"Though a man may think or feel that he has a soul that is not wholly, if at all, dependent upon his physical body, he nevertheless, try as he will, cannot truly imagine a disembodied spirit.

"And even if he could imaginatively picture a disembodied spirit, he could have no idea either on the earth he knows or in the heaven he knows not, how such a spirit would occupy itself through never-ending eons and eons, or for that matter, throughout a single solar calendar day."

U. S. FINANCES CALLED WORST IN HISTORY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The American government is in a "worse financial condition than ever before," Senator Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, charged this afternoon on the floor of the Senate, in a general criticism of the administration's alleged extravagance.

Robinson flayed President Roosevelt and his spokesmen for "going about the country in the last six months, boasting the budget had been balanced."

He expressed great alarm at the $7,300,000,000 deficit reported by the President for the current fiscal year.

'MESSAGE UNUSUAL'

The Indiana Senator termed the President's two messages, on the state of the union and on the budget, "remarkable" and "unusual." He declared:

"The message on the state of the union was filled with glittering generalities. I defy any member of this body, familiar as he is with the affairs of the union, to read that message and gain any enlightenment on the state of the union.

"The budget message was more unusual and certainly more amazing. The President very frankly stated to the Congress and to the country that we face a deficit next July of more than seven billion dollars.

"The President and his spokesmen were going about the country in the last six months confidently assuring the American people that the budget was balanced—that we were out of the red and into the black.

'TRUTH OUT'

"Now the truth is out. The budget is not balanced. It is not only unbalanced, but in a worse condition than ever in the history of the nation, not even excepting war time.

"How strange it is that the President, when he initiated the so-called economy bill, should have criticized the budget of that day, left by the administration preceding him. Why that budget was not a drop in the bucket to the enormous deficit facing the country at this moment."

Robinson termed the administration's program "a shot in the arm" and pleaded for real relief.

DEFENSE BY DEMOCRATS

Senator Pat Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, challenged several of Robinson's statements. Finally Robinson exclaimed:

"If the Senator from Mississippi will do me the honor to sit in his seat, he'll learn something."

Harrison retorted:

"It would be the first time."

Robinson, of Indiana, accused the President of "misrepresentation," "lack of frankness" and "culpability" in budgetary matters.

Senator Robinson (Dem.), of Arkansas, defended Mr. Roosevelt, saying a careful distinction had been drawn in the President's speeches between ordinary and emergency expenditures.

Robinson, of Indiana, replied:

"There never should have been but one set of figures. There is no distinction in the minds of the people, now that they have read the President's budget message.

"We know just where we stand. The country is plunging headlong toward ruin unless the brakes are applied."

He added:

"I've heard it said no one connected with the government could tell within $10,000,000 a day how much is being spent by the administration."

Senator Asks U. S. Protest to Nazis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Senator Tydings (Dem.), of Maryland, today introduced a resolution urging President Roosevelt to protest to Germany against that country's treatment of Jews. It was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

The resolution asked that the President communicate to the reich "an unequivocal statement of the profound feelings of pain and surprise experienced by the people of the United States upon learning of the discriminations and oppressions imposed by the reich upon its Jewish citizens."

Whenever Socialism or Communism shows its head, Fascism springs up to combat it.

Fascism in Italy was brought into being by Socialistic activities.

Fascism in Germany was a protest against the growing strength of Communism.

If there is danger in this country of too great disregard of American precedent and constitutional provision, if there is danger of Socialistic development and Fascist counter development, if there is danger of our happy mean of democracy being lost sight of and forgotten in a conflict between the two extremes of Socialism and Fascism, what an opportunity for the Republican party to stand forth as the preserver of republican institutions and constitutional government in the United States of America.

WHAT AN opportunity for the Republican leaders of today to follow in the footsteps of the founder of this mighty republic.

What an opportunity to conserve the liberty and the equality and the essential democracy which have transformed little colonial outposts of civilization into the greatest united nation in the world.

It once was cynically said in discussing the characteristics of our two political parties that the Democratic party had all the heart and the Republican party all the brains.

Small evidence of brains in the Republican leadership of today if they cannot find ways and means to serve themselves while loyally and patriotically serving the nation.

THE HEARST papers are not Republican organs, but they suggest as a patriotic program for the Republican party:

Constitutional government.

Individual liberty.

National independence and political isolation.

Invincible national defense.

Protection for American products and producers.

Exclusion of defaulters from American markets

Selective immigration.

Universal education.

Law enforcement, rigorous and impartial.

Simplification of government.

Elimination of bureaucracy.

Economy in administration.

Reduction of taxation.

No tax evasion.

No tax discrimination.

No class distinction.

Equal rights, equal privileges, equal opportunities, equal obligations for every citizen.

Make the United States safe for democracy.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

WESTERN GROUP BOOSTS SILVER

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Remonetization of silver as a basic money metal in a proper economic relation to gold was advocated today by the Western States Silver Committee, appointed by the governors of 11 western states. George W. Malone, of Reno, is chairman.

In urging the plan, Malone pointed out:

"Additional money backing is a widely recognized necessity for the approximately $6,000,000,000 worth of currency outstanding in America."

Support of inflationists, ultraconservatives, and the primary money silver group is being sought through announcement of this policy, leaving only the commodity silver purchase advocates.

Malone pledged the co-operation of the silver states, "as long as the President's action can be regarded as an effort to arrive at a proper price to stabilize the relation between the two metals."

U. S. OLD AGE PENSION URGED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Federal study of old-age pensions is provided in a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Ellenbogen (Dem.), of Pittsburgh.

Ellenbogen's bill would create an old-age security commission to consist of seven members to be named by the Speaker. The commission would study various assistance systems of 27 states now having old-age pension statutes.

It aims to provide for all persons above the age of 65.

The commission is to report its findings on or before the next session of Congress.

Pedagogue Named As I. C. C. Member

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—President Roosevelt today nominated Walter M. W. Splawn, former president of the University of Texas, to be a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Splawn will fill the vacancy created when the term of Ezra Brainard expires this month, and his appointment will bring the Democratic membership of the commission to six, compared with five Republicans.

Roosevelt's British Critic Denounced in Senate

International New Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Criticism of President Roosevelt's recovery program by John Maynard Keynes, British economist, was denounced in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Lewis (Dem.), of Illinois.

Lewis took exception to Keynes' declaration that the President's program was "foolish" and a hare-brained expedition," and to his advice to the President to return to "the old ways." Lewis said:

"Of course, it is easy to observe that returning to the old ways means those ways that surrender the dignity of the United States and dependence to those nations which profit greatly by our supine surrender or serene indifference to their appropriation of profit gathered from our too-frequent yielding."

Lewis also attacked Keynes' criticism of the President's gold program. He asked:

"Why is nothing said of the pound, which has been gyrating to and fro like a small boy's balloon under the capering wind or like a manikin with St. Vitus Dance?"

Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, asked Lewis whether Keynes had said anything "about the British paying the debt they owe us?" Lewis replied:

"I must pay tribute to the eminent, shrewd and sagacious mind of this gentleman; that's the one subject he carefully avoided."

U. S. TIGHTENS UP SPENDING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Roosevelt took another step today to tighten up and coordinate the expenditure of funds under the recovery program.

An executive order was issued directing all government departments, independent bureaus and government corporations to submit weekly itemized lists of all allocations of funds, and also weekly itemized lists of all applications for funds, to the director of the budget.

Orders were issued last week extending the authority of the budget director over recovery expenditures, and providing for audits by the Comptroller General.

BANKING LAWS BATTLE LOOMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Banking leaders in the Capital were getting ready today for an extended Congressional controversy over banking laws and threats and challenges promised plenty of action.

Several party chiefs feared there would be an open outbreak as soon as sufficient support could be mustered by those who want to amend the 1933 banking act with its deposit insurance provisions.

On the one hand was the strong House group largely responsible for enactment of deposit insurance despite the lukewarm attitude of Senator Carter Glass (Dem.), of Virginia; on the other was insistence by Glass upon permission of branch banking in states which specifically authorize it.

Insurance of deposits up to $2,500 became effective January 1. On July 1, it is to be extended to all deposits on a percentage basis—100 per cent, of those up to $10,000; 75 per cent, up to $50,000, and 50 per cent on those over $50,000.

REED ADVANCES VET BENEFIT PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The American Legion's four-point program for restoring veterans' benefits was put before Congress today by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania.

He told the Senate that "at no time since the Legion was organized has it shown such moderation in its requests," despite reductions in benefits and a lowered purchasing power of the money received.

Just before Reed acted, a legislative program of the Disabled American Veterans was submitted to President Roosevelt by J. W. McQueen, national commander. It sought modification of the economy act's application to service-connected cases.

McQueen emphasized neither cash payment of the bonus nor pensions to the nonservice connected group were being sought at this time.

The legion program in Reed's bill:

1—Restoration of service connection as it existed prior to the economy act.

2—Restoration of the old rates for service connected cases, providing $100 a month for total permnaent disability.

3—Free use of veterans' hospital, btu only for men who need hospitalization and have not the money.

4—The same pension rate—$15 a month—for widows and orphans of World War veterans, that dependents of the Spanish War veterans get under the economy act.

Legion officials said the first two points could not cost more than $60,000,000 a year and probably less.

The third item would cost nothing, they said, while the fourth would cost $9,000,000 for the first year; $15,000,000 for the second; $20,000,000 for the third, and an average of $19,250,000 for the first five.

Romance Is Shattered When All Privacy Ceases

Should a husband or a wife have no thoughts—no interests—no friends—that the "other half" isn't in on?

And if they do—is it a sign that theirs isn't a "True Marriage"?

Mona thought so—so she opened Jack's mail. And Jack put on a riot—but it did no good.

"I can't see what you're howling about," Mona came back at him. "Aren't we one?"

Whereupon he wrote to us, and we told him he was right—that every human, married as well as single, had a right to privacy. Now here's Mary to challenge that statement.

"Why should a husband or wife want 'privacy'?" she snorts indignantly.

Dear Miss Robinson:

My husband and I have just this minute finished reading the letter in your column tonight—and your answer.

READS LETTERS

Many times I have wanted to write you about debates in your column, and this time I can't resist the temptation.

As for wives opening their husbands' mail—no. I don't agree with that. But I do believe that each should show the other their respective letters. My parents did so—still do, in fact—and my husband and I do, also.

If all that is worrying Jack is that his wife opens his letters, why, the solution is quite simple. Let him open them, and after reading them, give them to his wife so she can read them, too.

If he isn't ashamed of what his friends and relatives write, why shouldn't Mona read them? My husband thinks it is very silly for him to make such a fuss over such a trifle.

As far as the husband's privacy is concerned, that, in the opinion of my husband and me, is what the Moderns would call "hooey."

Why should either husband or wife want "privacy?" "Secrecy" sounds to me like a better word for that kind of an idea.

DISAPPROVES SECRECY

And we hardly think that there is any comparison, as you state, between a wife opening her husband's mail and someone's else. You say she "has no more right to open his than she would have to open yours." Why, the two are utterly different. Jack and Mona are husband and wife. You are a total stranger.

John and I wouldn't dream of opening the mail of any of our friends. But, as I said before, although we not believe in opening each other's mail, we do believe we should always give each others our letters, after we have read them.

We agree that there isn't any possibility of two people becoming "one," but there isn't anything to stop them from confiding in each other—and there should not be (we feel, at any rate) any act either secretive or under-handed on the part of either husband or wife, if they expect to be happy together.

MARY and JOHN.

"No privacy"—that listens lovely, Mary and John. But how does it really work out? What happens when a man and a woman are forced to share every thought, every interest with each other?

We are attracted to each other at first because we are different—mysterious. And because of that difference, that mystery, we are an adventure to each other. Then comes marriage. And we begin to destroy the mystery—break down the barriers that kept us individuals.

CHILDISH GREEDINESS

With that, the adventure ends. When all privacy ceases, personality perishes—and marriage becomes a monotonous misery.

Why does romance end so quickly in boredom? Why do lovers so soon lose interest in and consideration for each other? That's why. "Familiarity breeds contempt."

That doesn't mean we should have shameful secrets from each other. But decent privacy isn't a shameful secret. A man has many an interest which his wife can't share. A woman has many a friendship which her husband can't understand. Yet those interests and friendships may be perfectly healthy and fine.

Why trample on the Other Fellow's right to be himself? That isn't Love. It's childish greediness and self-indulgence—and in the end it kills love, ruins marriage.

We laugh at our grandfathers and grandmothers, with their formal courtesy to each other. But marriage—and mutual respect—lasted longer when husbands and wives maintained a few "No Trespassing" signs.

That's my answer to Mary and John. What's yours?

Avis Boldly Asks to Talk to Noel—Alone

As Mary made her jocular reference to the "blonde menace," and "losing her man," she sent a provocative glance at Noel from under lowered lashes. It was the look of a woman thoroughly sure of herself and of the man she loved—so sure that she could risk flinging at him a gibe upon a subject loaded with potential dynamite.

"Blondes have always been my weakness," he half hummed, half recited, "but if you'll promise to hold my hand very tight, I'll try not to jump over the traces."

They followed me docilely into the hall and when I was safely out of Katie's hearing I faced them, smiling.

"I think it's only fair to warn you," I said, "that Avis is in full war panoply. She has an elaborate green and silver gown, which she is determined to wear as bridesmaid, and which we are equally determined to keep from spoiling the color scheme of the wedding processional. She has appealed to me to let her wear it, and she no doubt will appeal to both of you also. Please be adamant."

"A concrete highway has nothing on me," Mary said. "What about you, Noel? What are you going to answer when Avis looks at you with those limpid blue eyes and pleads to be permitted to wear the green and silver gown?"

"I shall grab the woman nearest me," Noel retorted, "hide behind her, and bleat that I don't know anything about women's dresses."

"Bravo, darling!" Mary patted his shoulder approvingly. "You're getting better by the minute. Come on; let's give Avis the once over. Or—perhaps I'd better run up and put on something more elaborate, so I won't be so completely overshadowed."

She took a dancing step or two toward the staircase, but Noel caught her and swung her around masterfully toward him.

"If you don't stop baiting me," he threatened, "I shall sling you over my shoulder as if you were a sack of potatoes, carry you into the living room and deposit you in Avis Arlen's lap."

"That isn't a threat, that's a promise," she told him, wrinkling her nose at him. "It would almost be worth it to see what our dear young friend would do. But I'll be good; so come along, and let's get the glad-welcoming-hand business over with. After you, Auntie Madge."

But I stepped back and waved them on.

"This is strictly your party," I told them then followed in their wake as they walked into the dining room where the young people were gathered chatting with Avis.

"Oh, my dears!" she said, with something of the air of a queen rewarding her subjects. "How perfectly delightful to see you again."

She floated toward them—there is no other word to describe the progress of that green and silver gown down the room—and held out a hand to each of them.

"It's so sweet of you to let me be one of your bridesmaids, Mary," she cooed. "I'm simply thrilled to tears about it, I love you both so much. And now I'm going to ask you a teenty weenty bit of favor. May I talk to No-el just a minute or two, all by myself? There's something I want to ask him."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Order of the Menu

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My wife and I had a friendly argument today about a dinner menu. We had the following menu: potatoes and roast beef, pudding and pineapple sauce, lettuce and asparagus with French dressing, soup and a glass of wine. How would you serve this menu?

My wife did serve it in the following order: soup, potatoes and roast beef, lettuce and asparagus, pudding. I agree with her in the serving, with but one exception. Because of health reasons I would serve the pudding before the lettuce. As far as I know it is better to eat sour after sweet, otherwise it may upset the stomach.

I am writing for my wife also, as we would both like to know.

K.

Your wife served the items of her menu in the order usually followed . . . the soup, the roast course, the salad course, and the desert.

Household Hints

Discolored flower vases may be cleaned easily by chopping a raw potato into small pieces. Put them into the vase, add a little vinegar and shake well. Then wash the vase in soapy water and rinse in cold, clear water. This is also a successful way of cleaning discolored bottles where one cannot get a rag inside. Be sure to chop the potato very small for bottles with narrow necks, or otherwise use a spoon of rice. This, with the vinegar, will clean the sides of the bottles if shaken well. Turn out and rinse.

Butter and haricot beans will cook in half the time if salt is not added until they are tender.

Spiced fruit peel, a popular confection, is made by adding cinnamon bark and whole cloves to the syrup used for cooking the peel. The proportions are half a stick of cinnamon and six whole cloves to each two cups of sugar.

So often we see pretty girls dining alone or together at inexpensive restaurants. At other tables we see attractive young men, alone or together.

Afterwards these young persons probably see some show from inexpensive seats.

How much jollier if all such could be together. That they are not, I think, is due to the mistaken notion that when young men entertain young ladies all must be done more expensively.

Many young men cannot afford this. Rather than show girls less attention, they show them none.

Young men would be surprised to find how many girls will enjoy these same simpler evenings with them. Spending the evening in pleasant comradeship will mean much more than what is spent of money.

Contract Bridge :-: HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Inadvertent Bidding

Law-makers have laid down penalties for various offenses against the rules at the Bridge table. However, there is one lapse from the requirements of the International Code which is indeed hard to cover. That is a case where a partnership, after one of them has opened the bidding, believe that an opponent has made some kind of an Overcall, and the player himself feels that the question is so much on the twilight ground that he must permit his partner to be misinformed as to the situation.

In a recent rubber game at a bridge club in New York, East, the Dealer, when he picked up his cards opened the auction with one diamond. South, busily engaged in discussing a Bridge problem with West, made some mention of hearts, referring, however, to the problem rather than to any intention of making a call. West bid two diamonds, and North, a lady who had been somewhat bored by the discussion about an abstruse problem, asked for a review of the bidding. South, anxious to repair any lapse, now said: "East bid one diamond, I passed, and West bid two diamonds."

"Oh, no, East interjected. "That is not right. I bid one diamond, you bid one heart, and my partner raised to two diamonds."

For a moment South was nonplussed. However, he decided to stand whatever penalty might follow, and simply remarked, "I am sorry;" and the bidding continued from that point.

North, then, through various stages, carried the bidding to four hearts, which West, in exasperation, doubled. The hands were:

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ K986
♡ A952
◇ 9
♣ Q854

West:
♠ 75
♡ K63
◇ Q1042
♣ A962

East:
♠ AJ32
♡ 104
◇ AK853
♣ 103

South:
♠ Q104
♡ QJ87
◇ J76
♣ KJ7

The Opening lead was a diamond, after which West shifted to a spade. Upon this East quite rightly played the Knave as the one prospect of two tricks in the suit. South won with the Queen and led the Queen of hearts. West ducked and a low heart was played from Dummy. The Knave was then led, and West now covered, and when the Ten dropped from the East hand, South could see his inadvertent contract assured. Later he was forced to concede the Ace of clubs and the Ace of spades, but a contract which he had no intention of undertaking had been fulfilled, and, in addition to that, fulfilled doubled.

It is my opinion that whenever a player finds himself in a situation where the South of this story did find himself, he should be prepared to take his medicine, even though the dose be bitter. It was obvious that both East and West had understood that he had made a bid. He could only have made matters worse by insisting that his inadvertent bid had not occurred at all—that he had been simply expiating upon an abstruse problem—for that might have meant giving more information than could have been conveyed by the pass. It might react favorably for North and South. On the other hand, East and West might benefit. But whatever the consequences, no matter how expensive in dollars and cents they may be, South should take his medicine with the utmost good cheer.

This is the only instance in my recollection where a player who did not think he had bid found himself in a position of playing a doubled game contract and, most remarkable of all, making it.

Today's Question

North-South vulnerable. The bidding:

North	South
1♠	2♡

You, North, hold:

♠KQ98 ♡107 ◇AK93 ♣KJ4

What do you bid?

Answer: Two notrump. Although the hand contains four honor-tricks, allowance must be made for partner's holding a minimum Takeout. The two notrump response is a fairly strong bid and if partner should pass to it no game will be missed. A high honor in hearts instead of the Ten-spot would be needed to make the hand good enough to bid three notrump.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About Digestive Troubles

Not so long ago a special meeting was held at the New York Academy of Medicine to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the publication of a book which made medical history. In 1833, Dr. William Beaumont, an army surgeon, gave to the world what he called, "Experiments and Observations on the Gastric Juices and Physiology of Digestion." This was an important contribution to human knowledge and paved the way for further investigation.

Dr. Copeland

While stationed at Fort Mackinac, Mich., in 1820, his opportunity to make this study was presented in the person of a French-Canadian, Alexis St. Martin. This lad was wounded in the abdomen by the accidental discharge of a shotgun. As a result of the accident, St. Martin had a permanent opening into his stomach. Through this window Beaumont was able to study the action of the digestive juices.

Prior to the printing of this valuable book, little was known concerning digestion. Today, all physicians are familiar with the intricate mechanism of digestion.

I fear that most lay persons are more or less unaware of how the human stomach acts and how food is digested. In fact, there may be some doubt as to the exact location of this vital organ. When abdominal pain is present the sufferer often refers to the pain as "stomachache," when, in reality, it may come from the appendix, intestines or bladder.

Such common complaints as heartburn, dyspepsia, acid or sour stomach, "billiousness" and nausea, are often attributed to stomach disorder. In many instances the disturbance may be traced to gall bladder disease, heart disease, infected tonsils, diseased nasal sinuses, or some other localized infection.

Digestive disturbance is all too common. It is frequently and properly spoken of as "the great American complaint." It is no wonder that Americans are subject to digestive disturbances. Nothing else can be expected when we consider our hurried eating and living.

Everyone should take advantage of the discoveries of medical science. Our forefathers suffered from many disturbances that could not be cured because physicians of those days were not familiar with the disease and, of course, could not offer a cure. Today, medical science is able to combat most of those ailments.

MILK STRIKERS DUMP TRUCKS INTO RIVER

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Violence broke out in every section of the city today as the Chicago milk blockade became 100 per cent effective.

Three trucks were pushed into the Chicago River at widely separated points and a fourth was burned when its driver attempted to make deliveries in violation of the embargo.

END SEEN NEAR

Thousands of quarts of milk were dumped. Police were swamped with telephone calls from dairies demanding protection.

Dumping of milk and other violence extended for a 100-mile radius about the city. At least three attempts were made to halt trains carrying milk from Wisconsin.

The Pure Milk Association, organization of 18,000 militant farmers, announced progress was being made to settle the strike. All Chicago dairies were sent copies of a contract under which they would agree to pay a basic price of $1.85 a hundred for milk.

SCORE ARRESTED

It was believed the association might permit dairies signing the contract to receive milk. Under such a system, representatives of the association probably would ride with trucks of certain companies hauling milk into the city.

Outside of Chicago, the strike was highly organized with pickets and roving "flying squads" of farmers keeping in contact by telephone to enforce the strike.

A score of union milk wagon drivers was arrested, but most of them speedily released, in Chicago. They were charged with interfering with deliveries by cut-rate dairies employing nonunion drivers.

OWN STOCKING DEATH NOOSE

Although a conclusion of suicide has been tentatively accepted, homicide detectives and Coroner's attaches were today still investigating the death of Mrs. Mamie Brockett, 50, who was found, half-clad, dangling in a noose of her own stocking in a shack in the rear of 217 East Lacock street yesterday, according to a police report.

Her throat had been slashed. A safety razor blade was found a few feet away from the body, a fact which at first led police to believe she had been murdered. Her contorted features told police the woman had died slowly, death resulting from strangulation, the Coroner's report said.

Small children, playing about the shed, found the body. To police questioning, Mrs. Dorothy Scham, who lives at the Lacock street address, said she had heard the cries of a woman in agony, but had feared to investigate.

The widow of Frank Brockett, a grocery salesman, Mrs. Brockett at one time lived in Alpine street. Her address at the time of her death is not known.

Neighbors said Mrs. Brockett had taken to drink following the death of her husband, police said. An empty whisky bottle was found in the shack.

Heroic N. Y. Fireman Commits Suicide

NEW YORK, Jon. 8.—(Universal.)—Fearful that fractures of both legs might bar him from returning to the fire department, Lieut. Edward H. Werthmuller, heroic fireman, committed suicide yesterday.

Werthmuller received a hero reward in 1929 for rescuing three fellow firemen from burning wreckage. His legs were fractured recently while he was sliding down a pole in his firehouse in response to an alarm.

Braddock Police Probe Man's Injuries

Braddock police are investigating how Michael Chopp, 35, of 1010 Talbot avenue, Braddock, received lacerations on his right hand and wrist. He told police that his wife, Helen, had cut him with a knife during a quarrel, but investigation indicated that he was cut when he fell through a window in his home Saturday night. Chopp was treated for the lacerations in the Braddock General Hospital.

'Mounties' Called In Canadian Strike

EDMONTON, Alta, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Responding to pleas from grain farmers, who expressed fear of personal injury and damage to their property, Royal Canadian mounted police today took up guard duty at Myrnman, 50 miles east of here, following reports that striking grain farmers were picketing roads to prevent trucks from carrying grain to elevators.

Pittsburgh's presidential ball will be held all over the William Penn, it seems. The ballroom and all the remainder of the floor where the ballroom is located and the Chatterbax have been reserved for the dance—Tuesday night, January 30.

The ball similar ones will be given the same night all over the country to celebrate President Roosevelt's birthday is for the benefit of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, established by the President.

Miss Elizabeth Arbuthnot, who has shown her executive ability at a number of previous benefits, will be chairman, and Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, of Sewickley, whose work for the Allegheny General Hospital and the Woman's Exchange has been outstanding, will be co-chairman.

Social Registerites To Work For Affair

Committees haven't been named definitely yet. But social registerites from Sewickley and Pittsburgh will work on them. And it will probably have the backing of leading society organizations.

Park, Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. M. L. Benedum, Mrs. Carl H. Borntraeger, Mrs. Arthur E. Braun, Mrs. Frank F. Brooks, Mrs. W. Harry Brown, Mrs. John F. Casey, Mrs. James C. Chaplin, Mrs. George H. Clapp, Mrs. W. Y. Cocken, Jr., Mrs. B. B. Croup.

Many Fashionables Agree to Give Aid

Others are Mrs. George W. Crawford, Mrs. William J. Crittenden, Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., Mrs. John C. Dilworth, Mrs. Dorwin H. Donnelly, Mrs. Charles Driefus, Mrs. William M. Duff, Mrs. A. Rex Flinn, Mrs. D. B. Frampton, Mrs. Leo G. Griffith, Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, Mrs. James F. Hillman, Mrs. Joseph M. Jackson, Mrs. Karl Kaufmann and Mrs. William B. Klee.

Shoemaker, president of the Twentieth Century Club; Mrs. Ralph H. Smith, Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Mrs. Nathaniel Spear, Mrs. William Booth Trainer, Mrs. William P. Witherow.

Snow Birds Plan First Meeting Thursday

When the Snow Birds have their first meeting Thursday night at Duquesne Garden, there'll be some new young members on the committee. The Snow Birds, I might explain for the few uninitiated, are the figure skating enthusiasts among the grown-ups who meet weekly at Duquesne Garden during the late winter for Pittsburgh's only dependable winter sport.

Debutantes Maria Patton Wilson, Margaret Taylor and Virginia Evans have been added to the committee. Maria is an excellent skater, and that Margaret should be accomplished at the sport is only natural—her father and mother, the Matthew Taylors, have been Snow Birds for years. Virginia Evans has become much intrigued with the sport, too.

Others on the committee are the director, Mrs. George McClellan Kountz—she's "good," even at Lake Placid—Louise Reed, Mrs. Howard K. Walter, Charles A. Woods, Jr., Donald G. Clark, Stuart W. Goldsborough.

The hours of the session, by the way, are from 7 to 8:30 o'clock.

3 Betrothals Announced Recently

Three recent betrothal announcements of interest include two that come from Oakmont, and one from the East End.

At a bridge party in the Oakmont home of Miss Virginia Kerr Friday evening, announcement was made of the betrothal of her cousin, Miss Dorothy Kerr, to Dr. John O. Stewart, of Oakmont.

Miss Kerr, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Kerr, of Oakmont, was graduated from Allegheny College, Meadville, and is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority. Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh Dental School and is a member of Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity. No date has been named for the wedding.

And again from Oakmont comes announcement of the engagement of Miss Natalie Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will McLain Thompson, to Edward Goodwin Cahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Cahill, of New Haven, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel L. Schubart, of the East End, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Theresa Augusta Schubart, to Frank J. Laughlin, son of Mrs. Annie Laughlin, of South Winebiddle avenue.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

William R. Shulgold, one of Pittsburgh's leading artists, who did a series of drawings of socialites for the Sun-Telegraph several years ago, has always attended every concert in town.

And now he's decided to do some playing for himself. He's been taking piano lessons.

* * *

On a stormy night when something important is going on, you don't have to wear your black, every-day galoshes with your evening things. Peggy Mitchell, who came out this past fall, wears white rubber ones.

* * *

If you're one of those girls who've gone in for trains on your evening gowns this year, you've probably had your troubles when dancing.

Here's a suggestion—Eleanor McKennan has a loop of the same material fastened to the train. And when dancing, she slips the loop over her arm, and has no more train difficulty.

* * *

It's pleasant to see the David McCargoes back in town after their honeymoon. (She's the former Gretchen Bickford). They are both so young. And they are both blond and about the same height.

* * *

Have heard rumors of hand-knitted boucle evening dresses, but saw the first one worn by a tall young woman—I don't know her name—at the Josef Hofman concert Friday night. From a distance it looked a bit like crinkled crepe. It was interesting—but for evening I prefer the lustrous satins and ribbed silks which have made their appearance this year.

List of Debutantes For New Year Grows

Although definite dates are still in the offing for debut parties of next winter, already the list of girls who will bow begins to grow. Agnes Hobart, the Harold P. Hobarts' daughter, will come out, and Margaret Brown Painter, the junior Charles Albert Painters' daughter, who is a cousin of Agnes. Eleanor Merrick, daughter of the Frederick Ickes Merricks will be another and so will Alice Reed, daughter of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, and Marion MacKrell Black, daughter of Mrs. E. M. Black, of Wightman street.

James Anthony Kuhn Engaged to Marry

Announcement comes from Youngstown, O., of the engagement of Miss Franzesca Walker, daughter of Mrs. Frank Granville Walker, of Youngstown, to James Anthony Kuhn, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson Kuhn, of Woodland road.

Miss Walker attended the Northampton School for Girls and Beaver College, Philadelphia. Her fiance attended the Ashville School and in 1930 was graduated from Yale.

Miss Ferne Johnson's Betrothal Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson, of Trafford, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ferne Johnson, to Harold Schweinberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Schweinberg, of Laketon road, Wilkinsburg. No date has been chosen for the wedding.

Miss Sarah Lee Sedler To Wed Tennessee Man

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sedler, of Braddock avenue, East Pittsburgh, make known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Lee Sedler, to Martin M. Gluchow, son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Weinberg, of Jackson, Tenn.

Club Lecture Pianist First Studied Violin

George Ryall, who will furnish the piano numbers illustrative of Mark Haught's lecture before the Tuesday Musical Club tomorrow, is a native of Richmond, Va., and at an early age studied violin. After some years of this work he began his professional career, playing in trios and first violin in string quartets. Wanting to broaden his musical perspective, Mr. Ryall decided to study piano and his first instruction on this instrument was under the guidance of his sister, Mamie Ryall Coffman.

Fascinated by the piano's independence for solo playing, Mr. Ryall decided to make it his chosen instrument and after three seasons' piano study he appeared as a professional in trio and quintet ensembles and as accompanist for recitals. During the war Mr. Ryall served with the 312th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division, both at Camp Meade and in France. Since the war he has studied with Mrs. J. Smith Brockenbrough and John Powell, of Richmond, and Frank LaForge, of New York, and for five years has been appearing as soloist with marked success.

Tomorrow afternoon he will present numbers illustrating Mr. Haight's lecture on "The Romance of the Wagner Opera Countries."

Junior Club Women Urged To Become Leaders in Work for Blind

By MRS CHARLES M. BREGG

A suggestion that junior club women become "big sisters" to the sightless was made by Mrs. C. C. Taylor, State Federation chairman of the blind, at the southwestern district junior conference which was held in the Congress of Clubs Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Taylor also thanked the juniors for the watch they had given her—the first rectangular timepiece to be converted for a sightless person.

Miss Louise Cooper, the Geneva College freshman who will remain in college on the juniors' May Taylor scholarship, was presented and Mrs. Taylor mentioned the four sight-saving classes which will be introduced in public schools next fall largely as a result of the juniors' efforts.

Mrs. Joseph M. Steim, State Federation chairman of juniors, addressed the meeting, speaking on club ethics. Mrs. James Graham Chalfant, district president of the Federation, commented, in her short talk, on the efficient work of the junior club women at the October convention, and then mentioned one or two points on which juniors "slip." Juniors grow much more rapidly by correcting their own mistakes, she said, declaring that "a senior adviser has no business advising unless she's asked."

Mrs. H. D. Stark, chairman of club institutes, talked about club procedure and the necessity for developing leadership and the club editor of the Sun-Telegraph talked briefly on publicity. One of the most interesting talks of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Jan H. H. Meyer, of the New Kensington Junior Woman's Club, who had served as chairman of a committee that sold a pedigreed dog, making sufficient from the transaction to send two girls to a Scout camp this summer.

Mrs. Robert K. Cochrane, president of the Allegheny County Federation, and Miss Florence Milliken, county chairman of juniors, were other speakers. In the latter's honor her own club, the Aspinwall Junior Woman's Club, will entertain all the junior clubs in the county at a shawl exhibit and tea on January 20 in the Aspinwall clubhouse.

Dinner concluded Saturday's meeting over which Mrs. E. R. Davis presided.

A. and tomorrow before the Twenty-sixth Ward League, the Avalon League on Wednesday and on Friday evening before the Twenty-fourth Ward unit. The girls will debate the same question at the Thirty-second Ward meeting on Wednesday and the Swissvale League on Friday afternoon.

Another meeting tomorrow afternoon is that of the Twenty-seventh Ward unit which meets in Mrs. Albert Barnes Smith's home, Morrell street, to hear Mrs. W. M. Parrish speak on "Advertising and the Cost of Living."

In addition to the debate tomorrow afternoon, the Twenty-sixth Ward League is to have a soloist on its program—Miss Willa Guckert, with Miss Loretta Zinsmeister at the piano, and during the business session plans will be made for the musical comedy to be presented February 8 and 9 in Perry High School.

To find out the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column . . . CALL GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPY GLASS. Or . . . send a stamped self-addressed envelope for your reply.

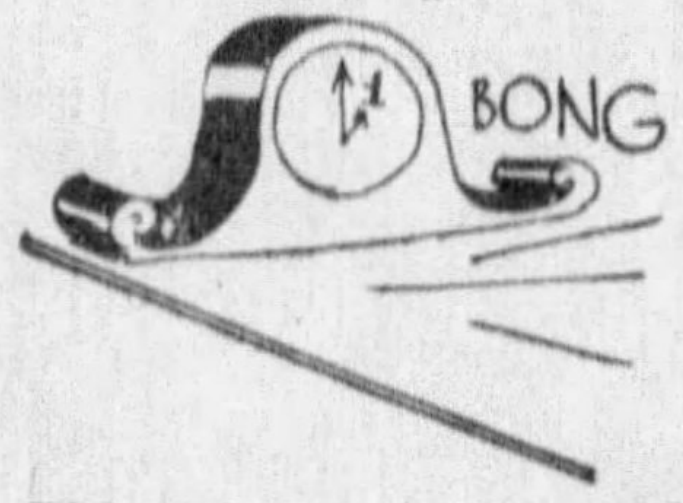
For the tired and harried businessman we would suggest the following—one of the new linen handkerchiefs . . . with narrow white hand rolled edges. These are in all navy, dark brown, pale yellow, or pale green . . . and are sufficiently exhilarating to lift up the spirits of even a mere male! $1.

* * *



Tick-tock . . . it was we who "ran up the clock" (or rather, "upon") these clocks, instead of Mother Goose's well-known mouse! And they're quite the clocks—Ingraham electric ones which are valaued as high as $10 . . . selling nowadays in these frenzied times for $2.98.

Manual starting . . . in solid walnut cases with burl walnut or inland decorations—and, better still, a 12-month guarantee! You'll love to have your "clock strike ONE with these!

* * *

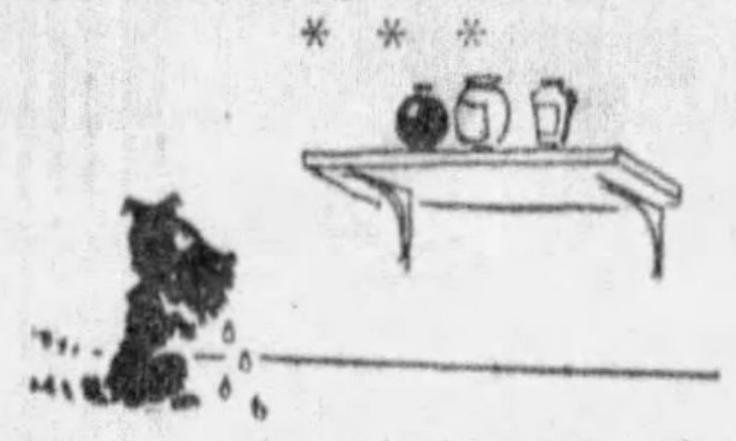
Sort of a case of getting "lit up" for the New Year, this! But we MUST take you by the hand and toddle you into the presence of these smart lamps which are groveling 'round one of the stores for the pittance of 98c! Gilt finished . . . with round or square bases. And a parchmentized shade for as little as 57c will put the finishing touches on them!

* * *

Being as how this is the time of year when our clothes begin to look green around the seams . . . we just trundled into a store looking for an inspiration in the clothes line . . . for not TOO much money! And we found . . .

Sweet things of black or navy sheers or mossy crepes . . . mostly with three-quarter sleeves . . . and crisp, refreshing spikiness of white lingerie bows, collars, "ears" and so on to enliven their lines! Only $17.55 . . . in sizes 14 to 20. (Note the hand finishing on them!)

* * *



Just one hour before we put our shophound muzzle thrrogh the door of one place, some marvelous jars of new "goo" paddled across the shelves and settled down for all and sundry to see and feast upon!

Such things as wild duck paste, turkey and ham, turkey and tongue, or plain turkey paste, partridge paste, kipper paste, and even a new version of that popular cheddar cheese and celery paste! Enough to make an hors d'oeuvre-ite jump for joy . . . and buy them in great flocks! They're three jars for $1 . . . for 35c each . . . and go a long, long way in the nibble line!

* * *

Trust the International Silver Company to come across in snooty fashion! Now they're offering a box called the Hospitality Set—consisting of a silver-plated orange strainer, ice crusher, bottle opener, corkscrew, measuring cup (two sizes), long and short spoons, and ice tongs! To make your tippling easier and more efficient, if possible! Ha! $5.

* * *

If we were a nice stalwart he-man . . . we would gallop gladly into a pair of these pajamas! New arrivals . . . all of them . . . of broadcloth in the newest styles . . . all colors and combinations . . . every type and size. And at the price of $1.35 you can afford to be a little la-de-da in your sleeping!

* * *

It seems that there is a book out for which people are all but trampling their neighbors underfoot! "Other People's Money," by Louis D. Brandeis . . . more popular than almost any other we hear . . . and now we've found it nicely and neatly done up for ONLY 15c! Others included in this jacket edition at this price are: "Alice in Wonderland," "New Testament," "Treasure Island," "Cyrano de Bergerac," "Green Mansions," and so forth. Worth noting!

* * *

If your room seems stuffy, and no matter how much you air it, there is still a sodden atmosphere, one drop of the new perfume we've found will change it!

Made especially for this purpose—just a dot of it on the electric light bulb . . . and your room will glow with a faint charm all its own! 50c.

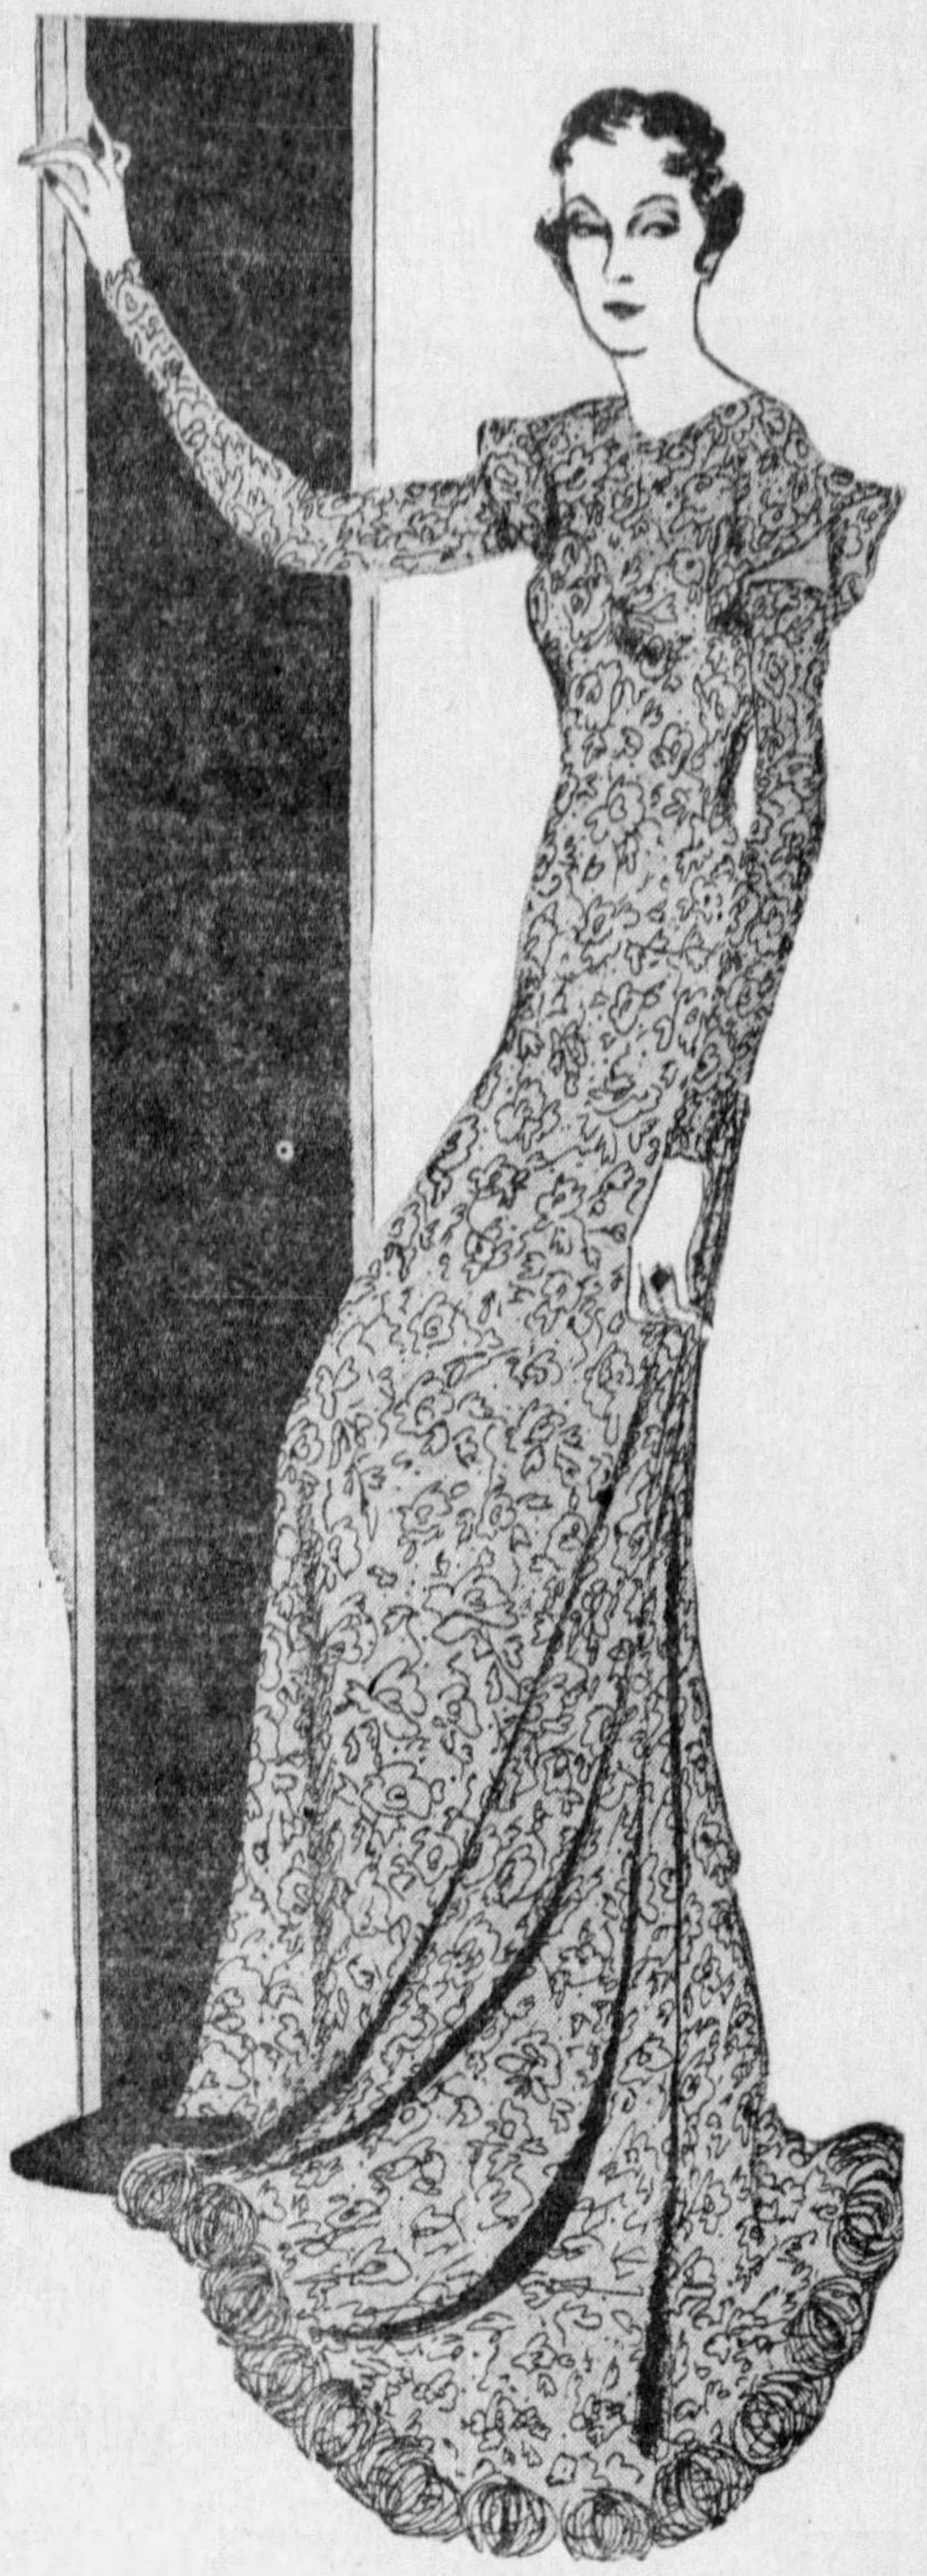
SECOND BRIDAL GOWN



This gown of unusually heavy, rich lace, in a rosy pink shade, is perfect for the second wedding gown of the girl who intends to have as elaborate ceremony as possible. The sleeves are separate from the gown, and are rolled on and up, like formal gloves.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

LOTS OF WOMEN know that all the brides do not make their vows in June or October, according to prevailing sentiment, and a word or two about new wedding gowns have a place on this page of the calendar.

The second wedding has an etiquette all its own which does not vary, even though first-time brides are playing ducks and drakes with traditional wedding fashions. Recently we had an all-black bride, which should have been enough to give Cupid the jitters, but the Marriage License Bureau reports no such reaction.

* * *

THE SECOND-WEDDING bride, however, sticks to an off-white shade for her toilette, no matter what the up and coming debutantes try out in new color schemes.

Blush pink in a dusty tone; lilac and hyacinth tints; dove gray, fuschia, beige, green if she is not superstitious, and the blue that Mrs. Roosevelt wears so effectively are all popular colors for the girl who is getting married for the second or third time.

* * *

IN THE SOUTH, the second wedding is frequently as dressy an occasion as a first wedding, due to the absolutely irrepressible giddiness of the sun and the sky.

Up here, the "dressmaker" tailleur is more usual, and at this season of the year a bright costume that can be muffled under a fur coat for the start of the honeymoon trip, right after the ceremony, is a decidedly successful choice.

B. P. W. Health Chairman Advocates Play Program

One hundred per cent health for the business women of the United States, and the wiping out of so-called "depression shock"—that is the high goal of Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, newly appointed health chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Dr. Maffett, who is a well-known physician and surgeon of Dallas, Tex., believes that business women do not have a sufficient amount of play. She practices what she preaches, being a golf enthusiast, and she is putting over a national health program for the federation which will include sports for every day in the week, including Sunday.

Dr. Maffett is the physician for women at Southern Methodist University; associate professor of gynecology at Baylor Medical College and serves on the staff of several local hospitals in Dallas where she keeps up a large private practice. She was the first president of the Texas Federation and has served as its health chairman several times.

Dr. Maffett believes that keeping physically fit has nothing to do with creeds nor schools of medical thought, but is primarily a matter which concerns the commonwealth as a whole and, more particularly, the individual.

The Nation's Laws Are As Funny

There's a handful of people around the country, who collect ridiculous and yappy songs as a hobby. They haunt the attics of friends, the old bookshops and second-hand stores, nosing out little ditties that hand them a laugh. Sometimes it is the title that brings the chuckle, but it may be the inane melody or the silly sentiment in the lyric. Glancing over some of the prizes, which range from heart pourings of Filipino bellboys to the sourest idea of Tin Pan Alley, we find these.

Here's the longest title on record for an American song: "There's a Down in Dixie Feelin' Hangin' Round me, That Only the Sound of a South Bound Choo Choo Can Cure." The frankest title is: "That Stolen Melody." Then the geographical cycle, which includes such gems as: "In My Indiana Inn"—"When I Tip Toe Up a Tuck Tuck Tucky Lane"—"My Kintucky Kin Folks"—"I Wanna See a Little More of What I Saw in Arkansaw"—"I'm Blue for Beverly Hills"—"I'm Blue for the Blue Ridge Mountains, Is the Blue Ridge Blue for Me?"—"Rock Me to Sleep in My Rocky Mountain Home"—"The Heart You Lost in Maryland, You'll Find in Tennessee"—"In Blinky, Winky, Chinky Chinatown"—"Siam and You"—"My Sighing Siamese"—"Molly Hood from Hollywood"—"In Montauk With Me" (We'll walk and talk in Montauk)—"On Our Eskimo Honeymoon" (She's waiting up by that old North Pole, God Bless Her Soul)—"Pretty Little Bom Bom from Bombay" and the immortal "Way Down in Macon, Georgia, I'll be Makin' Georgia Mine."

Then there are the tongue-twisters and puns, like: "There's Too Many Eyes That Wanna Make Eyes at Two Pretty Eyes I Love"—"Tell Me Fair, On the Square, Would You Care?"—"Moonbeams Bring Love Dreams and Love Dreams Bring Dreams of You"—"When Polly Walks Thru the Hollyhocks"—"I'm Referrin' Just to Her'n Me"—"You Better Keep Babying Baby, or Baby's Gonna Bye-Bye You"—"Say, Arabella, What's a Fella to Do?"—and "Where the Rambler Roses Ramble Round My Old Ramshackle Shack I'll Take the Road that Rambles Back to Mammy in Alabamy."

You can trace the nation's progress in these popular songs, which have so brief a life . . . From "On, On, On, the Boys Came Marching," which was the sequel to "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," to "At the Coffee Cooler's Tea," to the thousands of war songs, the ditties are a truer reflection of the nation's mind than all the dry stuff the historians cram into books. But for the last few years 500 song writers per annum have written depression ballads, only one clicking: "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?"

Who remembers "Nobody Else Can Love Me Like My Old Tomato Can" or "Wanted a Pal by the Name of Mary," in which the boy seeks a girl who "must be one of the kind who'll cling just like an old ship on a bar?" And here are a few torch tunes of yesterday and years ago: "If You Talk In Your Sleep, Don't Mention My Name" . . . "Keep Out of My Dreams (For You're Out of My Life)" . . . "I Gave You Up Just Before You Threw Me Down" . . . "Why Do You Give Your Smiles to Someone Else (And All Your Tears to Me?)" . . . "You Wanted Someone to Play With, I Wanted Someone to Love" (with ukulele arrangement) . . . "My Heart Belongs to the Girl Who Belongs to Somebody Else" . . . "If Tears Could Bring You Back to Me (I'd Cry My Eyes Out for You)" . . . And that plaintive opus, published by the author, which is tagged: "I'm Glad I Touched Shoulders With You."

Then the coy or cute song, like: "There's Just Two Things to Do On a Rainy Night (And I don't Wanna Play Cards)" . . . "I'm Flirting With You (Yoo, Hoo!)" which came long before the recent: "By a Waterfall (yoo-hoo-hoo—oooh—ooh ooh, oooh!!!)" "June, A Honeymoon and You" . . . "Venus, Heaven and You" . . . "Where the Bab Bab Babbling Brook (Goes Bub Bub Bubbling Along) and the supreme effort of three mammy song authors—who probably regret it—"Granny, You're My Mammy's Mammy." No foolin'.

Another "Mammy" song: "I'll Have the Last Waltz With Mother" contains the lines: "Her steps may not be up to the time, still she is a partner di-vine"—a beautiful rhyme-that-doesn't.

As for "Pappy" ditties, the punch-line in that heart-tugging ballad: "I Want a Pardon for Daddy" is "I know he'll go straight—if they open the gate" . . . Straight to his girl friend, probably.

No matter the matter of the moment, you may depend on the Tin-Ear lads of Tin-Pan Alley to dash off a song about it. When Caruso died we had: "They Needed a Songbird in Heaven So God Took Caruso Away" . . . As a matter of reportorial accuracy Enrico Caruso may still be seen, in a coffin in Italy . . . When a chap, whose moniker escapes us, got stuck in a cave down South—a song followed about the victim that actually became a nationwide hit! . . . They tried to put one over about Balbo's flight, in which a line ran: "Who Can Say Whoa, to Balbo?"—but it died like an opening act in Duluth, which is a healthy sign that some sheet-music buyers are regaining their minds . . . All the songs about Franklin Delano Roosevelt have aged him a little—and the reason you probably never heard "Mrs. Winchell's Boy" was that I had the composers killed.

Other flops include: "Okay, America!" and "Things I Never Knew Till Now," both of which were inspired by a columnist, who evened matters, however, by printing the real names of the writers . . . "Is My Face Red?" and "My Girl Friday" also were forgotten the moment they were dialed out, and a song called "An Orchid to You" aroused the field of columnists, who proceeded to make faces at Gordon & Revel, who wrote it.

We've had songs that had titles which became part of the vocabulary . . . "Please Go Way and Let Me Sleep," for example. The expression "Stop Making Those Goo-Goo Eyes" came from that song . . . Now "Annie Doesn't Live Here Anymore" is getting a play among the wisecrackers. But the cake-takers are these sillies: "Where Are You, Elmer Newton?"—"You're Next in the Barber Chair of Love" and "Just Like Washington Crossed the Delaware, That's How I Need You!"

One of the authors of many of the hits today, Sam Coslow, once received six sets of coats and pants for writing a radio theme song for a New York clothier named Howard. The title was, and probably still is, for all I know: "Howard a Howard Suit Suit You?"

My favorite of the ridiculous song titles, however, will always be that most touching and spellbinding ballad of unrequited love which is christened: "I'll Be Back On Firecracker Day."

Fan Letters Trouble

Pity the Hollywood postman and blame Mae West for his latest troubles, and don't forget the troubles heaped on him by Mary Pickford, Helen Twelvetrees, etc.

He is T. A. Shipman, mail clerk, whose job it is to see that each star gets his or her share of the hundreds of fan letters, many addressed incorrectly.

"I've got special mail boxes for all the stars, listed according to the studio in which they're working," explains Shipman.

"Fans seem to delight in addressing mail to their screen favorites in every way except the right one. They put a smart crack on an envelope and send it to Hollywood. Well, I have to know who it is out there that said it, so he or she will get the letter.

"Take Mae West, for instance. I didn't get a chance to see 'She Done Him Wrong' but the first thing I knew a flock of letters started coming in with only 'Come Up and See Me Sometime' written on them. I had to hurry around and catch up with my nawepaper and fan magazine reading to find out who pulled that one.

"Miss West and Mary Pickford are getting the most mail in Hollywood now. A lot of Miss Pickford's mail is just addressed to 'America's Sweetheart,' but there's plenty for Miss West with a 'sweetheart' address too.

"Then there's Helen Twelvetrees. Everyone seems to like the idea of printing the figure 12 and then sketching some trees on her mail.

"The Four Marx Brothers get a lot of it with the figure 4 and four X marks on the envelopes."

Miss Moore's Doll Palace To Travel

By HARRISON CARROLL

Miss Moore.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—After four years of building, Colleen Moore's dollhouse, with its tiny furnishings from all over the world, is nearing completion, and the star will send it on an exhibition tour to raise money for children's hospitals. This 11-room miniature house, a wish-fulfillment of Kathleen Morrison, the child, and long a hobby of Colleen Moore, the woman, is elaborate beyond the dreams of the average youngster.

On the walls of each room, some famous painter will do a mural illustrating a fairy tale.

Furniture and household equipment have been gathered from France, England, Germany, Hungary and from all over this country.

Bebe Daniels gave Colleen a set of beautiful glassware for the house. From Lilyan Tashman came a silver service in minature. Some of the utensils are in solid gold. Tony Moreno bought one of the smallest Bibles in the world for the house.

The tiny doll princess who occupies the palace was carved in ivory by Manchurian experts. She wears a platinum crown. Every prong of it is tipped with a pearl and the star in the center flashes a diamond.

While Colleen has been working on "Success Story" at RKO she hasn't had much time for her hobby. But she will finish the house this year, and send it out on its mission of charity.

* * *

Barbara Stanwyck moved her things into Ruth Chatterton's bungalow—the only bungalow on the Warner lot and thus apparently to the top-spot among the studio's feminine stars. If Barbara felt any triumph she concealed it. Yet satisfaction she must have felt, because there has been a long-standing coolness between her and Ruth Chatterton. The reason? Well it goes back to New York, and there is no use dragging it up here.

Miss Stanwyck.

There originally were two bungalow dressing rooms on the lot—one for Colleen Moore and one for Corinne Griffith. But the second is now a steam-room and bath house for studio officials.

It wasn't until the big rainstorm was over that Dolores Del Rio got her worst fright. She was just entering her Santa Monica Canyon home—it was late at night—when there came a series of crashes that shook the building. When the star and her household staff recovered sufficiently from the shock they discovered that three tall pines, transplanted by the landscape gardener, had come to earth. One had torn off part of a balcony and broken a number of windows.

* * *

Did you know: That Henrietta Crosman is so opposed to the slaughter of animals that she won't eat meat or wear furs!

* * *

The chap Sally Rand has been visiting so often at the Hollywood Hospital is Charles Mann, one of her business representatives. He has had a major operation . . . Now Christine Lee and Ricardo Cortez have postponed their wedding until he does another picture, "Hit Me Again" . . . Spencer Tracy, who usually hits the late spots, is bragging that he took Loretta Young to a picture show on New Years eve and went home at 9:40 p. m. . . . An old injury, suffered when she fell from a horse several months ago, is bothering Alice White, and she may go to the hospital for an operation . . . Clarence Brown dug into his jeans to buy Alice Joyce a big square cut diamond for Christmas . . . The storm almost marooned Mary Carlisle. Her car was the last one the rangers allowed over the ridge route . . . Hollywood's new brewery boasts a fountain that runs beer . . . Mae Clarke's new pearl ring, which some people are wondering about, is a present from Fanny Brice.

Hair Cut for Art Lost On Cagney's Boss

James Cagney's Prussian hair-cut as he embarked on "The Heir Chaser" nearly caused an executive a stroke of hysteria. To keep in character—"He's a tough lug," explained Jimmy—Cagney got the hair-cut and started to work.

After the first day's rushes the executive came chasing to find out whether Cagney had lost his mind. The very idea of getting a hair-cut without consulting the front office!

Jimmy explained about the character.

"Character!" exploded the boss. "What do you think we're selling—a character?"

Baxter Stars In Fulton

By MARGARET RUSSELL

The stolid, unromantic dependability of the American husband, versus the glamorous, suave versatility of the continental lover, constitutes the theme of "As Husbands Go," current film at the Fulton, featuring Warner Baxter and Helen Vinson, as his wife.

As husbands go, Warner Baxter is just about perfect. Too perfect for his wife, who returns home from a jaunt in Paris, filled to the ears with romantic notions inspired by a gay French moon and a debonair young English author.

What might have developed into a distressing situation when the author arrives post haste in the lady's wake, is saved in amusing fashion by the delightful eccentricities of Emmie, a family friend of uncertain age and inclinations. The light overtone of comedy supplied by Catherine Doucet as Emmie and Warner Oland as her cosmopolitan admirer, keeps the picture from being just another love-triangle problem story.

Baxter, as the bewildered, loving husband, introduces a new technique in home protection. Instead of shooting the man who threatens to ruin his happiness (in the time-honored fashion of melodrama), he takes him fishing and gets him drunk. All drunks are pals and so were they. Thoroughly inebriated, the young author's better instincts come to the fore and he scrams out of the picture.

Catherine Doucet and G. P. Huntley, Jr., as the author, newcomers both, are delightful, Catherine Doucet consistently, and Huntley especially in the drunken scene with the to-be-wronged husband.

In addition to the feature, an animated Krazy Kat cartoon, "The Bill Poster" and Hearst Metrotone News, there is a camping picture, "Itchy-Scratchy," with a dog and a baby bear as the principle characters and a bunch of scenery, shots in Canada and Alaska, as fresh and lovely as a breath of the northwoods, and a blessed relief from the musical shorts inflicted in nearly every movie program today.

Miss Twelvetrees Gets Best Seller

Helen Twelvetrees has been engaged to play the feminine lead opposite Hugh Williams, English actor, in Fox's forthcoming version of Richard Aldington's best seller, "All Men Are Enemies." Mona Barrie will play the other feminine part in the picture. George Fitzmaurice will direct the film.

Miss Windsor Returning

Claire Windsor is returning to the screen somewhat cheered.

It's something, she thinks, to have had one's acting ability authenticated by judicial decree, and Claire achieved the distinction recently when the court favored her agent in a theatrical producer's suit based on the charge that Claire, signed for a stage role, couldn't act it. The judge said the producer was wrong.

But Miss Windsor says she would rather stick to pictures, anyway. Worrying over her "personal troubles"—such as that alienation of affections suit—has taken too much of her time, she says.

"My mind is made up to concentrate on the screen now."

The "comeback" picture is "Swan Song," in which Claire plays the mother of Anita Louise, with Johnny Mack Brown and Kenneth Thomson in the cast.

Joe Cook, once called "the one-man vaudeville show," will head the cast of "Hold Your Horses," the New York Winter Garden musical comedy, that comes to the Nixon tonight for one week, prior to a Chicago engagement that is to open Sunday, January 14. Joe Cook, who does not believe in doing anything ever done before if he can help it, is said to be presenting more crazy inventions and more silly situations than ever before. He has with him, of course, the imbecilic Dave Chasen, who is to Cook what ham is to eggs or corned beef to cabbage. But all is not grotesque in "Hold Your Horses." Harriet Hoctor, is its dancing star. Also there is Tom Patricola, singer and dancer; Frances Upton, screen and stage star, and many others, including a beauty division.

Greta Garbo's first picture since her return to America after fulfilling her oft-repeated threat, "Ay tank Ay go home now," is coming to the Nixon next week. This would be "Queen Christina," in which John Gilbert, who was co-starred with Miss Garbo in silent films, is her leading man. "Queen Christina" will open next Monday evening, and will be shown twice daily thereafter. The cast includes Lewis Stone, Ian Keith and Elizabeth Young.

George White's "Scandals," now in the Pitt on a five-shows-a-day grind, with Shaw and Lee, Loomis Sisters and Lucille Page among its featured artists, will remain only through Thursday. Friday another musical stage attraction, "Shuffle Along," with an all-Negro cast, will come along. Included in the company will be Flournoy Miller, of the Miller and Lyle team, and Geneva Washington. Also Eubie Blake and his orchestra.

* * *

"Berkeley Square" will be the feature in the Fulton Thursday, the present attraction, "As Husbands Go," being confined to four days to permit the Fulton to resume its regular Thursday opening, abandoned for the holiday season. Leslie Howard, stars in "Berkeley Square," as he did in the play of the same title. Heather Angel, in the film, has the role played by Margalo Gillmore on the stage.

It was necessary last week to halt production on "David Harum" while Will Rogers, its star, went to a radio to listen to President Roosevelt delivering his message to Congress.

Frank Buck, just back from Asia, reports he has succeeded in making an excellent motion picture record of his big game activities. He is also bringing back to the United States a large shipment of animals captured during his trip through the jungles of India and Malay. The shipment includes a young male Indian rhinoceros which was captured in Nepal, native state of Northern India and last stronghold of the nearly extinct species. It is possibly the most valuable animal in captivity in the world today. Buck's "Wild Cargo" is expected to greatly excel "Bring 'Em Back Alive." "Wild Cargo" will be released by RKO early in 1934.

"To direct a Chinese picture, do as the Chinese do" seems to be the motto of George Hill, director of "The Good Earth," Irving G. Thalberg's forthcoming production for M-G-M. Hill is studying the Chinese language, already is able to ask for anything to eat or wear, and to give simple directions. In case he goes to China for the picture, Hill hopes to be able to make himself well enough understood to converse on simple matters with the natives. James Lee, Chinese student at U. S. A., is his teacher.

Robert Montgomery and Madge Evans, it is reported, were sitting for a photographer in the corner of the "Fugitive Lovers" set. The photographer demanded a pose of Madge holding Bob's head against her shoulder. Several minutes elapsed while lights and camera were adjusted. As the photographer was about to say "still!" Ted Healy and his three stooges appeared evidently from nowhere, singing at the top of their lungs the lullaby: "Hold Me!"

The first George Bernard Shaw play to reach the screen, "The Devil's Disciple," will have John Barrymore as the star. It is a story of colonial America.

Fifi Dorsay Member Of Big Family

The Fifi Dorsay-Maurice Hill wedding reception at Lew Cody's home featured a free-hand discussion by the bride on children.

"I'm one of 12 children, and I have an aunt who had 22," said Fifii. "But Maurice is the only son of an only son of an only son! Me—I shall have to compromise and have only six babies!"

More Tales From Hollywood

AMBASSADOR HOTEL, LOS ANGELES, Cal.—The actor, once a star and now a hasbeen, stood in front of a local theater and gazed mournfully at the passersby. He saw a friend of other years, reports Barry Trivers, and he leaped forward.

"Joe," he cried happily, "I sure am glad to see you. How are you, Old Pal?"

The old friend was plenty chilly. It was obvious that he expected a touch. The actor smiled sadly.

"Don't worry, Joe. I'm not going to hit you for any dough. It's just that I wanted a handshake and a friendly glance. Things have been pretty rotten for me lately. And the last thing that happened was the worst of all."

"So?" said Joe. "What happened?"

The other man sighed.

"Well," he asserted, "you know my history. Once a big star. Then along came the talkies, and I was relegated to bits. From bits, I went down to the level of an extra. And, finally, I was unable to find work even as an extra.

"About two weeks ago a man came to me with a highly insulting proposition. He wanted me to play in one of those terrible pictures they show only at stag parties. Imagine asking me to take part in such a rotten affair.

"My first thought was to hit him on the chin. But self-preservation came first. The money he offered was a great temptation. I hadn't eaten a square meal in days. I struggled with myself. I tried hard to decline the filthy proposition. I really did.

"But, in the end, I yielded. The shame of it was horrible to me. But, heaven help me, I played in the picture."

Be bowed his head. And the other man felt sorry for him.

"It's too bad," he sympathized. "But I don't think you should feel so rotten about it. After all, things were pretty tough for you. You really couldn't help yourself. You needed the money, and it was your one chance to get some.

"So cheer up. Stop reproaching yourself for doing something that almost anyone might have done in your position."

The actor looked up. He clenched his fists.

"That isn't it," he bellowed. "There's something worse than that. I saw the reel last week—and my part had been cut out." . . .

A GENTLEMAN named Harold Austin is well known out here for his pictures of animal life. He specializes in odd presentations of this type, and has been successful in shooting some really fine material.

For several weeks past he has been making another feature on the Gobi Desert, in Nevada. It is to be a weird sort of thing, and it is based on the eternal struggle of both man and beast for water. For weeks on end Austin has been attempting to depict the sufferings of people and animals when deprived of water.

The New Year rolled around, and Austin decided to spend a few days with his family in Hollywood. He flew back in time to strike the recent California storm disaster—and found his entire house and neighborhood flooded with water. . . .

THE two most successful song-writers in America today are Harry Gordon and Mack Revel. In the short space of a year they have batted out "Harlem Moon," "Uptown Low-down," "Past, Present and Future," the phenomenal "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" and many others too numerous to mention.

I rejoice in their success, because they haven't changed one bit since the days when they were attempting to write songs for Ziegfeld in the last "Follies" that poor Flo ever did. I use the word attempting because these two chaps were never really given an opportunity to show what they could really do.

Ironically enough, Flo, was always seeking a song hit, and he was willing to pay a fortune for it. But he wanted to deal only with song-writers of established reputations. And even though he had Gordon and Revel under contract—and even though they played for him several of the tunes that later became tremendous hits—he ignored the boys because they hadn't proved their worth. Today, were he alive, he would gladly admit his mistake and pay them thousands a week to write for him. He was that kind of a guy.

But that's beside the point. Gordon and Revel are the same boys in success as they were in the struggle for it. Although the toasts of Hollywood at the moment, they are still real, still unaffected.

I wish them well. . . .

SITTING in a corner of the Colony Club, Joe Mankiewicz unfolded the story of the bum who asked a passerby for $2. The man, amused by this tremendous nerve, handed over the money after a short conversation.

Some twenty minutes later the generous bird entered a restaurant and blinked his eyes in amazement. For there sat the bum at a front table, just about to dig into a large plate of caviar.

The former gent tapped the bum on the shoulder.

"Hey, you," he cried. "What's the big idea? I give you $2 for a square meal, and now I find you ordering caviar. You raven't the right to do that, I tell you. You haven't the right."

The bum pushed his plate back, and looked up angrily.

"What is all this?" he cried. "When I haven't got money, I can't eat caviar. When I finally get money, I can't eat caviar. For heaven's sake, when am I going to eat caviar?"

New Contract For Rogers

Will Rogers has signed a new long term contract with Fox Films. This continues the successful association of star and company that began with "They Had To See Paris" in 1929.

Since his first appearance as a Fox star, the cowboy-humorist-actor has made 13 productions. He is working now in "David Harum," a screen adaptation of the American novel about a country banker and a horse trader, by Edward Noyes Westcott.

Rogers has steadfastly retained his reputation as one of the most popular of American screen actors. His characterizations have been chiefly "native American" in which he could express the philosophy of the typical rural citizen.

Zasu Pitts, who appeared opposite Will Rogers in "Mr. Skitch," has been retained by Fox to appear in the screen version of Ishbel Ross's novel, "Promenade Deck."

DeMille Sees The Joke

A new anecdote concerns the quavering extra girl who was reprimanded by Cecil B. DeMille for talking when he was trying to give orders in a mob scene. He called for silence, and snapped out:

"Young lady, you'll come to the front of the crowd and tell everybody what you said or you'll be barred from the studio for good."

The girl advanced, faced the director and the mob, and, trembling between the devil and the deep, blurted out:

"I said 'I wonder when the old bald-headed rascal is going to call lunch.'"

DeMille led the laughter (on a DeMille set DeMille leads everything) and sent the girl to her place with a friendly pat on the shoulder.

"The old bald-headed rascal is going to call lunch any minute now," he said.

Whatch your teeth, fellows? Are they clean and bright? Do you have a tooth that hurts you? Do your gums bleed when you brush them? The way to be sure your teeth are all right is to let a dentist examine them.

See a dentist twice a year at least. If your tooth hurts, go to the dentist right away. Even if you don't have your second teeth yet, go to the dentist if your "baby" teeth hurt you. Your "baby" teeth have a lot to do with the condition of your "permanent" teeth.

We have heard today that we have a new patrol now in McClellandtown, Pa. Some of the girls who belong to it are Helen Kuba, Millis Cavalcante, Charmaine Frost, Jean Nairn, Betty Nairn, Margaret Mathis, Martha Gloster, Nellie McArdle, Marie Cavalcante, Mae Johnson and Barbara Lee Hart. Write us again, girls, and let us know who your captain is.

Now here is an enthusiastic letter from William Rush, of 1025 Rue Grand Vue, Elliott. He writes:

"I would like to join your club. I read about it every day. I have a bunch of boys and girls interested. I can get up more members, more patrols, more everything. In fact, I'm so interested I wish to tell you so much. I also would like to be the searching reporter of the Junior Patrol and get your captains to meet. If they meet write and tell me where, for I have a lot to discuss.

"Send me details on how you think the meetings should be run. My idea is to salute the flag, sing "America," read rules, business, then entertainment, and sing a club song. By the way, do you have a club song. If so, please send it to me.

"I hope Spike likes his monkey, the one he got from his brother. By the way, have you a motto for a club? I haven't seen it yet if there is one.

"I promise to keep the rules. Has the Junior Patrol held any theater parties? There's an IDEA. I had a lot of experience in being a captain and other things. I have lots of ideas and boy do I like to be a member myself. I have an idea we can beat any club in town."

We are happy to see you try, William. But organize your own Junior Patrol first! With at least 10 members! Your ideas are good ones, and thank you lots. Yes, we are going to try to put some of them into effect pretty soon. Watch for them.

CHAPMAN'S PAL SLAIN IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Frank Schaeffer, who escaped with Gerald Chapman from the federal penitentiary at Atlanta in 1923, was shot to death in the theatrical district early yesterday by an unidentified gunman in a taxicab.

Three shots were fired as the cab cruised along Seventh avenue. One bullet struck Schaeffer, another wounded Dave Backrack, an ex-convict, and the third crashed through a cafe window and fell on a steam table.

Schaeffer, 40 years old and a known criminal for 23 years, sprawled on the sidewalk. Spectators screamed and the cab sped away. An extra police detail was called out.

It was on March 27, 1923, that Schaeffer, who died with $2 in his pocket, and Chapman made their way to freedom from the cells of the Atlanta Penitentiary. Chapman was captured not many miles away, near Athens, Ga., in a gun fight. Later, Chapman was hanged in Connecticut for murder.

Aspell was found on a roadside near his home by a motorist early today and taken to the County Hospital at Woodville, where he died. The autopsy performed by Coroner's Physician J. W. McMeans revealed the alcoholism, the physician said, and that the other injuries were superficial.

NEW THRILLER -:- Ralph H. Smith Testimonial -:- ON AIR TONIGHT

Dramatize Collision of Worlds

"Two Worlds Collide," a thriller of catastrophe, picturing a star smashing into the world, is to be dramatized over WCAE in a series of nightly episodes beginning tonight at 7:15.

Unlike the general run of radio dramas in which the cast dwindles down to a small group of players as the story progresses, the personnel in Ed Harvey's cast enacting "Two Worlds Collide" increases from time to time.

Toward the end of the serial it becomes the largest assembly of radio players ever heard on the air, with Helen Wayne in the leading feminine role.

* * *

SMITH HONORED

A testimonial dinner to Judge Ralph H. Smith is broadcast over KQV and WJAS tonight, KQV carrying the festivities from 9:30 until 11, and WJAS joining the broadcast at 10:30.

Among the speakers are Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Judge Samuel H. Gardner and Judge Smith.

Victor Saudek's symphonic dance orchestra, a 75-voice choir and a quartet furnish the music.

* * *

Samuel DiPrimio, operatic tenor of Greensburg, begins a series of Monday night recitals with Aneurin Bodycombe, pianist as accompanist. DiPrimio's new series is scheduled at 10.

* * *

HUNTSMAN

"The Wild Huntsman," Caesar Franck's seldom-heard symphonic poem, is heard as the Philadelphia Symphony presentation tonight at 8, over WJAS.

* * *

John L. Fogarty, tenor, returns to the air tonight at 9:30, over KDKA, as guest of Josef Pasternack and his Melody Moments orchestra.

* * *

Lawrence Tibbett is again featured over WCAE, at 8:30, singing excerpts from "Emperor Jones," and several light opera selections. William Daly's orchestra furnished Tibbett's accompaniment.

In World Collision

Helen Wayne, WCAE dramatic star, plays the leading role in "Two Worlds Collide," new serial drama beginning over the Sun-Telegraph station tonight at 7:15. Miss Wayne also has the leading role in "Up Pops the Devil," comedy to be given by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse in the Hotel Schenley Theater Wednesday night.

CBS Scoops Both Waring Broadcasts

By AIRCASTER

Oh! oh! Have you heard about CBS "stealing" away the Fred Waring show that was to divide its time between the two rival networks, starting February 4?

Well, NBC loses the show, and Waring takes two half hours a week at CBS-WJAS instead.

Beginning on the aforementioned date, the Waring program takes from 8:30 to 9 Sunday nights and 9:30 to 10 Thursday nights.

The one show cuts in 30 minutes against Eddie Cantor and the other may divert attention from WEAF'S "Showboat" for half its period.

And Waring is plotting to make it a variety show, with fresh guest stars at each performance.

The trouble at NBC was that the auto sponsor, like many a driver, was in a hurry and couldn't wait until satisfactory time was cleared.

The Thursday Waring bills shift the CBS California Melodies around to another spot yet to be picked.

* * *

RUBIN-OFF

Rubinoff, the fellow with the wiolin, and chief stooge for Eddie Cantor, formed a dance orchestra last week.

It's altogether dissociated with his Sunday night studio orchestra. It will play in a New York hotel.

WEAF and WJZ had arranged to schedule it four times a week, and the bosses said O. K.

But sponsors have a way of reversing themselves, and now they have forbidden Rubinoff to go on the air with any other music than that which supports Cantor.

So the Rubinoff studio band is on and the Rubinoff dance band is off.

* * *

MAUDE ADAMS

Maude Adams, for years a leading light on the American stage, makes her radio debut at WEAF next Friday night and will start a series of dramatic revivals with "The Little Minister."

You'll be hearing the Nathal Kroll Band, a new outfit to the air, on electrical transcriptions all over the land within two weeks.

NBC has arranged to continue the Dick Leibert organ recitals with John Fogarty, tenor, from Radio City, indefinitely.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Time prohibited me from asking Warden John McNeil all the questions I would like to have asked while he was on the air Saturday night at 6:30. He knows some real stories.

Did you know that 13 years ago when a man was condemned to death he was hanged by the sheriff in a small courtyard of the jail on Ross street? If you peer out from the bars of the jail office window you still see the scaffold supports. Nice pleasant thought. It was the warden's job to get the man ready and hand him out to the Sheriff. Our warden acted in about 50 of those legal events.

He has a good story of a man who planned an escape after his conviction. The "Bridge of Sighs" which arches over Ross street between the courthouse and the jail was not very high from the street in the days before the hump was cut. This convict had arranged for a wagon load of hay to pass under the bridge at the precise moment he was being escorted across. He attempted to leap from a window of the archway to the hay pile below, but an elert guard broke up the play.

Tom Biggs, the traffic officer at the corner of Main street and Wabash avenue, has some staunch well-wishers in the West End. Several globe trotters have asked me to mention that more than being an efficient traffic man, he is looked upon as a hero and good pal by the school children.

Worried Mother—Most assuredly I would go to the police. Explain your predicament and give what information you have. Go to detective headquarters at No. 1 Police Station, First and Short streets.

There is a real chance open to somebody around 55 years of age, but I'm not going to be able to help Mrs. R. S., who has a fine bank account, wants a man not too dead but not too lively to share his life with her.

I'll help anybody to the best of my ability, but I draw the line here. I can get into enough trouble without trying.

Nix on leading with my chin.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

"Ragtime Annie" hits the air waves tonight as the feature of the "Barnyard Frolics" at 8.

Paul Gannon sings "Angel's Serenade," by Braga, as the high spot of his 6:45 "Eventide Songs."

Other local acts—Jimmy DePalma on the early evening schedule; Moyer's Hawaiians at 6:15 and Eddie Peyton, 11:30.

Stephen C. Foster Honored on Air

Stephen C. Foster, Pittsburgh composer, will be honored in two special anniversary broadcasts Saturday night, January 13.

WCAE feeds the NBC Red network a program dramatizing the highlights of Foster's life and a Foster musical medley played by the WCAE orchestra.

Earlier in the evening, KDKA broadcasts the Foster memorial meeting in Carnegie Music Hall.

With Permission

IT'S SAFE to say we won't see this gentleman when the big excitement starts at Harris' next Thursday morning.

NEW DICTATOR BOSSES CAROL

International News Service.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 8.—A new dictator stepped upon the European stage today in the wake of the assassination of Premier Ion G. Duca.

He was Nicholas Titulescu, powerful foreign minister in many Rumanian cabinets, now actual director of the government. He forced King Carol to obey his wishes as the only condition upon which he would accept the foreign portfolio in the new government of Premier-Designate George Tatarescu.

Titulescu asked and obtained the resignations of four of the king's closest aides. In addition widespread changes were effected in the foreign office, the war office, and the police department.

With the Rumanian crisis bubbling near the danger point and with much depending upon Titulescu's participation in the new government, the veteran foreign minister consented to take part only if things were run his way, even though this meant the ousting of Carol's friends.

Land Plane Speed Record Set in France

ISTRES, France, Jan. 8.—(AP.) A new world land plane speed for 1,000 kilometers (approximately 622 miles) course was set yesterday by the French pilot M. Massotte, who flew it in two hours 47 minutes 31 seconds.

Massotte averaged 358.2 kilometers an hour. The former record, 347.8, was held by the German flier Hunkel.

Boarder, Fearing Poison, Kills Pair

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Fearing, he said, that they planned to put poison in his food, Michael Michereis, 52, yesterday killed Joseph Ernyes, 69, and Ernyes' wife Julia, 67, with whom he boarded.

Both victims were shot, and the woman was stabbed five times. Michereis surrendered.

FRANCE CHECKS SPY PLOTS

PARIS, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—France, already engrossed in the investigation of an alleged international espionage ring here, today watched new unfoldment of two separate spy trails.

At Metz, near the mandated Saar area which has yet to show whether its allegiance is to France or Germany, further inquiry into the case of Sophie Drotz was proving "fruitful," in the language of a police announcement. "La Belle Sophie," arrested last October, is in jail charged with obtaining a new model French machine gun for German agents.

On the southeastern frontier an Italian workingman is in custody. It was reported he had boasted of possessing photographs of a new type machine gun and of frontier fortifications.

Meanwhile, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon Switz, American couple, face at least another month's detention here, accused of complicity in a ramified plot involving persons of many nationalities.

Connecticut Woman Sculptor Wins Prize

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gladys Edgerly Bates, of Mystic, Conn., is the winner of the medal of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors for the best work in the forty-third annual exhibit of the society. She entered a sculptured figure entitled "Noah's Wife," which also received a cash award of $175.

Auto Hits Pole, Woman Injured

Agnes Moore, 21, of 5149 Friendship avenue, suffered lacerations early today when an automobile driven by A. G. Wendell, 33, of 812 Spring Garden avenue, struck a pole in Sandusky street to avoid collision with a machine driven by Howard P. Ober, 20, of 354 Chalfont street, as it emerged from Reiseck way.

Holy Year 'Talkie' Filmed at Vatican

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 8.—(Universal.—A complete sound film of major holy year ceremonies in the Vatican has been completed, and today preparations were made to show them to Pope Pius, who ordered the picture to be taken. It is the first complete film ever "shot" within the Vatican walls.

In addition to religious functions in which the Pope participated, the film includes scenes of the various pilgrimages to Rome during the holy year. Several parts of the film are accompanied by the chorus of the Sistine Chapel.

LEAGUE SEEKS CHACO PEACE

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The League of Nations Peace Commission announced today its determination to continue efforts to end the bloodshed between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Chaco boreal.

There were no reports of a resumption of hostilities, but Paraguay's flat rejection of eleventh hour pleas for an extension of the armistice left no doubt of its intention to resume the campaign.

Bench Selection Again Proves Smith Leader

By MARK SHIELDS

Mark Shields

Appointment of Attorney Joseph A. Richardson as judge of the County Court is another evidence of the fact that Judge Ralph H. Smith of Common Pleas Court is without question the Pinchot leader in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. There was not previously much question of this, but all doubts to the most obtuse are resolved by the naming of Mr. Richardson.

It is true that Senators William D. Mansfield and Frank J. Harris echoed Judge Smith's recommendation, but their views, especially that of Senator Harris, would not have had much weight without the leadership of the young judge of Common Pleas Court.

Mr. Richardson, a former assistant United States District Attorney when Judge Smith served in the same office, managed the campaign of Judge Smith in the primary last year.

The appointment of Mr. Richardson, assaying the cold politics of the situation, means that his friends will be asked to support Gov. Pinchot if he becomes a candidate for the United States Senate in the May Republican primary, as he unquestionably will.

Judge Smith will, of course, do the same, and it is assumed that Senator Mansfield also will be found in the Governor's corner. Senator Harris, however, has not committed himself, even inferentially, which is probably the reason his suggestions as to patronage are not final in their influence at the Governor's office.

* * *

Younger Leadership Of Politics Organizing

The activities of Judge Smith indicate the formation of a younger group for political action in Allegheny County. This policy will be accentuated if eventually Robert Waddell should become head of the new Registration Commission after Gov. Pinchot signs the permanent registration bill.

Most of the younger group being gathered are members of the Republican party, or at least have registered as Republicans. They are not, however, affiliated with the regular Republican organization, and are not to be considered as remotely connected with the Young Republicans, a politically adolescent army formed by the regulars as an auxiliary of the professional Republican State committee chieftains.

The Young Republicans, for a time headed by Charles Carroll, of Philadelphia, were as conservative as State Chairman Edward Martin, having no comprehension whatever of the progressive principles which have swept the state to the detriment of their party, and which usually prove attractive to youth.

In their leadership they were as much committed to a policy of anti-social legislation as was the most loyal follower of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy. Not much party rehabilitation can be expected from youth with that mental bent.

However, this had nothing to do with the resignation of Carroll as president, an incident which occurred during the last special session, and which passed off with hardly a ripple, the regular Republican oldsters being interested in more important matters. A new president will be chosen shortly, but he will be a president dictated by the Republican old guard, and not a product of any spontaneous outburst by the children's crusade.

There will be less regimentation to the Young Democrats, who are to meet in Harrisburg in two weeks and prepare for the May primary. This meeting will be a scintillant affair, for young Democrats are as much given to contention and conflict as are their oldsters. They have also, on their side, the fact that the pattern of their party more nearly meets the demands of youth, and can go before the public with a more earnest zeal.

Registration Law Fails To Satisfy Reformers

Mention above of the Pittsburgh permanent registration bill serves as introduction to the fact that the bill has not proved satisfactory to all election reformers, and that some are asking the Governor to veto it. Albert Maris, of Philadelphia, one of the leaders of the Pennsylvania Elections Association, is understood to have asked the Governor to veto the bill.

Senator Frank J. Harris today said that he and his associates were for the measure. The registration bill of the 1933 regular session was so emasculated that the Senator rightly asked that it be vetoed, and it was.

This bill, however, while not offering everything the election reform group asked, is an excellent start. If it did no more than wipe out the old system of permitting registration until the Saturday before a Tuesday primary election, it would be a tremendous step forward. It does that and more.

It is not a perfect bill. Fraud can be practiced, and will be until human nature becomes perfect, no matter what the law. But it is far better than the present system.

Should there be a fight on this bill by the forces which promoted its passage the skeptical and the cynical unquestionably will conclude that the eastern election reform group would rather have a political issue than a new law, for they cannot get at one bite everything they want. Certainly the group for advancement of election safeguards will not put themselves in such a position of suspicion. Senator Harris has made his position clear.

EXTENSION OF CWA JOBS HERE HELD SURE

REALTY WORTH 373 MILLIONS UNTAXED

County Board Bares Huge Exempted Holdings Here

Real estate holdings, with a valuation totaling nearly 373 million dollars, are exxempt from the county taxes, according to a report of the County Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes.

This includes properties owned by churches, schools, municipalities and public utilities. This exempt property added to the property owned by the county makes up approximately 23 per cent of the total real estate valuation in the entire county.

The exempt properties and the districts in which they are located are as follows:

Townships, $33,788,710; boroughs, $61,325,740; Clairton and Duquesne, $4,162,440; McKeesport, $8,577,850, and Pittsburgh, $256,101,415. There are 2,928 separate pieces of property exempt from county taxes.

SURVEY UNDER WAY

Although the county owns approximately 2,000 pieces of property, only 60 pieces are listed in the tax books, the valuation of the listed properties being $19,560,555. These are properties for which deeds are held and which are properly registered in the county's name. The remainder, more than 1,900 pieces, were taken in condemnation proceedings, in the widening of highways and in other improvements. A survey is now under way to have all these properties recorded in the county's name and then put up for sale.

Of the $19,560,555 valuation of the 60 pieces of county property, more than 13 million dollars of it is located in the First, Second and Fourth wards, where the Court House, the Morgue, the City County Building, Old City Hall, New County Office Building, Jail, Memorial Hall and Juvenile Court properties are situated.

Exclusive of county owned property, the valuation of exempt property in the First Ward amounts to $30,014,850. The Second Ward valuation on exempt property totals $30,531,110.

EXEMPT PROPERTIES

Using the first two wards as an example, the following list shows the tax exempt properties. First Ward owners and valuation:

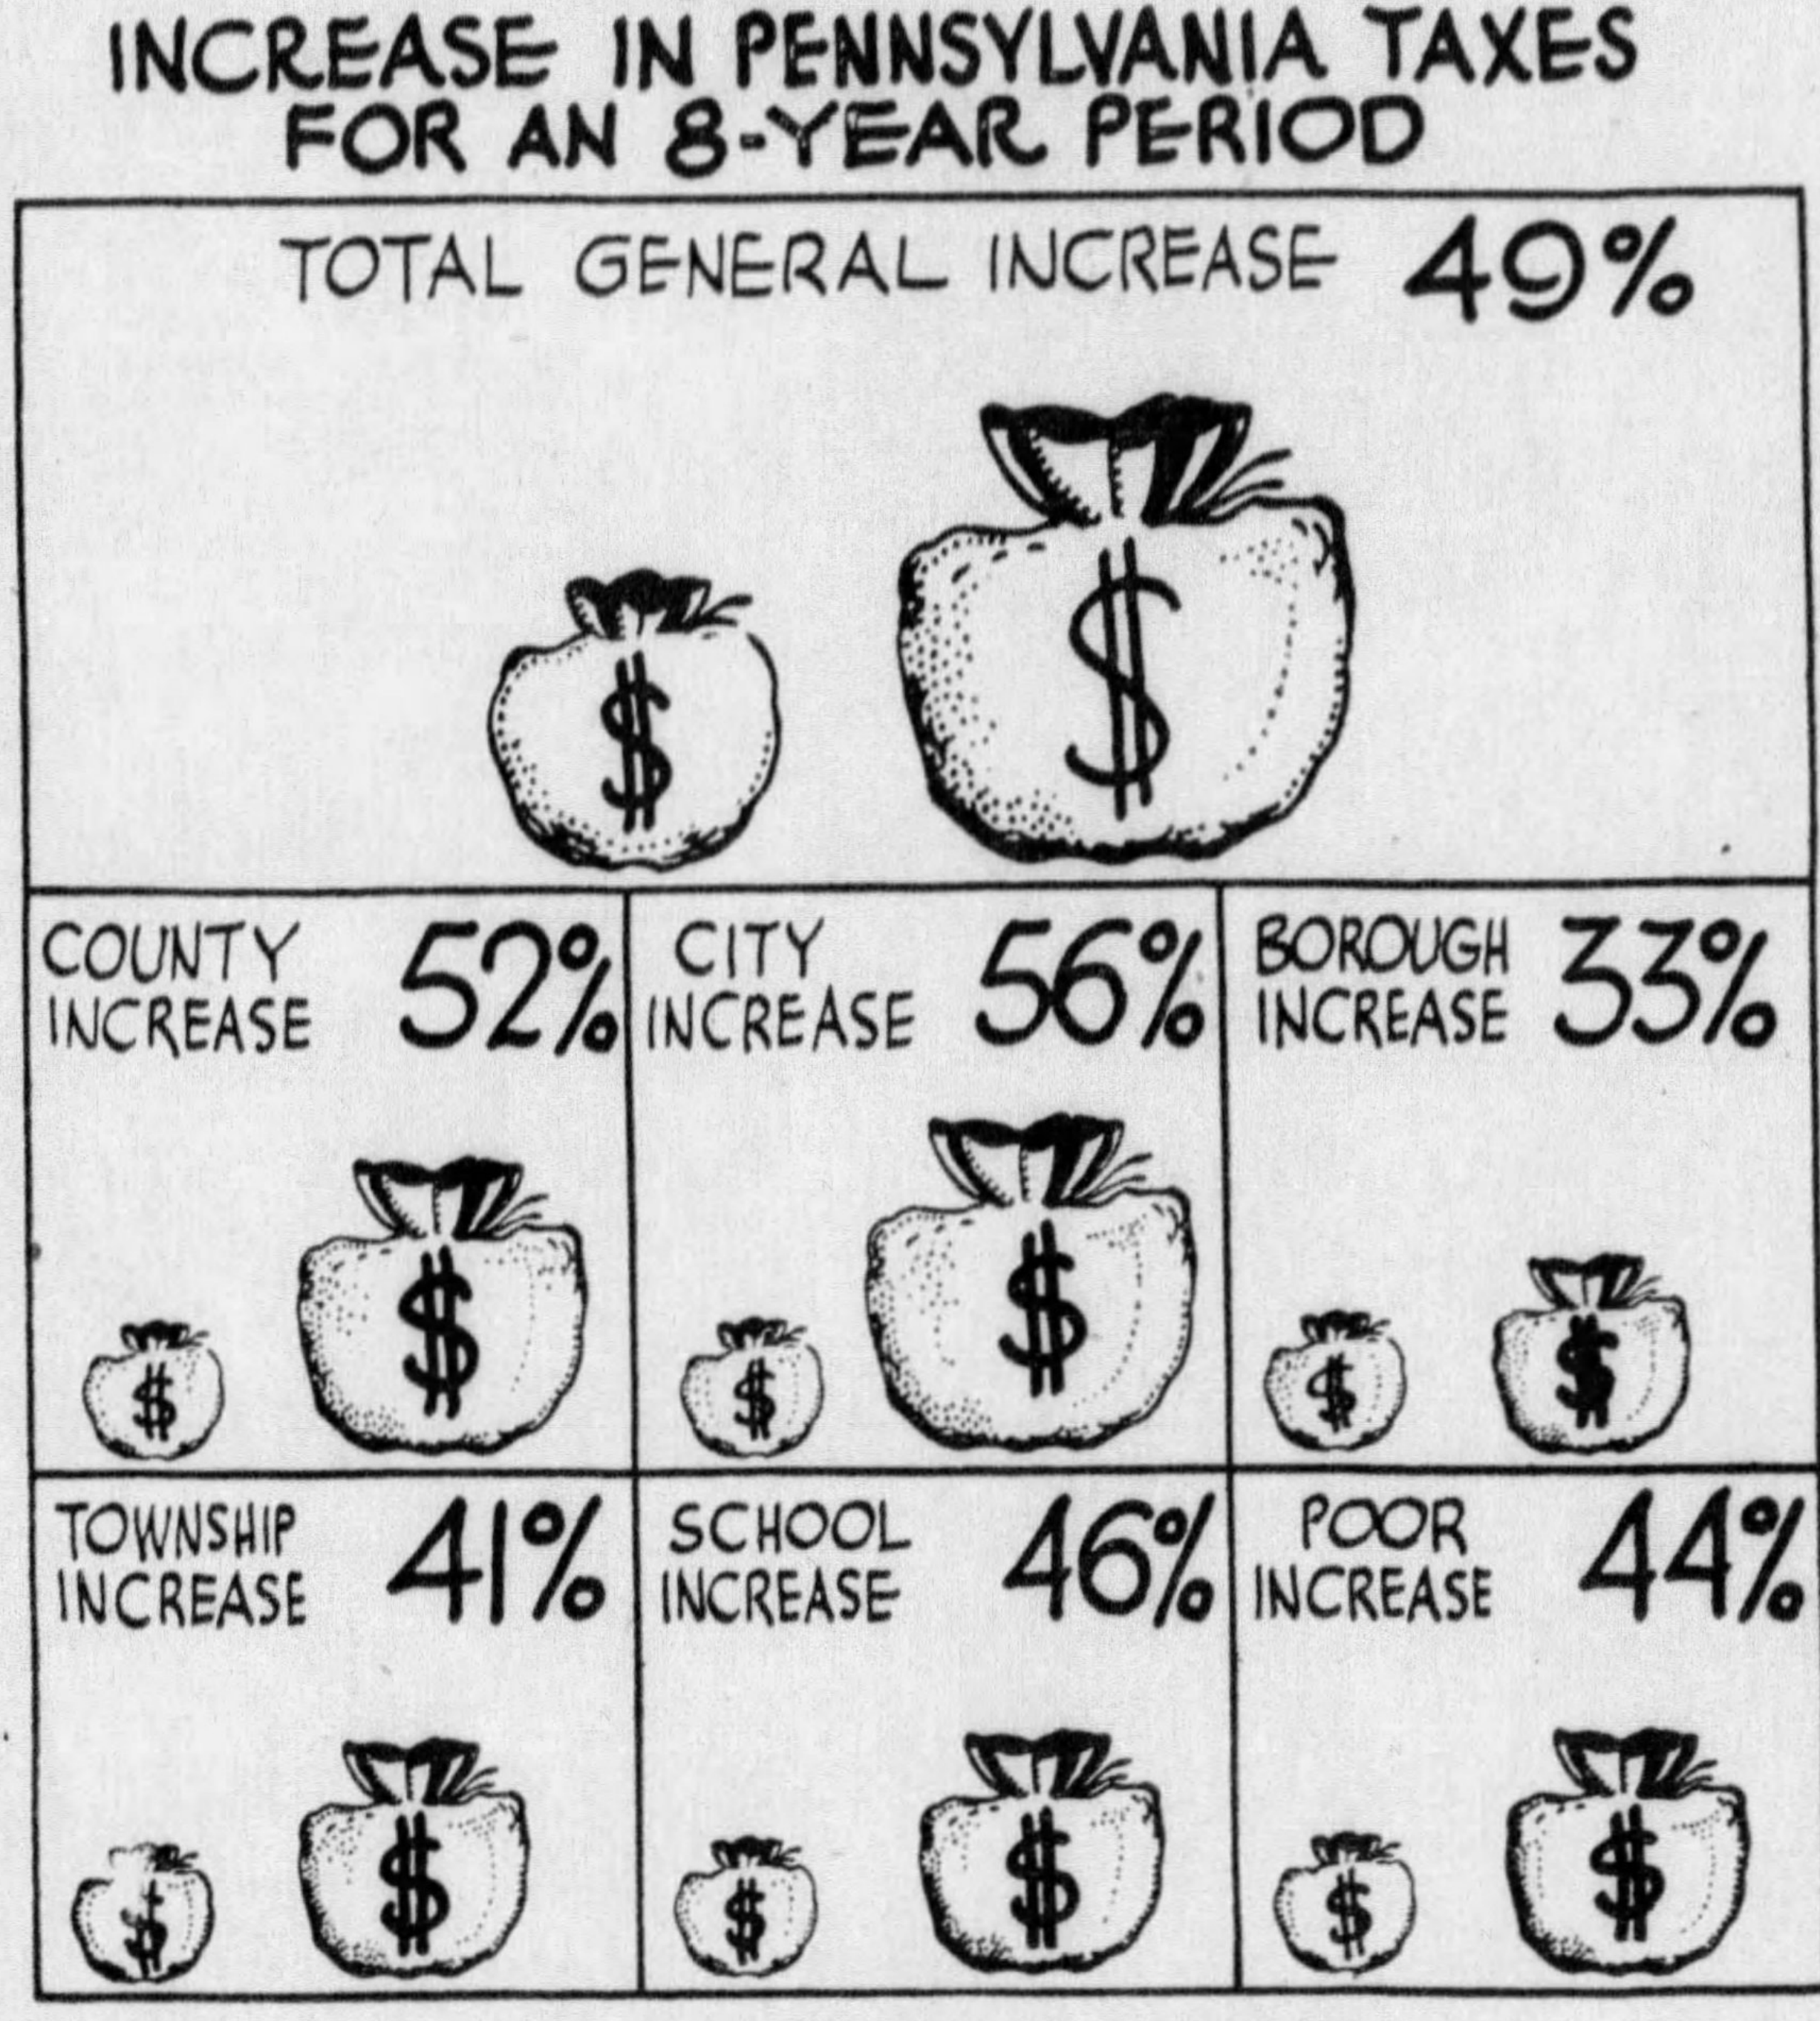
Duplications in Government Cost Heavily Here; 250 Tax-Levying Bodies in County Alone

One Family in Each 11 on a Payroll, Not Relief

Pinchot Likely to Call Legislature, Seek Cuts



YOUR TAXES

Every man, woman and child in the United States paid an average of $116 in taxes in 1933.

The Federal Government took $31 per person, of which about $23 went for war costs, including debts, pensions and maintenances of Army and Navy.

The remaining $85 of the $116 went for operation of state and local governments.

The AVERAGE American family had a tax bill of $400 to $500 last year.

YOUR taxes or rent can be lowered by elimination of costly duplication of governmental offices.

One dollar out of every four earned by Mr. Average American Citizen during 1933 went, directly or indirectly, for federal, state and various local governmental costs, to pay the biggest tax bill the United States has ever known.

Expansion of thousands of bureaus, creation of new governmental agencies without eliminating those replaced, duplication of governmental services, all have shot up the cost of government to a point where it has resulted in concerted demand throughout the country for immediate relief of the tax burden.

In Pennsylvania, our own commonwealth, in one recent eight-year period for which figures are available, there has been a tax increase of approximately 49 per cent. County taxes, on an average throughout the state, increased 52 per cent; city taxes 56 per cent; borough 33 per cent; township 41 per cent; schools 46 per cent and poor taxes 44 per cent.

TAXES TAKE EARNINGS

The nation's tax bill for 1933 has been estimated at fifteen thousand million dollars, out of a total national income which fell below sixty thousand million dollars. Twenty years ago it required only one-fifth as much, and then the national income was nearly thirty-six thousand million dollars.

Just 20 years ago, taxation took $1 out of every 12 earned, but today, one out of every four.

These national figures are estimates made a few months ago, before many of the emergency agencies had been set up under the National Recovery program. Of course they do not include the millions spent for emergencies. However, they do offer a fine insight on the tax problem when compared with figures of 20 years ago.

Pennsylvania in general and Allegheny County in particular, are outstanding examples of how governments grow to a point of insufferable duplication. In Allegheny County alone there are between twenty-five and thirty thousand persons carried on the payrolls of the federal, state and county governments, cities, boroughs, townships and the 120 school districts scattered throughout the county. The payrolls alone for these services amount to the enormous annual outlay of approximately forty-two and one-half million dollars.

The 1930 census lists Allegheny County as having a total population of 1,374,310 persons of all ages. Welfare organizations estimate there are 298,763 families.

This means that every 10 families must support one other family whose breadwinner is on some governmental payroll—through taxes paid out of their pockets. In addition, they also must contribute through taxation to the overhead of each particular job. Of course this has NOTHING to do with relief. These are regular governmental workers—most of them, from United States mail carriers to local policemen, thoroughly valuable workers. But many jobs are simply valueless duplications.

OVERLAPPING COSTLY

Municipality after municipality is paying workers setting millage, levying taxes, collecting taxes, directing the educational facilities, auditing accounts and in other governmental duties which could be performed more efficiently if consolidated.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY HAS NEARLY 250 DIFFERENT BODIES LEVYING AND COLLECTING TAXES FOR SCHOOL AND GOVERNMENTAL PURPOSES.

Instead of having 250 different tax-levying bodies in Allegheny County, one body could do the work, economists point out.

It is also unnecessary to have a small army of tax collectors, taking out hundreds of thousands of dollars in commissions each year. There are at least a dozen outstanding examples of duplication in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, and what is true here also is true in the other counties of the state and in the other states.

Each of the 250 different tax-levying bodies in Allegheny County must have its paid secretary, its solicitor, its treasurer, its auditors and its tax collectors. There exists in this county more than one case where SCHOOL DISTRICTS HAVE THESE PAID OFFICERS BUT DO NOT HAVE A SINGLE SCHOOL OR TEACHER IN THE COMMUNITY.

TAXES UP 134 PER CENT

In Pittsburgh the cost of government mounted by leaps and bounds during the years of prosperity. A recent survey made by the United States Department of Commerce indicates that the city and the county governments and schools, for the city only, cost the residents of Pittsburgh $51,654,601 in 1932, AN INCREASE OF 134.4 PER CENT SINCE 1917.

To make the drastic changes in governments necessary to cut down the great tax burden, new laws will be required. Many leaders in civic and public life advocate a constitutional convention.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, of Pennsylvania, suggests a convention. Recently he said that he saw no good reason why the state constitution should not be revised to permit consolidation of small counties.

County Commissioner C. C. McGovern also believes that there should be a constitutional convention. Meanwhlie, he is busy planning a program of legislation which he hopes to introduce at a special session of the Legislature to be called this spring.

F. R. Phillips, local utilities man, recently pointed out that the earnings of one day out of every four are paid for taxation by the average citizen. Mr. Phillips said that the point has been reached where taxation is draining the purchasing power of the people generally to such an extent as to stifle the distribution of goods and the flow of trade. The specter of taxation, he declared, has greatly increased the fear which freezes the channels of commerce.

PINCHOT TO ACT

Gov. Gifford Pinchot has indicated that he will agree to call another special session of the Legislature this spring, principally for governmental economies.

Recently Gov. Pinchot pointed out the great difference in cost of tax collection in Ohio and Pennsylvania, showing that Ohio can collect almost as much in taxes as Pennsylvania for a little more than one million dollars while Pennsylvania spends more than five million dollars for the same service.

Attorney Edward O. Tabor, of the executive committee of the Civic Club of Allegheny County, is also a leader in the fight to bring about governmental economies. In a recent address he pointed out that with the 200,000 different governmental units in the country, there is little wonder that our national taxes have risen from eight per cent of our national income in 1913, to 32 per cent of the national income in 1932.

He estimates that there are about 18,000,000 persons working on government payrolls, which, he said, indicates that the country is being smothered by taxation.

SETUP ANTIQUATED

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, paints a clear picture of the situation in a recent address.

He said in part:

"Our present government organization is an inheritance. It was much the same in the Eighteenth century as it is today. Methods of transportation and communications, however, have changed.

"A township organization, with its supervisors, town clerk, justices of the peace, constables, tax collectors and overseers of the poor, was useful in the Eighteenth century.

"If a crime had been committed, a county sheriff 30 or 40 miles away or the state police 100 miles distant could not have been notified to be of service. Today a state trooper can reach the scene almost as quickly as the local constable.

"Today a taxpayer can write a check on his local bank and mail it to the county treasurer. In earlier days, he had to carry the cash to the collector, therefore a town collector was very convenient. A township organization was probably necessary in our grandfather's day. IT IS NOT NECESSARY TODAY.

"Two miles was a long distance to school in the earlier days because the children had to walk. Thus, small rural school districts resulted. Today the school bus takes the farm children to school and these small districts are no longer necessary. We can now have the larger, more efficient districts.

"The development of government has been a patchwork affair. We have decided that the sheriff and constable could not cope with the modern criminals with their present means of transportation. We added state police, but we did not abolish the constables or the sheriff. So today in most states we have constables, sheriffs and state troopers, all of which overlap in their duties."

WORK CAMPAIGN UNTIL MAY PREDICTED

Nearly 15,000 to Get Employment Under Plan for City

Extension of the civil works employment campaign until May seemed certain today as County Administrator James L. Stuart said that less than a third of the $9,065,600 involved in approved projects could be spent by February 15, the date originally set for the completion of all jobs.

A delayed start and the enthusiastic submission of more projects than were called for are said to account for the extension.

PARLEY IN HARRISBURG

Stuart is to leave for Harrisburg tonight for a meeting of all administrators in the state. Announcing that he will attempt to obtain more funds from Eric H. Biddle, state CWA head, Stuart said his one aim is to spend as many profitable dollars in Allegheny County as he possibly can.

Plans already approved for Pittsburgh will alone employ 14,194 workers and will require the expenditure of $30,400,000. Of the total number of employes, 1,445 will be white collar workers.

Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineers, said a new ordinance would be presented to Council today requesting additional office space for the city's white collar men. Two floors already acquired in the Frick Building Annex are insufficient, he said, and more space is needed.

2,000 TO GET JOBS

Two new schedules of sewer operations to begin this week in the city will employ about 2,000 men, according to Reppert.

A group of 50 workers employed on the West Penn Playground were released today in the first general corps dismissal in Pittsburgh. The men had been transferred from one project to another, in violation of the CWA regulations, which forbid transfers.

CWA laws require that men be let out when the individual job is finished, and that they be turned over to the State-Federal Employment Bureau for reassignment. New requisitions have been sent to the agency for workers on the West Penn job.

Topley Gives County 15 Pct. of Salary

Clerk of Courts Samuel Topley let it be known today that he had returned to the county 15 per cent of his salary for the year 1933. Topley was one of the first to agree to a refund and paid in full before the year ended. Controller Robert Woodside, Recorder of Deeds Samuel Foster and Commissioners W. D. Mansfield and C. M. Barr also are paid in full.

A number of others are slow in their refunds but are preparing to make final payments. Others went along for a month or two and then stopped payments.

FRATS LAUNCH MASS BUYING

Fraternity boys and girls at the University of Pittsburgh are rejoicing over an economy program which leaves more shekels in their pockets and reduces the outlay for toothpicks, foodstuffs and the like.

Nineteen men's fraternities and three women's fraternities have organized the Fraternity Co-operative Buying Association for purchasing all supplies. Milk, bread, meat, canned goods, groceries, vegetables, butter, eggs, ice, coal and even the laundry are handled by the association.

Since September 1, 1932, the association has rolled up a net savings for the fraternities of $3,002.69, Samuel Strauss, co-operative buying manager, said.

KANE HONORED BY PRESSMEN

Councilman John J. Kane was honored at a testimonial dinner yesterday in Mayfair Hotel, sponsored by the Pittsburgh Newspaper Pressmen's Union, of which he is a member.

The speakers included County Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence, Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of American, and Thomas E. Dunwody, editor of the American Pressman.

Kane was presented with a watch, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, with an electric clock.

Hunt for Escaped Trusty Continues

Police were still searching today for John Martin, alias Roy N. Filmore, 21, a trusty who escaped Saturday from the Western Penitentiary. Martin is 5 feet 8½ inches tall, weighs 163 pounds and has light brown eyes and chestnut hair.

When he escaped he had served five years of a 20-year sentence for an attempted holdup, 13 charges of highway robbery and seven robbery charges.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 8.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Poor old France and Japan are about in the same fix. France don't know whether it would be better to jump on Germany and lick 'em now while they can, or "Will I sit here and wait till they are ready to pounce on me."

Japan is on the same spot. They feel they can lick Russia now, or will she wait till Russia is able to come pounce on them.

This thing of living in an ambitious nation is not what it's cracked up to be. We are certainly glad Mr. Roosevelt announced that we had about all the country we wanted; in fact he suggested that if we could get a decent offer he would let some of it go.

Yours, WILL.

Nothing to Lose By Putting Future In Hock, Says 'Bugs'

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Geneva tells us that America leads the world in recovery. We are starting to run a temperature at last.

However, in this industrial malaria the fever is almost as bad as the chills.

We still have some problems for the professors to ask the pupils. Shall we push out more silver or hide more gold?

Shall we balance the budget by easy stages like a stout person climbing stairs?

Shall we pour more syrup on browned waffles? Will the liquor revenue show a profit over the cost of headache tablets?

The answer is "Yes." We have nothing to lose. The past is in pawn. We may as well hock the future

Fog-Bound Planes Aloft Not 'Lost' as Rule

Pittsburgh's epidemic of "lost" or marooned airplanes was explained today by representatives of the two air transport companies operating here.

While improved aviation facilities have made flying in almost any kind of weather possible, it is still difficult to land in foggy weather or in a heavy snowstorm, it was pointed out.

This necessitates the pilot remaining aloft until ground conditions are favorable.

The pilot is not lost as long as he has radio contact with the ground station, which informs him both by voice and signal of his position. As he circles around, his motor droning overhead, he bisects four radio directional beams on the four airways extending north and south, east and west out of Pittsburgh. At the same time either the pilot or copilot is in communication with the field where ground attendants keep them informed as to landing conditions.

Huey Long, field manager of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., explains it:

"It's like a ship coming into New York harbor. If the fog is too heavy, the captain drops anchor and lays to until the haze lifts. In the air, the pilot can't anchor, so he just circles around."

REGISTRATION BILL APPROVAL DEMANDED

Election reform advocate in Pittsburgh, led by Senator Frank J. Harris, have urged Gov. Pinchot to sign the Pittsburgh permanent registration bill, passed at the recent special legislative session.

The Pittsburghers have been aroused by the protest of Albert Maris, of Philadelphia, who participated in its preparation, against signature of the bill in the form it passed.

Maris' contention that elimination of one section permits any one to vote, whether registered or not has been met by the Pittsburghers with the citation of another section which makes it imperative that every voter shall be registered.

BILL'S PROVISIONS

The bill as amended and passed provides for permanent registration and any citizen who votes at least once in two years retains his place on the registry lists. Senator Harris today said:

"Albert B. Maris, Philadelphia attorney, has written Attorney General William A. Schnader, asking that he advise the Governor to veto the bill, setting forth the argument that while the bill passed the Senate in proper form that the amendments and strike-outs in the House have resulted in changes that would make the bill unworkable and unwise.

DIFFERENT STAND

"I disagree with Mr. Maris in his contention. True, this bill is not in the form we would prefer, but still only one provision was dropped. In spite of Mr. Maris' protest, I am asking the Governor to sign this bill. It is the most forward step taken in many years to provide for the convenience of the voter, an increased registration and a precaution against fraud.

"My decision to urge the Governor to sign this bill was arrived at after consultation with seven members of the bar—all much interested in this legislation. On the basis of their opinion, if the Governor signs the bill and any further attack is made, we will defend this bill and carry it to the Supreme Court if necessary."

BOYCOTT URGED ON GERMANY

Declaring the boycott was the only "weapon left to force the Hitler regime to cease its torture and maltreatment" Zionist of the tri-state district meeting last night in the Y. M. & W. H. A. urged the 75,000 Jews in this area and their non-Jewish friends to "abstain totally from the purchase of any and all goods made or manufactured in Germany."

The Zionist were urged to appeal to their merchants not to keep German-made goods in stock. The appeal and boycott resolution was presented by a committee headed by Attorney I. A. Swiss.

Dr. Jacob Sonderling, of New York, formerly of Hamburg, Germany, was principal speaker at the three sessions of the conference yesterday. Last night at a banquet in his honor he describes conditions and problems facing his race in Germany.

Funds also are to be raised toward transporting Jews from Germany to Palestine. The movement will be part of a nation-wide effort in which three million dollars will be sought.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot is vetoing bills passed at the special session of the Legislature at the rate of one out of every eight on which he acts.

Three-fourths of the way through his job of passing on the measures, the chief executive of the state has approved 56 and rejected eight.

The Governor has three weeks in which to consider them before they become laws automatically.

Of the bills which he has vetoed, Gov. Pinchot says four would duplicate others which he signed and two were beyond the scope of the special session.

WYNEKOOP CASE MAY CALL 50

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Prosecutors announced they would seek subpenas for 50 or more witnesses today before Judge Joseph David as a prelude to the trial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop for the operating table slaying of her pretty daughter-in-law, Rheta.

Trial of the 62-year-old woman physician is scheduled to open next Thursday.

The list of witnesses sought by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty includes members of the slain wife's family, police officers, neighbors and several of the victim's friends.

Dougherty said he would ask permission for an examination of the sickly Dr. Wynekoop by physicians for the state and prevent, if possible, the defendant's appearance in court in a wheelchair. Dougherty contends this might influence the jury.

Dual Tragedy Caps Man's Reunion With Sons

ATHENS, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Thomas Smith, 58, a miner, and his son, Thomas, Jr., 14, were dead today and another son, Dempsey, 12, was near death—victims of fumes from an automobile motor in their garage at Millfield.

The boys left an orphans' home Christmas Eve to live with their father. Their mother is dead. Returning from a drive the father's automobile was ditched. All three became rain-soaked getting the car to the garage.

Coroner L. F. Jones advanced the theory that they closed the doors of the garage and started the motor, to which a heater was attached, to dry themselves. A neighbor found them yesterday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

YOUNG GUNMEN SLUG WOMAN, SHOOT DOG

Knoxville police today were seeking three youths, all about 16, two of them Negroes, who within 15 minutes, last night, slugged one woman and shot the pet dog of another.

The pet bulldog of Mrs. Margaret Connelly, 328 Orchard place, has a bullet in its skull today—the wound being inflicted by one of the Negroes in spite of Mrs. Connelly's pleadings.

A few minutes later one of the youths struck Mrs. Mary Richards on the head as she alighted from a street car near her home, 301 Orchard place, according to police. No attempt was made to rob her, she said. She fled to her home.

Mrs. Connelly told police she was exercising her dog near her home when the youths stopped in front of her. As one of them drew a gun and aimed it at the dog, Mrs. Connelly said she pleaded with them not to shoot, but the Negro fired. The first shot went wide, but at the second report the animal fell wounded. The youths fled.

Mrs. Connelly rushed her dog to a veterinary and, although the bullet is lodged in its skull, it will likely recover, police said.

A thief threw a milk bottle through a show window of George M. Wilson, clothier, 227 Oliver avenue, and stole an overcoat valued at $35.

Police are today seeking thieves who robbed the Morgan Dye Works, at 51 Meade street, Bellevue, of wearing apparel early yesterday. Two suspects, carrying large cartons, disappeared in a hollow near High Bridge while being chased by Patrolman William Darling, of Bellevue police, shortly after the robbery. The thieves gained entrance to the building by smashing a window.

Survives 13,000 Volt Charge of Electricity

Max Erhlich, 26, of Prospect street, Brackenridge, who had a 13,000 volt electrical charge pass through his body while pulling cables for the Natrona Light and Power Company on Freeport road, Brackenridge, early yesterday, is in the Valley Hospital at Tarentum today as a result of the shock. His condition is said to be fair.

Erhlich, an employe of Brackenridge Borough, was doing emergency work for the Natrona Light and Power Company when he came in contact with the high tension line that had been brought down by yesterday's storm.

DAVIS ARREST HAS 'BOSSES' WORRIED

By EARL L. SHAUB
Universal Service.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 8.—Tennessee's political bosses were worried today over what federal authorities may do as a result of the arrest of Paul M Davis, brother of Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador-at-Large, on charges of violating the banking laws.

Coming on top of Davis' arrest earlier in the week on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the state of $22,800, state leaders fear the incident may cause a federal investigation of the whole banking and political situation here.

The political machine here has powerful Washington and Wall street ties, but the two arrests of Davis, the state's leading banker, who helped elect Gov. McAlister, have brought to light political, banking and power trust combinations.

So the bosses are wondering whether the federal government can ignore the charge of a $500,000 false entry on the books of the Davis banks, as these charges correspond to accusations said to have been laid before Washington officials weeks ago.

A. V. McLane, United States District Attorney, recommended to the Department of Justice prosecution of some of the officers of banks of which Davis is president. But, McLane says, he was fired for his pains.

Similar charges have been laid before the Senate Banking Committee.

Davis also is a brother of Ewin Davis, member of the Federal Trade Commission.

He is a director of the Tennessee Electric Power Company, controlled by the Commonwealth Southern, allegedly a Morgan creation.

One of the directors of his bank, W. R. Cole, is president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, controlled by Morgan interests.

Maclin Davis, vice president of the Davis bank, is a son of Norman Davis.

Davis worked for the election of Gov. McAlister, who appointed Nathan L. Bachman to the United States Senate. Bachman was attorney for power interests and married into the Duke family of tobacco and power fame.

'Okay' Adopted In Paris With Variations

PARIS.—Just what to do with the verb "okay" is causing a scandal in French purist circles. Having accepted the Americanism, the public began conjugating it in French style. It therefore is I "oke," you "okes," and "oker" for the infinitive.

As if "visionner" wasn't bad enough for the verb to vision, a new word has been heard, "supervisionner" for to supervise.

Another Americanism is the single word "comingman" for somebody with a hopeful future.

AIRPLANES JOIN MAYER RITES

Funeral services were held today for C. P. Mayer, Bridgeville aviation pioneer and business man. Four airplanes, three of them Army Reserve Corps ships, flew over the funeral procession.

Mr. Mayer died suddenly at his home on the Washington pike Thursday night following a heart attack.

In respect to his memory, many local pilots proposed an aerial cortege for the funeral, but the family asked the number of planes be limited.

Services were held in St. Agatha's Church, Bridgeville. Burial was in St. Agatha's Cemetery.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

January 8th, 1934

To Our Customers and Friends:

We have some real welcome news for you regarding Old Nut Brown Ale!

This product, because of its fine flavor and full-bodied strength, has so taken the favor of the consuming public that up to the present it has been impossible for us to fill promptly the orders which were given us and which continue to come in.

We had not anticipated the great demand which would arise for a really good ale,—for the tastes of the consuming public of today as yet are not fully known to the brewer. We have had to feel our way, as it were, and the production of Old Nut Brown Ale was started only on a comparatively small scale.

As soon as the demand increased, we immediately increased our production, but, a really good ale like Old Nut Brown Ale cannot be created over night,—it must be thoroughly aged and matured,—and it has taken us until now to bring our production to a point where we can keep abreast of orders without sacrificing quality.

Commencing today, January 8th, 1934, we shall be able to fill your orders promptly. The quality of Old Nut Brown Ale is better than ever, and we are now in large enough production to take care of your requirements.

We thank you for the patience you have shown and for your patronage. In Old Nut Brown Ale you have a real Ale, produced of the finest materials, fully matured,—of delicious taste,—and from now on,—your orders will be filled promptly.

If you should be unable to obtain prompt delivery from your wholesaler, please call the Brewery direct, Hemlock 8500, and we shall see that you are served immediately.

Sincerely yours,
DUQUESNE BREWING COMPANY OF PITTSBURG

MUSIC

Shapiro String Quartet

Hotel Schenley

PROGRAM

Smetana	Quartet E Minor (From My Life)
Gliere	Scherzo a la Mazurka
Jullien	Sicilienne
Salazar	Rubaiyat
Alfano	Quartet in C. No. 2

The Shapiro Quartet gave its second concert yesterday afternoon in Hotel Schenley and presented a most effective program.

Mr. Lissfelt

For anyone who wished to study successful writing for strings the program was admirably planned. I have always felt that Smetana's material was far too rich and dramatic for string quartet. It outweighs the volume of tone created by the best players and the big climaxes somehow just do not come off.

Now the French writers are so consistent in understanding the limitations of instruments whether in music or in painting and consequently the "Sicilienne" of Rene Jullien, while it is only a trifle, shows a finesse and delicacy that is entirely natural for such an ensemble.

No less successful is the little mazurka of Gliere and the eloquent recitatives of Salazar, in whose score it is easy to follow some of the quatrains of Omar.

After hearing the barren "Resurrection" of Alfano, which even Mary Garden could not put over the footlights, I find equally barren spots in this quartet, especially in the middle movement before the broad outlines of the last phrases assert themselves. There is, however, much vitality in this work, mainly rhythmic rather than thematic, and could bear a repetition.

The quartet is gaining ground. Yesterday the weather was surely against the strings for the players had considerable difficulty with keeping their pitch.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

TAKEN FOR RIDE, LIVES TO TELL

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Few men come back from "one way rides," but John French, 25, a CWA worker in the city water department, claims to have done so despite four bullet wounds he said were inflicted by his assailants.

Crawling through two miles of mud, French made his way from the Little Calumet Creek, on Chicago's far South Side, to a point where he was found yesterday by a motorist. He was then taken to a hospital in Harvey, Ill., where, as he lay upon an operating table, he told his amazing story and named his alleged abductors.

The men he accused, both of whom were arrested, are Edwin F. Cusack, a suspended policeman, and James McCarthy.

French, who is under indictment with several others on a charge of being involved in a $13,000 merchandise theft, told police they said, that he had "talked" and that this was the motive for the "ride."

PITT AND TECH VARSITY QUINTS LEAD CONFERENCE

SPORTS

By JAMES J. LONG

Pitt May Face Streak.
Irish Win 20 Straight.
Latest Plight of Mack.
Moundsmen Defy Time.
Picking Greatest Stars.
Sedran Basketball Ideal.

There is a good chance that history may repeat itself, at least as far as a situation is concerned, when the Irish of Notre Dame come to Pittsburgh on January 20 to meet the Panthers in basketball. Three years ago the Ramblers invaded this city with 21 straight victories behind them, only to run into a couple of troublemakers in Willie Kowallis and Timmy Lawry, that pair of midget Pitt forwards accounting for an extra-period win over the South Bend team. There is now a possibility that the Irish will have another winning streak of an even greater length to their credit when they come here again. They have won 20 straight so far and have two more contests to play before the meeting with Pitt.

George Keogan

Notre Dame started its drive following the 39-to-35 defeat suffered at the hands of Dr. Carlson's passers in Pittsburgh last winter. The South Benders rallied to win 10 in a row during the remainder of that campaign, downing Pitt, Toledo, Michigan State, Carnegie Tech, Chicago, Western Reserve, Butler, Wabash, Marquette and Minnesota. This season they have added 10 more, including among their victims Purdue, Northwestern (twice), Arizona and Michigan State, though they were hard pressed to beat Michigan State last Saturday night, being forced to play three overtime periods to win by one point.

However, Coach George Keogan's court stars have a tough row to hoe before the Pitt game, as standing between them and a total of 22 straight wins are two hard contests with Marquette and Butler.

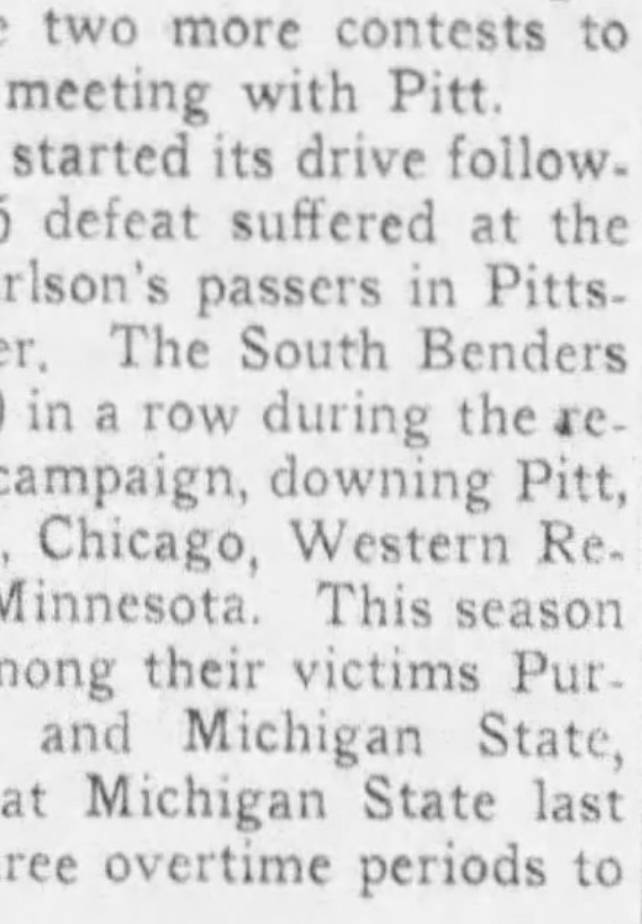
SELLS COCHRANE; NOW SEEKS CATCHERS

You can't eat your cake and still have it. Neither can you sell your players and still have your ball club. It's too bad about poor Connie Mack. He's sending out distress signals from Philadelphia, revealing that he's very much worried about the catching department of the A's and appealing to both major and minor league clubs for help. There would appear to be little sympathy coming to the veteran pilot, inasmuch as his plight is entirely of his own making, due to his action in selling the game's greatest catcher to Detroit.

It was reported the Bosox would pass Gordon Hinkle along to the A's, but Eddie Collins spikes that rumor with the statement that the Sox bought the Rochester receiver to keep him. So Mack has turned to the minors and is dickering for two young maskmen. One is Glenn, of Minneapolis, for whom Connie may exchange Outfielder Ed Coleman, and the other is Erickson, of Louisville.

M'COLL TO TRY FRESH START NEAR 40

That Eppa Rixey, who will be 43 on May 3, is being counted on to start another season of pitching for the Reds, has caused surprised comment in some baseball quarters. But at that Rixey isn't the oldest flinger in the majors, as Urban Faber was 45 on September 6 last, and that lone spitball survivor is still on the active list of the White Sox. And, after all, the continued activity of either Rixey or Faber isn't so surprising when you consider that there is another pitcher in the big show who, though close to 40, is only getting ready to start.



Alex McColl

Washington has the real age standout of the hurling ranks in Alex McColl, of Geneva, O. After working in the minors for many years, McColl was said to have passed 39 when he came up to the Senators from Chattanooga last August. He did neat relief jobs in three games, pitched one complete contest, and kept up the good account of himself by breaking into the second game of the World Series and holding the Giants hitless and runless in the final two innings. Now Alex is getting ready for his real start in 1934, and that he views very seriously his chances of making the grade at an age that finds most pitchers in retirement is shown by the fact that he made a trip to Chicago and underwent an operation for a chipped bone in his hurling arm.

EARLY LOCAL PRO CALLED GRID'S BEST

In a search for the ideal performers in various sports, Charles E. Parker, New York scribe, was told by John Heisman that the latter considered Pudge Heffelfinger to have been football's greatest player—a mighty Yale guard standing 6 feet 4 inches, weighing 212 pounds, and able to do everything superlatively well. After leaving Yale, Heffelfinger became one of Pittsburgh's earliest professionals as a member of the all-star Three A's four decades ago.

Newsy Lalonde thinks Auriel Joliat most closely approaches the ideal hockey player, who should have Joliat's stick-handling and fortitude, Howie Morenz's speed and poise, Bill Cook's elusiveness, Frank Boucher's play-making, Charley Conacher's shot-making and King Clancy's defensive ability.

SEDRAN RATED BASKETBALL'S PERFECT PLAYER

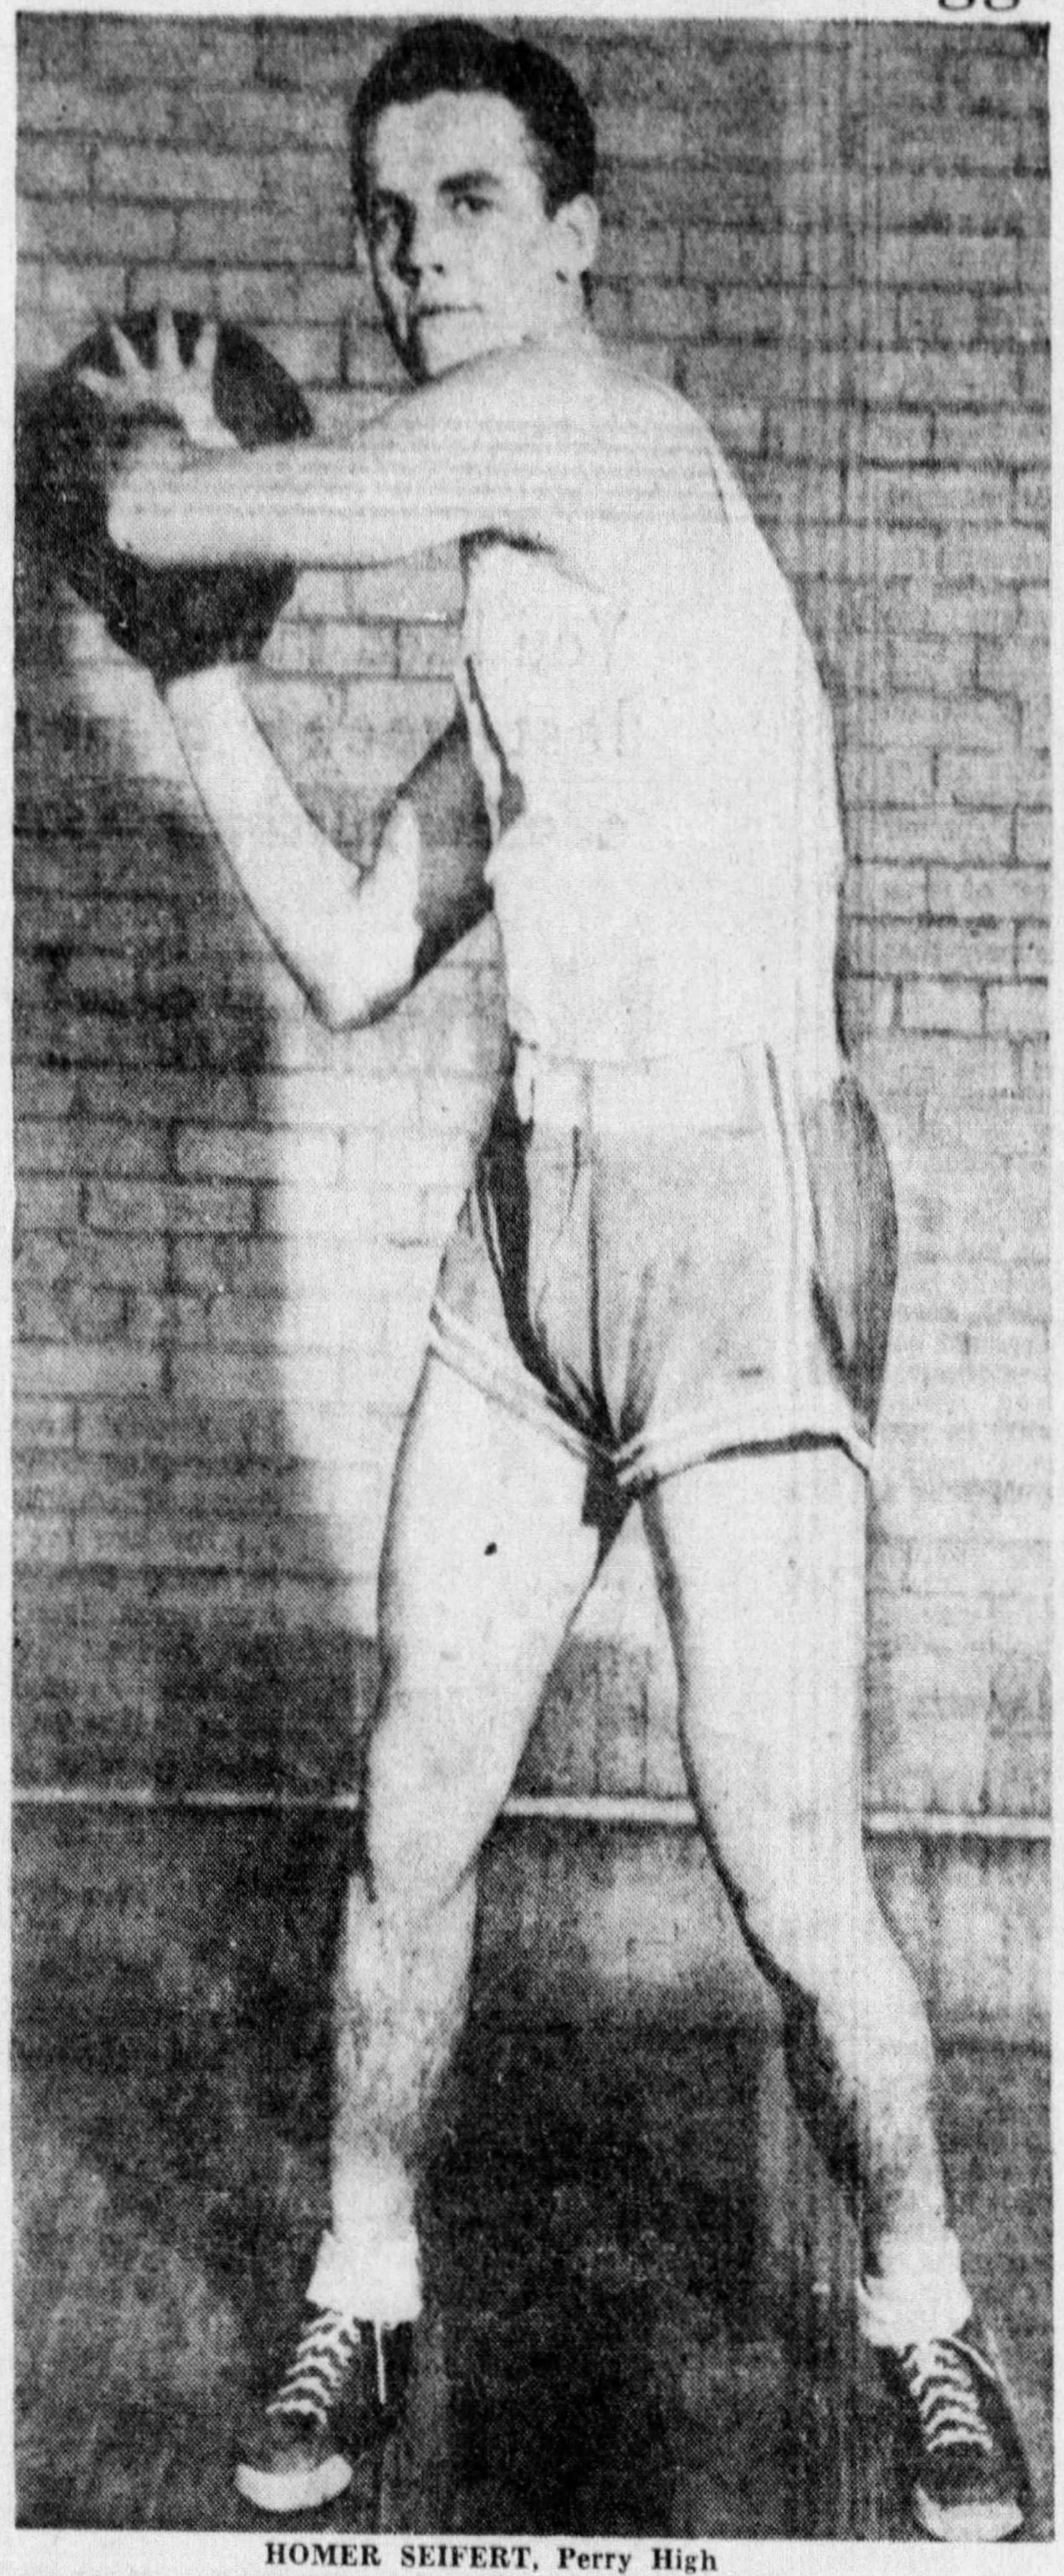
Many basketball followers would name Nat Holman as the paragon of that sport, but Holman modestly leaves himself out of the picture and says the choice can be narrowed down to three other men. He mentions, as a trio that could contribute everything desired to make up the perfect basketball player, Barney Sedran, of Utica, Philadelphia Greystocks and New York Whirlwinds; Ed Wachter, once of Troy and until recently Harvard's coach; and Johnny Beckman, of the original Celtics.

Nat Holman

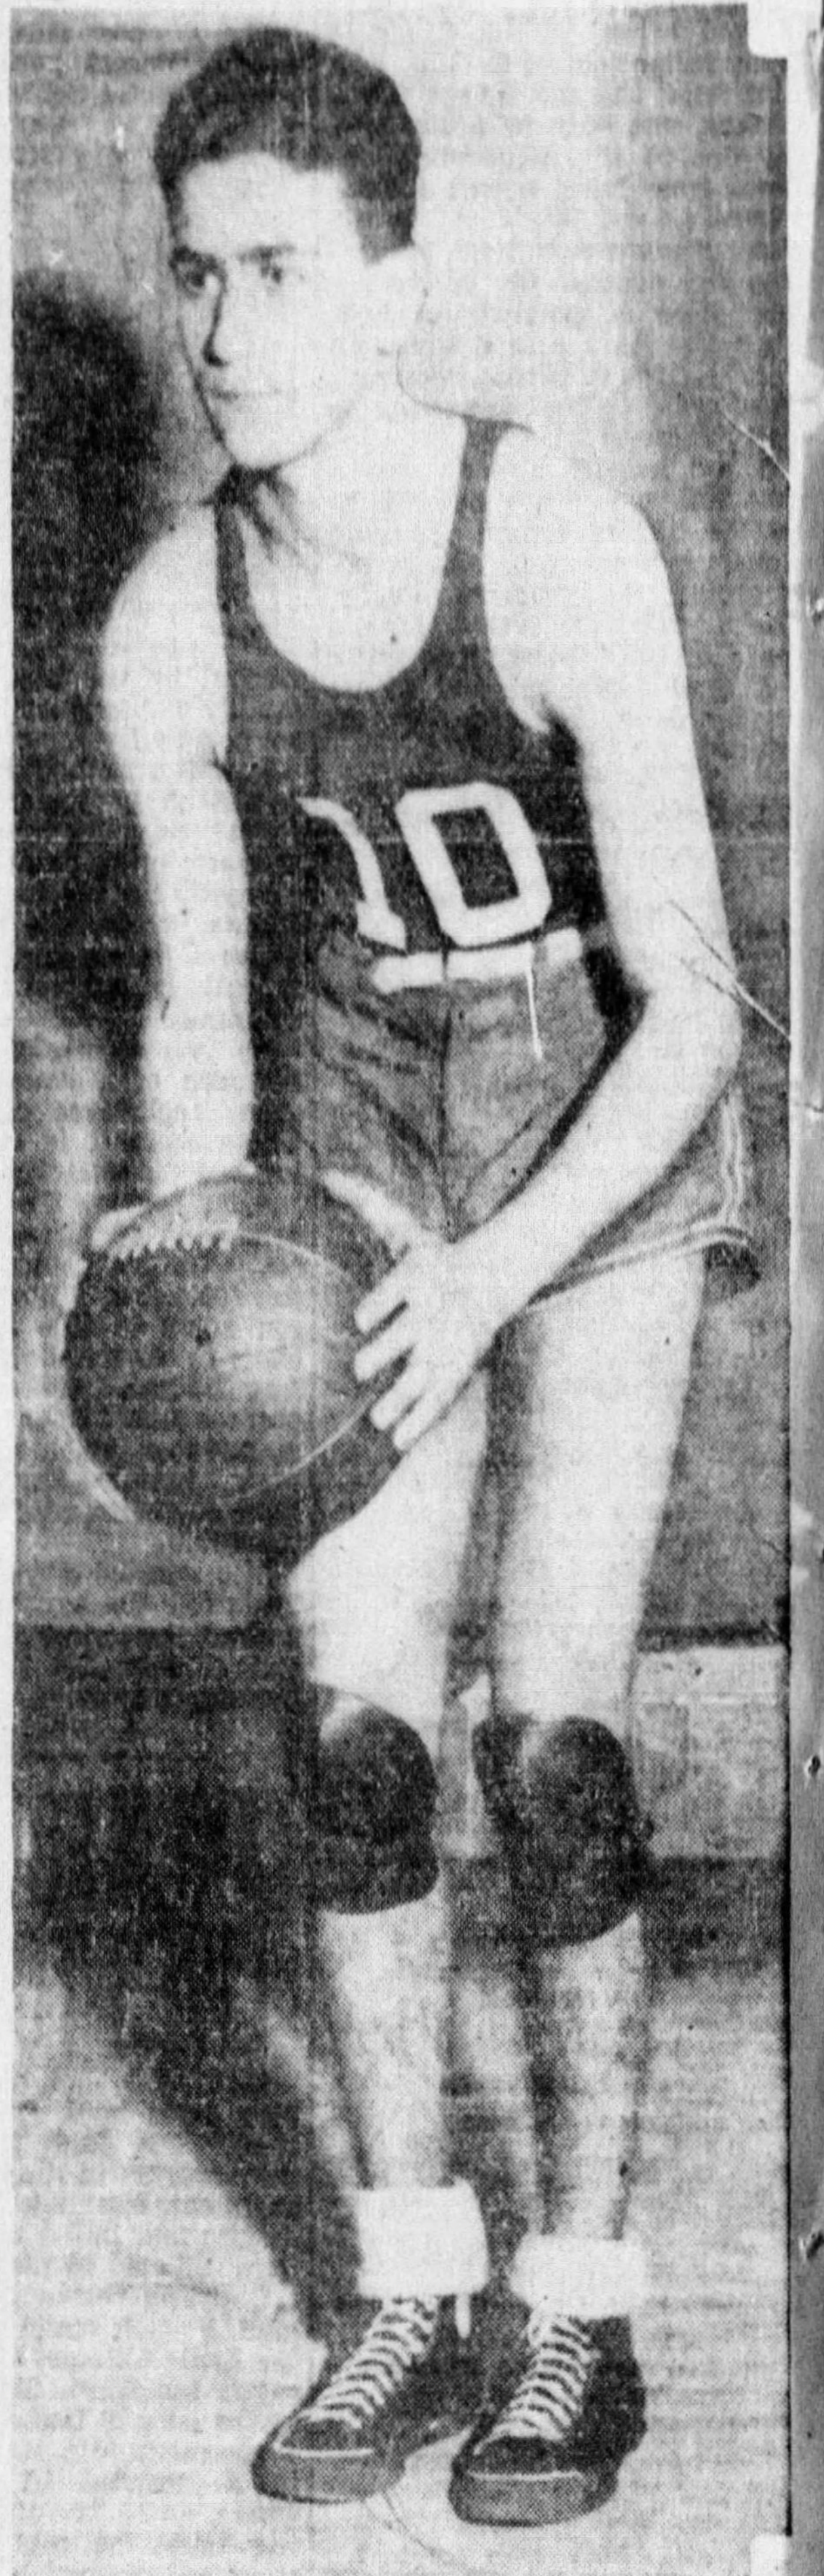
Holman recalls that Sedran was the brainiest of forwards and, though standing only 5 feet 6 inches, was extremely fast, most deceptive in his maneuvers, an excellent passer, feeder and defensive man, a fine team player, and so great a shot that he led all his leagues in scoring. Wachter is pronounced the greatest center the game ever knew, not merely a jumper but an important cog in both offense and defense, and having everything needed—height, endurance, competitive spirit, fortitude and tireless energy. Holman rates Beckman the fastest player and the quickest cutter basketball has produced, besides being the surest shot, both from the court and the foul line. Johnny had the shoulders and torso of a boxer and the legs of a sprinter, took chances that few would risk, was a two fisted fighter who never gave up, and, though needing a feeder to provide him with opportunities, was a fine team man himself.

Stars on Local Scholastic Basketball Aggregations

JOE ROMAH, Fifth Avenue High



HOMER SEIFERT, Perry High



BILL MILLER, Allderdice Captain and Forward

Three of the stars of the local scholastic basketball league, which has just launched its season. Romah was a star forward for Coach Briggs last season. Seifert was the all-City League football center of the past season. He is not flashy, but is a dependable guard for the defending champions in Section II. Miller was one of the stars in his team's opening game victory over Fifth Avenue. He is one of the veterans who will be lost by Taylor Allderdice at the mid-year commencement exercises next month. DUKES AWAIT BATTLE WITH TITAN FIVE

By JESS CARVER

If close calls are any aid to getting a college basketball team on edge, the varsity quintets at Pitt, Tech and Duquesne should be well set today.

The three varsity teams scored a clean sweep Saturday night as they turned in well-earned victories. Pitt beat off Temple University's amazingly peppery Owls, 35 to 30, and Carnegie slipped one over on West Virginia's Mountaineers, 32, to 29, in Eastern Intercollegiate Conference tussles while the Dukes beat off and down the challenge of a formidable Valparaiso University five, 48 to 34.

As a result, the Pitt and Tech passers have a strangle hold on the Conference leadership, Pitt being out in front with two victories, Carnegie in a mathematical tie with one. What is more, the locals are likely to retain this grasp on the top rung of the ladder, and are bound to be plenty tough to dislodge.

TEMPLE IMPRESSIVE

There are a lot of swell words that could be used to describe this Temple team, which remains with us until tomorrow night, when it plays Carnegie Tech in the Tartan gym. It is very unfortunate that the game is scheduled for tomorrow, for tomorrow is the date of the Duquesne-Westminster battle, a contest which, by virtue of its district importance, overshadows the conference tilt. It is a shame, too, for this Temple outfit is quite some pumpkins, a better team than it looked against Pitt and one certain to figure high in the final ratings.

It is a ball club without an outstanding star (unless you get each and every member of the entourage in a corner and listen to HIS version of things.) This lad Brown is a pip, so is Red Rosan, the great Lou Fox (what a man!) Messikomer, Irv Casper and Frieberg. They are nice laddies, and boy, do they take their coach, the dignified James Long Beard Usilton, for many a ride? They do.

Why, yesterday, when Coach James looked for his trousers, they were missing. He searched and he searched, he stormed he ranted, he raved and he threatened to throw all and sundry out of the window of his room at Webster Hall, for the great James was hungry, and when a Usilton is hungry, it is well to beware.

Finally he found the missing pants neatly tucked away between his mattress and the bed springs. They resembled very closely a compressed waffle.

PITT TOO FAST

Despite the fact that the officials did not work any too well, the Owls did not deserve to beat

NATS RELEASE RICE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8. — (AP.) — The Washington Senators today handed Sam Rice, veteran outfielder, his unconditional release. Rice was with the Senators 19 seasons. From 1916 through 1930 he was a regular outfielder. Since 1930 he has been a pinch hitter and utility outfielder. Although 42 years old, Rice said today he expected to connect with some other ball club before long.

Pitt and Carnegie Tech have filed entries in the annual Butler University relays to be held in Indianapolis on March 24.

BABE'S TEAM WINS

DAYTON, O., Jan. 8.—(AP.) Babe Didrickson's All-Americans basketball team defeated the Dayton pros, a men's team, 31 to 23, here last night. The Babe scored seven points.

SOCCER TEAMS TIE IN AMATEUR CUP BATTLES

CURRY, MORGAN TRIUMPH IN LOOP FRAYS

By TOM BIRKS

Two games in the national amateur soccer tournament finished in deadlocks yesterday afternoon. At Greenlee Field, the Heidelberg eleven, twice winner of the trophy, came from behind to tie the W. W. Riehls, 1-1, while at Avella, the Gallatin club played the local eleven to a 3-3 draw. The Heidelberg-Riehl game will be replayed at Greenlee Field a week from next Sunday.

The Greenlee Field battle was played in a sea of mud. The steady downpour of Saturday night had left the playing area in bad condition, but the teams waged a desperate and thrilling 90 minutes before a fair-sized crowd.

DEFENSE STRONG

Only 15 minutes of play had elapsed when Innocenti flashed the ball past Ramous for the first goal. It was a well-deserved point. Heidelberg, following that reverse, put on plenty of fight, but Deitrict and Cingel offered a stout defense and the Green and Gold attack was stopped short.

The tying marker did not come until two minutes from the end of the game. Urbanio, closing in fast, beat Brunetti with a rising shot.

In the Keystone League, Curry flashed the best form of the season to beat Moon Run, 3-0, and Morgan stopped the Cecil aggregation, 5 to 2, which indicates the fans are in for a thriller next Sunday when the teams meet in the first round of the national open cup competition.

Delmontage, the Cecil back, played a brilliant game until being hurt, then Morgan scored with ease. Heavy fields prevented good soccer.

TUSCANS GET WIN

In the Allegheny Valley League, the Tuscans walloped Curtisville, 6 to 0, and Hillman Coal downed Newfield, 3 to 0. Nathans beat the Braves, 2 to 1; Webers beat off Beading, 3 to 2; Finks topped Houston by the same score and Coraopolis nosed out Canonsburg, 2 to 1, in the Panhandle loop.

In the Central District League, Union Switch and Signal blanked Beltzhoover, 2-0; Dunwick defeated Arsenal, 2 to 1; Ambridge took over Aliquippa, 5 to 1, and Clan Douglas crushed the Rovers, 9 to 2. The lineups:

COLLEGE GROUP PLANS LEAGUE

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Action on the formation of a Pennsylvania Collegiate Athletic Eligibility Conference is up to 30 colleges and universities today with the return from Harrisburg of their delegates to a preliminary meeting.

Nine rules to govern eligibility were tentatively adopted by faculty representatives here Saturday and yesterday. They will be submitted to the respective schools as a basis for their entry into the conference.

Athletic scholarships and any form of pay for athletic proficiency are barred under the tentative code.

The three-year rule and the provision against any student playing on varsity teams for a year after changing colleges have been adopted. Freshman participation would be permitted, however, by consent of two-thirds of the schools.

FERRELL GETS SALARY CUT

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—Wesley Ferrell, the Cleveland Indian pitching ace who disappointed his manager and fans alike in the 1933 season, will work under a bonus plan next year.

This became known today as officials of the Cleveland Baseball Club drafted a salary budget of $200,000, drastically cut from the $274,000 bill of last year.

Under the plan which Ferrell will be told to take or leave, he will receive $5,000 as a base salary for the season, with extra compensation for every victory over 10 with which he is credited, it was indicated.

Each victory over 10 and up to 15 will mean a $500 bonus. The victories between 16 and 20 will reward him $600 apiece. And those above 20 will net $700 or more. Thus a 25-win season will enrich him by about $14,500.

Young Herzog Held As Robbery Suspect

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Charles A. Herzog, 22, of Baltimore, former Duke University athlete and a son of Buck Herzog, one-time star infielder with the New York Giants, was arrested here last night on complaint of Y. C. Bailey, who said he recognized him as the man who held him up at his filling station last April and robbed him of $28.

Herzog drove into Bailey's filling station to get a tire he had left to be repaired, and when Bailey saw him he summoned police.

The youth, a former baseball player at Duke, has been here a week visiting friends at the university. He was released on $500 bond signed by Dean W. H. Wannamaker, of Duke, and will be given a hearing in Recorder's Court today.

International Loop Keeps Playoff System

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The International Baseball League yesterday decided to continue the playoff system for another year, but on a revised basis.

By a 7-to-1 vote, the league directors decided that the club finishing first during the regular season would be declared league champions. The first four clubs in the final standings then would begin a series of three playoffs, the survivor of which will represent the league in the little world series against the American Association.

LOCAL BOXERS BUSY

Two local boxers are appearing in faraway rings tonight. Jackie Wilson, Negro featherweight, boxes Johnny Mitchell, of Detroit, in an eight-round main bout in Chicago and Walter Ketchel, middleweight, meets George Rickard in a 10-rounder at Beaumont, Tex.

Reduced to plain English, the United States Golf Association has decided to cut out the primary for this year's National Amateur election.

What a break it will be not having to listen to the also-rans tell how they almost qualified.

Those big sales certainly made the Red Sox hot. Burned down the grandstand before the season opened.

All Lou Little, the Columbia coach, has to worry about now is next year's schedule.

New balls will be used in both major leagues next season, but don't let them kid you. The same old holes will be in the bats.

Clarified rules for golf in England state that no man who receives pay for writing about the game unless writing is his profession may play as an amateur. PAIR OF PROS TIE FOR LEAD

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—In a thrilling battle of youth versus age, 19-year-old Russell Stonehouse, of Indianapolis, and gray-haired 48-year-old Willie Dow, of Miami, yesterday tied at 279 to share top honors in the 72-hole $2,000 Miami open golf tournament.

Dow, who originally hailed from Montieth, a hamlet near Carnousetie, where golf's great has been centered for years, toured the first half of yesterday's final 36-hole route in 68, two under par, but slipped back to 73 on the second round for a 144 to go with a 137 carded at the midway mark of the tournament Saturday.

STONEHOUSE UNKNOWN

Stonehouse, a diminutive pro who, like Dow, never has made much of a showing in major tournament competition, picked up a 71 and a 69 for a par 140 to pair with a 139 posted at the end of the first 36 holes.

When the battle was over and a consultation held, Dow and Stonehouse decided to play off the tie over an 18-hole route today for first prize of $500 and second place money of $350.

Vincent Eldred, Pittsburgh professional, finished with an aggregate of 305. He turned in double rounds of 74 and 80 for the concluding 36 holes played yesterday.

Eldred had a total of 151 for the first 18-hole rounds.

DUTRA, RUNYAN LEAD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A big pro and a little one, Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., were all square with 138's at the end of the first 36 holes of the Los Angeles open golf championship tonight, with 36 holes coming up today.

Dutra, who is well in the heavyweight division, added a 71 today to a 67 yesterday while the lightweight Runyan was consistency itself with a pair of 69s.

Charley Seaver, big blonde amateur and member of the Los Angeles Country Club, where the championship is being played, scored 68 in the second round and was only a stroke behind the professionals with 139 for half the competition.

COLUMBIA GETS WARM WELCOME ON RETURN

By BILL CORUM

International News Service.

NEW YORK Jan. 8.—The sidewalk at 116th street and Broadway glistened with winter rain. Bronze old alma mater sat proudly on the library steps under the inscription that reads: "Founded as Kings College in the reign of, etc." Powerful, hopeful young voices rose in the dripping darkness, singing lustily: "For This Is Old Columbia's Day."

A motorcycle policeman, his siren shrieking, swung the corner perilously. Behind him came still other sirens and the blare of many horns and a wave of excitement riding through the streets and across the drowsy, holiday-deserted campus . . . Columbia University's greatest football team was home from Columbia's greatest athletic triumph.

LIONS' TRIP OVER

The trail of the "Little Lions" that began in the Pennsylvania station on the night of December 19 had come full circle. The "Little Lions" were back from their 5,000-mile transcontinental prowl with the warlock of the once lordly Stanford Indians still clinging to their chops.

A football team of which every man of Morningside, old and young and still to be, could justly be proud he had made the round trip. The kids were home and the hosts of Columbia were singing in the rain.

Never again, I hope, will any representative college football team from any section be subjected to the ridicule, the cheap humor, the indifference, the poorly concealed contempt, which met this doughty band from Morningside at every turn along the road to "the great adventure."

Because if any such situation crops up again, all anybody will need say is:

"Don't forget Columbia and the Rose Bowl game of 1934."

TEAM WORKS MIRACLE

It was not a big squad that worked this miracle in behalf of college football in every section; not a big squad, but there were those who loved it. Loved it for its indomitable courage, its superb but not boastful confidence, its lock-jawed, wall-eyed fight in the clutches, and its willingness, yea eagerness, to meet any man's football team on fair grounds and fight it out along those lines if it took all winter.

Coach Lou Little said last night that Stanford will come East next year to seek revenge against Columbia for the 7-to-0 defeat at Pasadena.

PLAYERS GREETED HERE

A small, but enthusiastic and extremely proud group greeted the Columbia University football squad as the Lions paused here for a brief time yesterday morning en route home to New York from its thrilling victory over Stanford in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena.

Included in the group who greeted the Lions when their train rolled in at 9:30 yesterday morning were the parents of Cliff Montgomery, the Lions' captain; Joe Ferrara and Paul Jacket, Coach Dick Williams, of Har-Brack High School, who coached Montgomery during his high school days and Bill Sullivan, former McKeesport mentor, who developed Jackel.

Montgomery said he was not planning to play pro ball, but hoped to land a job as a coach. He intimated that he might be added to the Columbia staff next fall.

HORNSBY IN TRAINING

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the St. Louis Browns, was grinding off the surplus poundage today with a six weeks' training period planned to get his legs in shape for one more season of big time baseball. If he can make the training grade satisfactorily, Hornsby said, he might be at third base for the Browns this coming season.

FAMILY AFFAIR

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Jan. 8.—Tink Hamilton, a junior, has been chosen football captain of the 1934 Bell Township High School eleven. He replaces his brother, Jim, who captained the 1932 and 1933 squads.

Dempsey Hopes They're Twins Or Triplets

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(INS.)—The Jack Dempsey heir or heiress isn't due for five or six months.

And Jack doesn't care whether it's a boy or a girl, but will be delighted if it turns out to be twins or triplets.

Hasn't thought of a name yet—that's a job for his wife, the former Hannah Williams, of musical fame.

If it's a boy and he wants to become a fighter when he grows up it's all right with Jack. He'll even let him be a newspaperman.

Jack is going to keep his hand in the fight game as a referee and promoter and maybe as a manager. The movies are out for him. Max Baer to the contrary notwithstanding, he thinks fighters look sort of screwey when they try to act for the films.

As you may have guessed, all of this is the result of an interview with the former heavyweight champion upon his arrival here today for a short visit during which arrangements may be made for a Primo Carnera-Max Baer match, Jack having a piece of Max.

PITT AND TECH HOLD LEAD

the Panthers Saturday night. True, Pitt still played hit-and-miss ball, but at that they appeared to have too much sustained speed for the Owls. Temple's attack is potent enough, but it is not, or at least was not, sustained against the Panthers. However, one ball game does not make a season any more than one swallow makes a meal, and these Owls may be depended upon for some nifty work between now and the time the 1934 curtain is rung down.

The Dukes didn't have the picnic they figured on against Valparaiso, and had it not been for the removal via the four personal foul route, in the second half, of two of the Hoosier stars, the locals might have had more of a ball game on their hands than they expected.

As has been pointed out before, the Dukes have not profited any too much in their games to date, for all have been more or less of the setup variety, and tomorrow, when they take on the admittedly formidable Westminster quintet, they may suffer from lack of experience gained from stern opposition.

The victory of Maxie Hannum's game Carnegie Tech quintet over West Virginia was hailed throughout the district. The Tartans, with only three veteran players on the squad, went to town in convincing fashion against the Mountaineers. True, their margin of victory was not great—but a single point is as good as a million in the old record book.

Harold (Whitey) Wilson, forward on the Pitt basketball team, has been suspended from athletic competition at the University of Pittsburgh by the eligibility committee of the university for participating with an outside team. The suspension is for the remainder of the year.

Irving Brenner, of the Dukes, leads the local college passers in scoring with 37 points. Murphy, of Duquesne; Willie Hughes and Claire Cribbs, of Pitt, share second place with 36 points.

LOCAL RACQUET STARS CLASH

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The opening gun of heavy winter tennis fusillade here will be fired this evening as local net performers disport themselves in the second annual Westinghouse Club exhibit. The high mark of the indoor board court bill is slated for 8:30 o'clock when Dr. John O'Loughlin, Western Pennsylvania men's singles premier, squares off against his brother, Dr. Dave, conqueror of the Japanese Davis Cup ace, Eikichi Itoh, and top ranking player of the district.

Following the man-to-man session, which incidentally is slated to go the best of three sets, Dr. Dave and Bill Clardy, Westinghouse luminary, will team up to battle Dr. John and his P. A. A. partner, Paul Sullivan, in doubles combat.

Meanwhile Charley Lockhart, G. C. Burgwin, Jr., and Warren Kreuger are preparing details of the yearly Pittsburgh Golf Club covered courts men's doubles tournament, the dates of which are soon to be announced. The golf club conclave, reeled off on the two clay rectangles of the Northumberland organization, has grown to the proportions of a most important event on the Steel City tennis calendar.

PIRATES EAGER TO OBTAIN CUCCINELLO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Manager George Gibson supplied the words and Pianist-President Bill Benswanger furnished a soft accompaniment as Gibby today took his Pirate ball team apart and then put it together without finding any glaring defects.

Gibson's monologue was given in a guarded tone at times, especially when he dwelt upon trade negotiations, but it did throw off enough significance to indicate the Bucco officials were on trail of a second baseman and a catcher.

The Pittsburgh officials apparently have been in touch with Brooklyn bosses relative to the services of Tony Cuccinello, but it was hinted that Manager Carey, of the Dodgers, would demand a big exchange in return for the hard-hitting little Italian who guards the keystone sack.

Gibson, nevertheless, has a high opinion of his team in its present formation. Starting off with the ball hawks of the pasture, Gibby spoke in this manner:

"Those Waner kids should be set for a banner season. The ball will be livelier and this ought to be a great help to little Lloyd, in particular. Moreover, I intend to try an outfield combination that will get Lloyd back to the post he seems to relish. I shall put him in center field with Fred Lindstrom in left field after we get to Paso Robles. If the switch adds to the smoothness of the club, Lloyd will stay in center. He appears to have trouble in fielding certain kinds of drives to left."

LIKES BUCCOS OUTFIELD

The Pirate skipper feels there would be no finer outfield combination in the game than the Pittsburgh trio, provided the Waners and Lindstrom played up to their capabilities. He continued:

"Let Paul, Lloyd and Fred do their stuff as they can do it and we will have a sweet outfield. And don't pass up that boy Woodie Jensen. A lot of clubs could use Woodie, who is capable of playing any of the three outfield positions."

As he carried his talk into the infield, Gibson did not scare at the second base situation. At the present writing the keystone berth is as wide open as Mayor McNair's lobby office, yet the manager feels that even if all trade negotiations break down the situation will regulate itself.

Reasoned George:

"I regard Cookie Lavagetto as a fine prospect, and I had only a fleeting glance at the kid. Fred Hoffmann, who managed the Mission Club last season, gave Cookie a big boost to me. Perhaps he still is too young for major league play, but his recommendations certainly carry the proper ring. Maybe you don't know that Dan Howley threw Big Bill Brubaker into the second base job in an emergency last summer and Dan says Bill was a 'natural' at the post. Besides we have Pep Young, a real performer, and Tommy Thevenow, one of the best infielders in the game from a defensive standpoint."

The adoption of the lively ball failed to shake Gibson's confidence in his pitching staff, but he is a wee bit apprehensive about his catchers.

GOMEZ, YANKEE HURLER, HERE

Vernon Gomez, ace left-hand pitcher of the New York Yankee staff, is spending the week in Pittsburgh. The young southpaw is the husband of Actress June O'Dea, who is appearing with Joe Cook at the Nixon Theater this week.

In his three full seasons with the Yanks, Gomez has averaged a bit better than 20 victories per season, although Lefty slumped with the rest of the Yanks as the Senators dethroned them last summer.

Gomez won 21 and lost nine games in 1931, his first full season; he had a fine card of 24 victories as against seven defeats in 1932, but last year he had only 16 triumphs to match against 10 reverses. Still, 61 victories in three years represents unusual skill in pitching.

The slender Yankee is only 23. His physique is fashioned along the lines of Walter (Dutch) Ruether, and like Ruether, Gomez hails from California.

Gomez thinks the Yanks have a strong club for the coming campaign, but he is claiming no flag.

PITTSBURGH BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

FINANCE LOOKS TO CAPITAL FOR CLUES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Business and finance in the first week of the New Year stood at attention waiting for clues to what was coming from Washington.

Mr. Rukeyser

And those in the street, who had accustomed themselves to thinking in a rut, evidently found little to become hilarious about in the initial developments at Washington.

With disarming candor, the President unfolded the financial cost of the "New Deal." Though the items run high, they can be financed provided they result in a substantial net increment in the national income. So far since the low point, there has been a substantial net pickup in business and prices, despite irregular tendencies.

In the President's budget message there was at least ground for sober encouragement in the knowledge that the administration was proceeding in accordance with a definite plan, and that it soon intended to begin tapering off on emergency outlays, with the definite promise to pay as you go in a year and a half, after which a period of net debt reduction was promised. To the extent that financiers believe that the administration will have the will and the power to carry out this compact, the public credit will be greatly strengthened, irrespective of the immediate strain of peace-time borrowing.

Among sympathizers with the "new deal," there has been some feeling that the President could have perhaps obtained the results desired with somewhat smaller contemplated increases in the national debt if he had leaned more heavily on unselfish advisors with broad business experience.

FARMS DEPRESSED

In striking up a balance sheet for the contribution of politics to business, the decisive factor, it seems to me, is the President's new emphasis on the importance of economic balance. On this particular occasion, it is the farm situation that is still relatively unduly depressed, but, if the thought of a well balanced national economy is to prevail, next time it might be factory products which need to be bolstered up.

Throughout the principal countries of the world in recent months, there has been a remarkable awareness of the importance of achieving definite balance.

This idea has taken hold not only in France, Germany, Italy and Russia, but in the last year or two even in England, which has departed from free trade ideas. The conception of a balanced economic life, not too readily disturbed by external developments, is an old one, but for 70 years or more it was beclouded by the doctrinaire vaporings of the academic mind.

The President's comment on the danger of indefinite piling up of foreign trade balances led to the expectation that he was ready to put international trade on a bookkeeping basis. Exporting then would be based on a clear perception of the true basis for international credits, rather than on mere stupid order taking.

BALANCED ECONOMY

To the extent that the President is successful in creating a balanced economy, the gross volume of business and employment will be enormously stepped up. In such circumstances, the tall talk about radical reform, which momentarily has frightened businessmen and financiers, may in historical perspective appear as mere flea-bites.

Nevertheless, since the credit of the nation depends on getting out of the huge emergency expenditures a real increment in national income out of which they can be financed, it becomes important for the administration to foster the process of reform above all else. This means analysis of the inconsistencies in various simultaneous moves, which need to be correlated and synthesized.

Of course, if reformers go to extremes in regard to individual industries, such as public utility holding companies, the latter are paying for their earlier excesses. Industries and companies which were free from racketeering are today in a favored position.

Perhaps no industry has been better conducted than the automobile industry, which is now holding its annual automobile show in New York. Instead of profiteering, the industry has always definitely sought to do the reverse, namely, improve the product while reducing the price. Accordingly, a consumer dollar spent for automobiles goes further than a dollar spent for the product of a less efficient industry. The auto trade again this year fights stagnation by making old models seem obsolete in terms of the new.

Individual companies, such as the Endicott Johnson Company, which through the years pursued a progressive labor policy, found their employes extraordinarily loyal and co-operative during the dark days of deflation and readjustment.

How rich the country will be when all industries are run as well as our exceptionally well-managed corporations have been handled!

Europe Shows Results Of Trade Revival

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

THE UNITED STATES has not been the only nation to experience an encouraging business revival during the past year. Most foreign countries have had at least a share of the recovery of 1933. In some cases the improvement may be attributed to monetary policies and other special circumstances, but the gains have been sufficiently general to indicate that natural recovery factors have been at work and that the cycle of deflation on a world basis has run its course and that a trend in the opposite direction is starting.

The bureau of business conditions of the Alexander Hamilton Institute has made a survey of world conditions which points to this conclusion. The bureau states that foreign trade of the world toward the end of the year showed an increase, not merely in terms of depreciated currencies, but actually in volume, indicating an increase in demand for commodities throughout the world.

The high points of the survey may be summarized as follows:

* * *

England Makes Notable Gains

GREAT BRITAIN has made outstanding progress toward recovery. Not only has the government succeeded in balancing its budget but it has been able, through refunding operations, to reduce substantially its debt service burden. Industrial activity in England has increased, with the result that the number of unemployed declined from 2,955,000 at the beginning of 1933 to 2,336,000 at the end of October. There has been an increase in the volume of foreign trade due primarily to improved business conditions and, to a certain extent, to the various commercial treaties concluded between Great Britain and other nations. Although England has remained off the gold standard, the pound sterling has fluctuated within a comparatively narrow range and since the middle of 1933 London exchange in Paris has been practically stable — between 80 and 85 francs.

France, on the other hand, has not been able to duplicate the progress of Great Britain. It may be recalled that France was the last of the great commercial nations to feel the effects of world-wide depression. According to the survey, forces of deflation still were at work in France last year.

The decline of the leading curriencies of the world affected adversely the French balance of trade which for the first 11 months showed an excess of imports over exports of 9,909 million francs. This factor, coupled with an outflow of capital, resulted in a sharp withdrawal of gold from the Bank of France of about 5,200 million francs from the first of September to the middle of December. The main problem confronting France, however, has been the budgetary situation. In order to balance the budget it was found necessary not only to increase revenues but also to decrease expenditures, which met with resistence on the part of the French Parliament. However, in spite of the difficult budgetary position, the Bank of France has been able to maintain the stability of the franc.

Germany Adds To Employment

Economic conditions in Germany in 1933 were to a large extent dominated by internal political developments. The ascension of the National Socialists to power in January 1933 started a series of revolutionary changes leading to a complete reorganization of the political and economic structure of Germany. While it is as yet impossible to predict what the outcome of this revolution may be, it is already clear that the industrial and financial establishments in Germany will be brought more and more under the influence of the government. According to official figures, the number of unemployed in Germany at the end of October was 3,746,400 against 5,109,200 in October 1932. This favorable development, however, was not entirely the result of increased business activity, but to a considerable extent was brought about by emergency employment works of the government. The German balance of trade for the 10 months of the year showed an exces of exports over imports of 565 million marks.

Economic conditions in Italy in 1933 showed a favorable trend. Toward the end of the year, production in the leading industries of the country tended to increase. The foreign trade of Italy during the year showed signs of improvement and the excess of imports over exports for the first 10 months was placed at 1,139 million lire as compared with 1,294 million lire in 1932. The Italian lira has remained more or less stable and there has been no apparent inclination to depreciate the currency.

The other Continental European countries in 1933 were to a large extent under the influence of the political upheavals in Germany. This was particularly so in the case of Austria. In spite of the difficult political situation, however, slow progress has been made in the rehabilitation of the various countries.

BROTHERHOOD OFFICERS TRIED

CLEVELAND, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The crash of the Standard Trust Bank went into another episode today in the trial of its former president and two former directors, both high officials in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, on charges of misapplying $450,000 in bank funds and making a false entry in the bank's records.

The defendants are C. Stirling Smith, who headed the bank and who has been convicted of embezzling some of the bank's funds; Alvanley C. Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood, and James H. Cassell, the Brotherhood's secretary-treasurer.

Johnston and Cassell were directors in the bank, which succeeded a Brotherhood institution.

The three defendants have denied guilt.

PILOT SCHOOL ADDS NEW COURSES

During 1934 the airplane and engine mechanics courses given by Penn School of Aviation will be enlarged to cover additional subjects, it was announced today by F. R. Crawford, managing director of the school.

Specialized courses in the maintenance repair and overhaul of the recently-perfected "blind flying" instruments will also be added. These courses have been included in the school's curriculum at the request of several air lines, there being a shortage of qualified "instrument men" to handle work created by the increasing use of this type of equipment.

SEEK APPROVAL

Classes are expected to begin as soon as the outlines of the courses, which are being submitted to the Department of Commerce, have been officially approved.

Penn School of Aviation is one of the few aviation training schools to hold an approval certificate from the Federal Government, Crawford pointed out, and, therefore, before a course can be given it must receive the sanction of the Department of Commerce.

NEW COURSES

Elementary and advanced instruction in general airplane and engine mechanics will be given at the school's Pittsburgh-Butler Airport base. Special courses in aircraft instruments, however, will be given at Cleveland in the shops of Pennsylvania Air Lines, of which the school is a division.

He said:

"I've farmed and auctioneered. But I gave the farm to my son to run and in the last four years I've hitch-hiked over 100,000 miles.

"Now I've figured I got a future. I'm going to hitch-hike to New York and get a job as a sort of a clown with Hagenback-Wallace circus. I always wanted to do it, and never had time before.

"Oh, I'm full of humor. You should have been at Prospect's Old Home Week, or at the convention where President Roosevelt was nominated. Now there's a man with vision.

"I attribute my long life and good health to being a Democrat. I've always been one.

"I have an autographed picture from the President. During that convention, I stood in front of the Congress Hotel haranguing thousands and urging them to vote for Roosevelt and the new deal.

"But don't think I'm an ordinary hitch hiker. I'm a gentleman of the road.

"To compare my mode of travel to the ordinary hitch hiker would be like comparing the brains of a grasshopper to those of a Daniel Webster or a Clay."

McGowan wears his burgess badge right out front. He's a card.

But he's traveled to Mexico, Canada, West and East. As he says:

"When I get in a car with a fellow, I tell him to step on it. Don't mind me."

He was in Pittsburgh today.

PUPILS START THEATER PANIC

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A group of exuberant youths decided last night that the proper way to celebrate the return from the Rose Bowl football victory of the Columbia University team was to "rush" an upper Broadway movie theater and shout "fire."

Twenty persons were injured, not seriously, in the resultant panic.

Some of the youths were identified by police as undergraduates of the university. They forced their way into the Nemo Theater and, once inside, someone shouted:

"Fire."

The theater was nearly filled, and there was a scramble for the exits. Police reserves arrived in time to make a dozen arrests, the youths being booked for disorderly conduct.

Many theater seats were broken as the crowkd rushed for exits.

Police said the students went to the theater to see pictures of the Columbia-Stanford football game, and forced their way in without tickets.

PASTOR, FREED, BACK IN PULPIT

JONESBORO, Ark., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dale S. Crowley, Baptist minister, continued his activities as pastor of the Jonesboro Baptist Tabernacle today following his speedy acquittal of a murder charge growing out of his bitter religious conflict with a faction headed by the Rev. Joe Jeffers.

Crowley returned here with his wife and two small sons—immediately after the conclusion of the trial and yesterday preached to his congregation at a downtown mission.

The tabernacle, scene of the church dispute and of the slaying of J. W. MacMurdo, janitor for the Jeffers faction, is closed and in possession of a receiver following foreclosure proceedings.

Crowley, the last defense witness, declared he shot MacMurdo in self-defense after the janitor had shot at him and pursued him to the door of the tabernacle with drawn gun.

Macon Line Smashes Auto, Woman Safe

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Mooring operations of the United States Navy dirigible Macon, world's largest aircraft, left Mrs. Henry Rangsdorff thrilled but shaken yesterday.

One of the Macon's mooring lines, a heavy 500-foot rope, dropped as the ship neared its Sunnyvale base and smashed the top of Mrs. Rangsdorff's sedan yesterday, she said. She was not injured. The dirigible, ending a three-day cruise, made a safe mooring a few minutes later.

Crippled Steamer Returns to Port

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The steamer Coama, which developed propeller trouble Friday night 400 miles at sea, returned to port today with her 81 passengers. One of the three blades of the vessels' single propeller snapped off.

She sailed Thursday noon for Puerto Rico and West Indian ports.

ARTIST'S SON ENDS ROAMING

Universal Service.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Alden Westover, 16-year-old son of Russ Westover, newspaper cartoonist and creator of "Tillie the Toiler," was back in his home here today after a boyish fling in vagabond adventure, which took him as far as Lansdowne, Pa.

Young Westover disappeared Friday from a train while en route to his classes at Choate School in Wallingford, Conn. When his coat and luggage were found in the train his father notified police.

A teletype alarm was broadcast through five states. Late Saturday young Westover telephoned his father from Lansdowne. He returned to his home yesterday. The cartoonist said:

"He came back safe and sound and everybody is happy. He had simply decided to go adventuring, having a few days before school opened."

UNDERHILL DIES, PAL CAUGHT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Wilbur Underhill, outlaw, died with 13 bullet wounds. Elusive Elmer Inman, a reputed confederate, is again behind the bars. And only four of the Southwest's major criminals remain at large as "the law" continues its relentless roundup.

Underhill, co-leader of the escape of 11 prisoners from the Kansas State Penitentiary on Memorial Day, 1933, and wanted for the slaying of four officers and their convict prisoner in Kansas City last June, died late Saturday night in the Oklahoma State Prison at McAlester. After seven months at large following the prison break, the slayer and robber was captured at Shawnee, Okla., December 30. A few hours before his capture, he fled a raided house under fire, receiving his fatal wounds.

Inman who assumed the role of Oklahoma's No. 1 desperado when his gang chief, Matt Kimes, was sentenced to life for murder, was wounded and captured at Bowlegs, Okla., Sunday A busy burglar and slippery as an eel in the hands of the law, Inman has numerous sentences and escapes on his record.

TRADE VOLUME HOLDING UP

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Retail trade generally enjoyed an excellent volume of business during the past week, with the usual post-holiday lull again failing to make its appearance as is usually the case in the weeks immediately following Christmas and New Years.

Most stores reported that the volume for the past week was once more in excess of the same period of last year, and in many cases the gain recorded over the same week of 1932 was reported to be substantial.

The trade reviews stated although the freezing cold weather experienced recently was lacking as a stimulus, the weather was cold enough in many sections to spur buying. The usual January promotions did much to induce the customer to buy, and in regard to these, it was stated that while clearance sales are quite prominent at the present time, the so-called close-outs and bargain sales are few in number, and actual mark-downs in prices are being held to a smaller percentage than last year.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH WANT-ADS BRING RESULTS

STOCKS FIRM IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—There was little life in the stock market today, although prices, as a whole were steady to firm.

The alcohol equities, while in small volume, raised their quotations moderately, some of the tobaccos rallied and various leading issues moved a bit higher. Dullness was the rule, however, in the early hours and the ticker tape was silent at frequent intervals. The dollar exhibited strength in British pound losing some 3 cents and the French franc yielding proportionately. Grains were narrow, but cotton again improved. Bonds were listless and irregular United States Governments were easier.

Most traders and investors, while not particularly bearish, were inclined to scrutinize potential commitments with more than the usual amount of caution. Various brokerage firms reported that the majority of stock purchases were of the highly selective type with buyers apparently looking more toward the "long pull" than the "quick turn."

Wall Street seemingly had eyes for nothing outside of Washington. With all sorts of conjectures emanating from financial observers on the Potomac, speculative circles were still rather confused over the legislative outlook.

In some parts of the banking section the situation was summariezd. The Treasury probably will have no trouble in borrowing the required 10 billion dollars at reasonable interest rates; inferentially, at least, actual currency inflation was on the shelf; drastic expansion of credit, with increased monetary velocity, may be expected to accompany huge government spending; dollar stabilization on a de facto basis may appear soon, although this country, for the moment, will be unable to reach any "pegging" agreement with the British or French; quick legislation may be expected to permit the Treasury to take over the $3,600,000,000 of Federal Reserve gold, preliminary to a formal devaluation of the dollar; business throughout the Unietd States should show substantial improvement, due to government "priming," during the next six months.

Some financiers in touch with foreign developments, discussing the problem of currency stabilization, expressed the opinion that neither the British nor French could be induced to agree to a "pegging" arrangement because of the fact that they expect the dollar to soar [illegible] billion or so of American [illegible] abroad starts to come home. Foreign exchanges, it is held, would be forced down rapidly under the capital repatriation rush. It is argued that the Europeans are waiting for this hoped-for slump to take place before agreeing to talk stabilization.

TRADE BUYING LIFTS COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Cotton futures opened steady, 6 to 14 higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and on active trade and commission house buying. January 10.66; March 10.68; May 10.86; July 10.99; October 11.15; December 11.32.

The opening advance carried March up to 10.69 and July to 10.99, but these prices seemed to meet active realizing or liquidation.

The buying continued, with the market fairly active after the call and prices were holding within 2 or 3 points of the best at the end of the first half hour.

A considerable volume of realizing and scattered selling was absorbed on the moderate early setback and the market soon firmed up on continued trade and commission house buying. March contracts advanced to 10.74c, while July sold up to 11.05c, making net gains of 13 to 16 points. These prices brought in another flurry of realizing or some liquidation on old limits, but the offerings were fairly well taken on reactions of 4 or 5 points and the market was steady at midday with active months showing net advances of 9 to 12 points.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 8.—Cotton, 100 bales all American. Spot good business done; prices nine points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 6.35; good middling 6.05; strict middling 5.90; middling 5.75; strict low middling 5.60; low middling 5.35; strict good ordinary 5.15; good ordinary 4.85. Futures closed very steady. January, 5.51; March, 5.50; May, 5.49; July, 5.49; October, 5.51; December, 5.53.

Steel Trade Expects Rate of Operations to Reach 60 Per Cent in Few Weeks

Notwithstanding the current lull, more or less expected as a consequence of the heavy call against standing orders in the last three weeks of final 1933 quarter, the steel trade is looking for a bisk revival of consumer demand without much further delay. Federal-financed construction, railroad buying and demand from building are expected to assert themselves in the near future. The magazine Steel, summarizing the outlook, forecasts a first quarter peak of around 60 per cent under the impetus which such buying will afford. In other words, the top rate for the current three months is expected to approximately duplicate, or perhaps exceed a little, the 1933 peak of 59 per cent touched last July.

A very substantial block of high-grade utility bonds was acquired and taken off the market, it was learned today, during the period of uncertainty which characterized bond trading last week. The total of utility obligations so purchased is reported to have run between $800,000 and $1,000,000. And these bonds, it is held, were taken "out of the market," that is, purchased for long term investment. Identity of the purchaser was not available, though the proportions and then ature of the deal suggested one of the larger trusts. Those informed of the operation were of the ropinion that it epresented a "switch" of funds out of non-dividend-paying common stocks.

More selling of automobile stocks, largely profit-taking, was noted last week. Those interested say clients are of the belief that a good quarter is likely for the first three months of 1934, but that the "cream has been thoroughly skimmed off" the leading automotive stocks. Some of those taking profits have been buyers of the motor accessory shares which have not participated to the same extent in the rise in this industry, according to traders who watch this department.

"The Trader" in Barron's Weekly, says, in part: "From the two important speculative viewpoints of the money program and immediate earnings outlook, the stock market is probably between hay and grass. If business should slump at an unhealthy rate and sentiment become impaired as it did in October, immediate ameliorative measures would undoubtedly be undertaken at Washington. Stocks are high, and many issues have made no progress for weeks. Corn products which is enjoying the biggest business since the World War, actually stands just where it was April 20, the day after formal abandonment of the gold standard. Profitable speculation from now out will require definite knowledge of emphatic earnings trends, and more than ever does it depend upon the vagaries of Washington."

Some people were more than a little upset by the showing of bank clearings for the first week of the year as compared with the level of wholesale prices. They found it difficult to reconcile the decrease of 4 per cent in bank clearings compared with the first week in 1933, when it was shown that wholesale prices currently are about 25 per cent higher. The first assumption, of course, was that the volume of business now is smaller, but those who sought to check could not but remark the better rate of business now prevailing. They ascribed the showing to special circumstances prevailing a year ago, making for unseasonal expansion in debits, recalling that withdrawal of deposits from banks around the country at that time doubtless raised debits sharply.

Moving inedependently of the general market, American Telephone was a bit of a feature during the day, pushing ahead of new high levels for its upturn. The stock was unquestionably influenced by the good showing of operating results by the company for November and the 11 months of last year. November gross was $688,000 larger, while net operating income was $1,288,643 contrasted with $218,646 in November, 1932. For the 11 months gross was only $2,100,000 smaller than in 1932, while net operating income was nearly $5,000,000, larger at $11,808,529. These figures covered only operations and were exclusive of income from interest and dividends.

GEN'L MOTORS SALES GAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States in December totaled 11,951 cars and trucks, comparing with 35,417 in November and 19,992 in December, 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States were 11,191 in December, as against 3,483 in November and 44,101 in December, 1932. Total sales to dealers in the United States and Canada plus overseas shipments amounted to 21,295 units, compared with 10,384 in November and 53,942 in December, 1932.

For the year 1933, sales to consumers in the United States were 755,778 units, comparing with 510,060 in 1932. Sales to dealers in the United States were 729,201 against 472,859 in 1932 and total sales were 869,035 as against 562,970 in 1932.

BANK OPENINGS SPEED UP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—J. F. T. O'Connor, the Comptroller of the Currency, said today that "every national bank in the United States which was unlicensed on March 16, following the banking holiday, had been acted upon in some manner" by his office. He continued:

"Such institutions have either been opened, merged, sold to another bank, absorbed by another institution, placed in receivership, received approved reorganization plans or received disapproved reorganization plans.

"There were 1,439 national banks (including 10 non-member banks in the District of Columbia, which are directly under the Comptroller's supervision) unlicensed and in the hands of conservators on March 16, 1933, while subsequent to that date seven other national banks were placed in charge of conservators. Total deposits for these 1,446 institutions was $2,232,690,000 (based on the December 1932 'call').

"At the close of business on December 30, 1933, there were but 448 unlicensed national banks in the country.

"More national banks were opened during the month of December than in any previous month since March."

Visible Grain Supply.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—The visible supply of American grain shows these changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 2,235,000; corn decreased 744,000; oats decreased 370,000; rye decreased 152,000; barley decreased 365,000.

News and Views

SUGAR CONSUMPTION

Sugar consumption in the United States during November was down 5.09 per cent compared with the corresponding month of last year, at 365,731 tons compared with 385,341, according to B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar brokers. November marked the sixth consecutive month of decrease as compared with the corresponding periods last year.

PNG IRON PROSPECTS

Pig iron makers are counting on a relatively small business in January, barring a sudden and sharp upturn in the steel trade. Sales in the New York district in December are estimated at about 8,000 tons against 14,000 in November.

NEW D. L. & W. AGENT

Clifford P. Barrett retired as general Western passenger agent of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad on January 1. His successor is William E. Carbone, general agent of the passenger department at Buffalo.

LONDON RUBBER STOCKS

London rubber stocks on December 30 totaled 35,777 tons, an increase of 134 tons over the preceding week. Stocks at Liverpool were 51,014 tons, a decrease of 192 tons.

MILLINERY RISE SEEN

Reports that code requirements will force a general increase in spring millinery prices are current, and retailers plan to anticipate their requirements to avoid the higher quotations.

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVE

Philip C. Kemp, recently a deputy administrator of NRA, has been appointed a vice president and general counsel of the American Locomotive Company.

LOCAL MARKET CONTINUES STEADY

Trading was quiet as the new week opened on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Prices held steady to firm in most sections of the list. Volume of business showed an inclination to taper off further following the letdown in activity noted toward the end of last week. The market here mirrored the situation on the "big board" where quotations ranged over a narrow scope. Absence of so-called "outside" interest in the market was apparent and the professional traders contented themselves with handing small lots back and forth and slight variations in price.

On the local exchange the dealings were confined mainly to odd lots of stock with the business fairly well distributed throughout the list. The fuels continued to hold near the somewhat better levels achieved since the pressure on this group subsided shortly before the turn of the year. Heavy industrials were quiet and the miscellaneous specialties showed only fractional changes from their week-end prices.

RISE IN STEEL OUTPUT SEEN

CLEVELAND, Jan. 7.—(AP.)—A pronounced increase in the production of steel in February and March is considered likely, the magazine Steel said today.

The "pronounced February-March bulge," as the magazine described it, will follow the expected placing of steel orders by the railroads, the automotive and the building industries, and a 60 per cent production rate is seen as a possibility by steel executives, the magazine said.

"Miscellaneous requirements from a diversified list of customers, plus some moderate automotive, railroad and structural business, have been sufficiently broad to prevent the steelworks operations last week from going below 31 per cent, exactly twice the rate in the comparable week last January. All indications appear to assure a rebound of several points this week."

Unexpectedly heavy steel orders were received during the first week of January and with inventories out of the way, the general manufacturing industries are expected to negotiate their first quarter contracts, the magazine said.

FOREIGN NEWS AIDS WHEAT

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—Grain prices averaged higher in early trading today. Liverpool dispatches suggested that deficiency countries might soon be obliged to buy wheat for February, March, April and May account.

Opening unchanged to ½c up, wheat later held near the initial limits. Corn started at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance and subsequently altered little.

Influenced a good deal by unusual strength of the cotton market, wheat soon made moderate all-around gains. Corn and oats were responsive to unfavorable weather both for corn movement and offerings.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

STOCK MARKET REACTIONARY FOR WEEK

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Last week the stock market was reactionary, losing about two points on average. Bonds also turned weak after Wednesday. Government bonds slumped despite active support. Among stocks, some of the leading performers were Chrysler and du Pont, which lost about four points, and General Motors and U. S. Steel, which lost over a point. The stock market, however, became duller and duller, the volume being small, and fewer issues being traded in.

Four general points of view are now influencing investors and speculators. These are as follows: Business stimulation, inflation, profit restrictions and "stabilization" and deflation.

INFLATION PROSPECTS

Some observers emphasize the importance of government spending as a business stimulant. They foresee increased volume of business and earnings. Others emphasize inflation prospects. They must favor raw material industries, gold and inventories. Some are impressed with prospective tax burdens and NRA restrictions. They emphasize the unfavorable attitude of the new deal toward profits, speculation, etc. Others see at least a period of attempts to "stabilize" the dollar, and think that this may mean some deflation. They emphasize the high prices of the "inflation stocks."

Obviously the first two groups can work together. They are bullish. The second two groups may also agree. They are more or less bearish, though the fourth group may favor some stocks as standing to benefit by stabilization—perhaps the stronger operating utility companies. These various ideas are the stuff out of which the market is now being made. Since the market is narrow and dull, we may judge that either they just offset one another, or that few traders have any strong convictions.

PERIOD OF DOUBT

We are now in a period of doubt and hesitation. The market reacts a little because it has been weak technically. It acts as though a little further reaction is to be expected. But it will not go a great deal lower, as there is so much prospect of inflation and "stimulation."

Those who stress the idea that stocks are very high compared with current earnings, argue as follows:

If any real business recovery lies ahead, it must be very slow and meet many obstacles. They have no confidence in "new deals."

Even if business activity is stimulated, the new dalers will take profits away from corporations in order to give "a more abundant life" to voters.

Some say that stocks still retain a large amount of last summer's pre-inflation markup, while as yet we have no actual inflation, and are not going to have much, if any.

They say that the administration must stabilize money in order to float bonds; that the budget is to be balanced by 1936, and that the shock of the huge deficit will tame wild congressmen who have wanted to inflate and spend without limit.

BIGGER BUDGET

Personally, I think that we will soon get used to the "bigger and better" budget. After all, there is nothing in the spending program and the huge debt that is new. Thoughtful people have seen the figures coming. Nor is there any indication but that the administration is going right ahead with the new deal. There is no possibility of real stabilization, because no definite monetary standard is in sight, nor any balanced budget.

There is every reason to expect real and effective inflation, as a means of "lightening" the huge public debt which, including twenty billion dollars of state and local debt, is going to be about fifty billion dollars.

So, unless you believe that Congress is going to kick over the traces and reject the new deal, I advise against going short of stocks. The only reasonable position seems to be to hold carefully selected stocks which are likely to benefit by government spending or by inflation, or by both.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Raw sugar was quiet early today.

Futures opened at declines of 1 to 3 points and later showed net losses of 5 to 6 points under increased liquidation and selling by trade and commission houses. March contracts declined from 1.26c to 1.22c and July from 1.36c to 1.32c, but around the lows there was a little covering and local buying, and prices rallied a point, leaving the market at midday about 4 points net lower on active positions.

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.30c for fine granulated, with a moderate inquiry reported.

BONDS WAVER UNDER BIG BUDGET

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—The bond market, encountering America's greatest peace-time budget, paused during the past week for contemplation.

Confronted with the presidential announcement to Congress that the Treasury would be forced to borrow some $10,000,000,000 in the next six months to meet both ordinary and extraordinary expenditures listed loans took time out to figure what repercussions, if any, might be expected.

Considering the nervousness of some holders under the circumstances, and the difficulty of analyzing the multifarious fiscal requirements of the recovery program, the financial district generally felt that the market gave a fairly good account of itself.

U. S. ISSUES SAG

Upon publication of the budget, with its apparent deficit of around $7,300,000,000 this year and $2,000,000,000 the next, there was a fast liquidation of U. S. government securities with some sizeable immediate losses. Support appeared, however, at the lower levels and net declines on the week were only moderate. There was no verification of reports that the Treasury had stepped in with large buying orders to aid the sagging list, although it was believed there were the usual purchases for the sinking fund and other accounts.

While the financial district had no doubt that the Treasury would find little difficulty in raising the large amount desired, some bankers wondered how interest rates would be affected by the transaction.

FOREIGN LIST GAINS

That the borrowing will be largely through the Federal Reserve banks was generally conceded although, in some quarters, it was felt that a long-term bond issue might be attempted to provide a portion of the funds if conditions warranted. The short-term debt—maturities of five years or less—is now said to be uncomfortably large.

There was no especial relapse in the corporation groups, but most active maturities finished a little easier on the week. The so-called high-grade issues were rather steady throughout. Foreign bonds as a whole, improved. The Germans were in demand at much higher prices following Washington's protest against the proposed reduction of cash interest payments on the reich's dollar bonds.

Cash Needs Viewed Calmly

By B. C. FORBES

WASHINGTON has occupied the center of the financial stage.

Mr. Forbes

The magnitude of the government's looming monetary needs, which were very frankly stated by President Roosevelt, caused immediate astonishment — and hurried selling of two government bonds.

Although the World War accustomed people to billion dollar public borrowings and spending, the news that fully $10,500,000,000 would have to be raised by the federal government, including $6,000,000,000 new funds, during the coming year, and that a deficit of $7,300,000,000 is anticipated, caused the financial community to gasp. But only for a very brief spell. The hasty liquidation of government obligations at declining quotations speedily dried up. Admittedly, government agencies supported the market. But since then government bonds have reflected little or no nervousness and the international value of the dollar has been little affected.

WHILE THE PRESIDENT'S plain intimation that stabilization of the currency is not a nearby possibility was not raised in responsible financial circles, compensation was found in the equally plain indication that the President does not contemplate meeting expenditures by setting the money printing press whirring.

The latest step taken to corral every dollar of gold in the country is interpreted as preparing the way for revaluation, by and by, on a gold basis, presumably a 50-cent dollar. Such a prospect no longer alarms.

By halving the gold content of the dollar and appropriating to itself all the yellow metal held by Federal Reserve Banks, the government would give itself a "profit" of some four billions. And, this could then be treated, it is semi-officially pointed out, as a gold reserve against the issuance of whatever additional billions of currency it might be deemed expedient to create.

THE PREVAILING belief is that one way or another, the government will prove able to cope with its colossal emergency expenditures, expenditures estimated to swell gross national debt to $35,000,000,000.

It is also the prevailing conviction that the government's activities will lead to inflation of prices, one of the avowed objectives of the administration.

NOTHING spectacular occurred outside of Washington last week.

THE SECURITY markets were weakish. Commodities moved irregularly. Retail trade developed no new trend.

In other directions developments were mixed. Dividend declarations were distinctly cheering. On the other hand, Washington's peremptory order to a United States Steel Corporation subsidiary to deal with outside union labor leaders was noted with some misgiving by heads of corporations operating under company unions.

Sentiment was helped by the exuberance manifested by motor leaders invading New York for their annual show. But, leaders in the important oil industry became uneasy over a fresh outbreak of price cutting.

A CHANGE of attitude towards the NRA is becoming very noticeable. Less is now heard of hardships imposed; more is now heard of benefits reaped and expected. If remaining labor difficulties can be satisfactorily adjusted, confidence grows that many harmful trade practices can be eliminated, live and let live prices established in most lines, wages maintained and even a modicum of profit earned by ably managed enterprises.

This marks a genuine gain, a promising augury for the new year.

ON THE WHOLE, disposition to co-operate with President Roosevelt is pronounced. Bankers constitute the least optimistic group. Notwithstanding that veritable miracles were achieved by Washington officials in completing the machinery necessary for putting into effect the guarantee of bank deposits, influential bankers express apprehension over what our federal lawmakers may do and not do. Tax plans are anxiously awaited by all classes.

The actual temper of Congress has not yet been revealed. But, the widespread opinion is that President Roosevelt will be generally supported.

ALL IN ALL, 1934 has opened not unpromisingly.

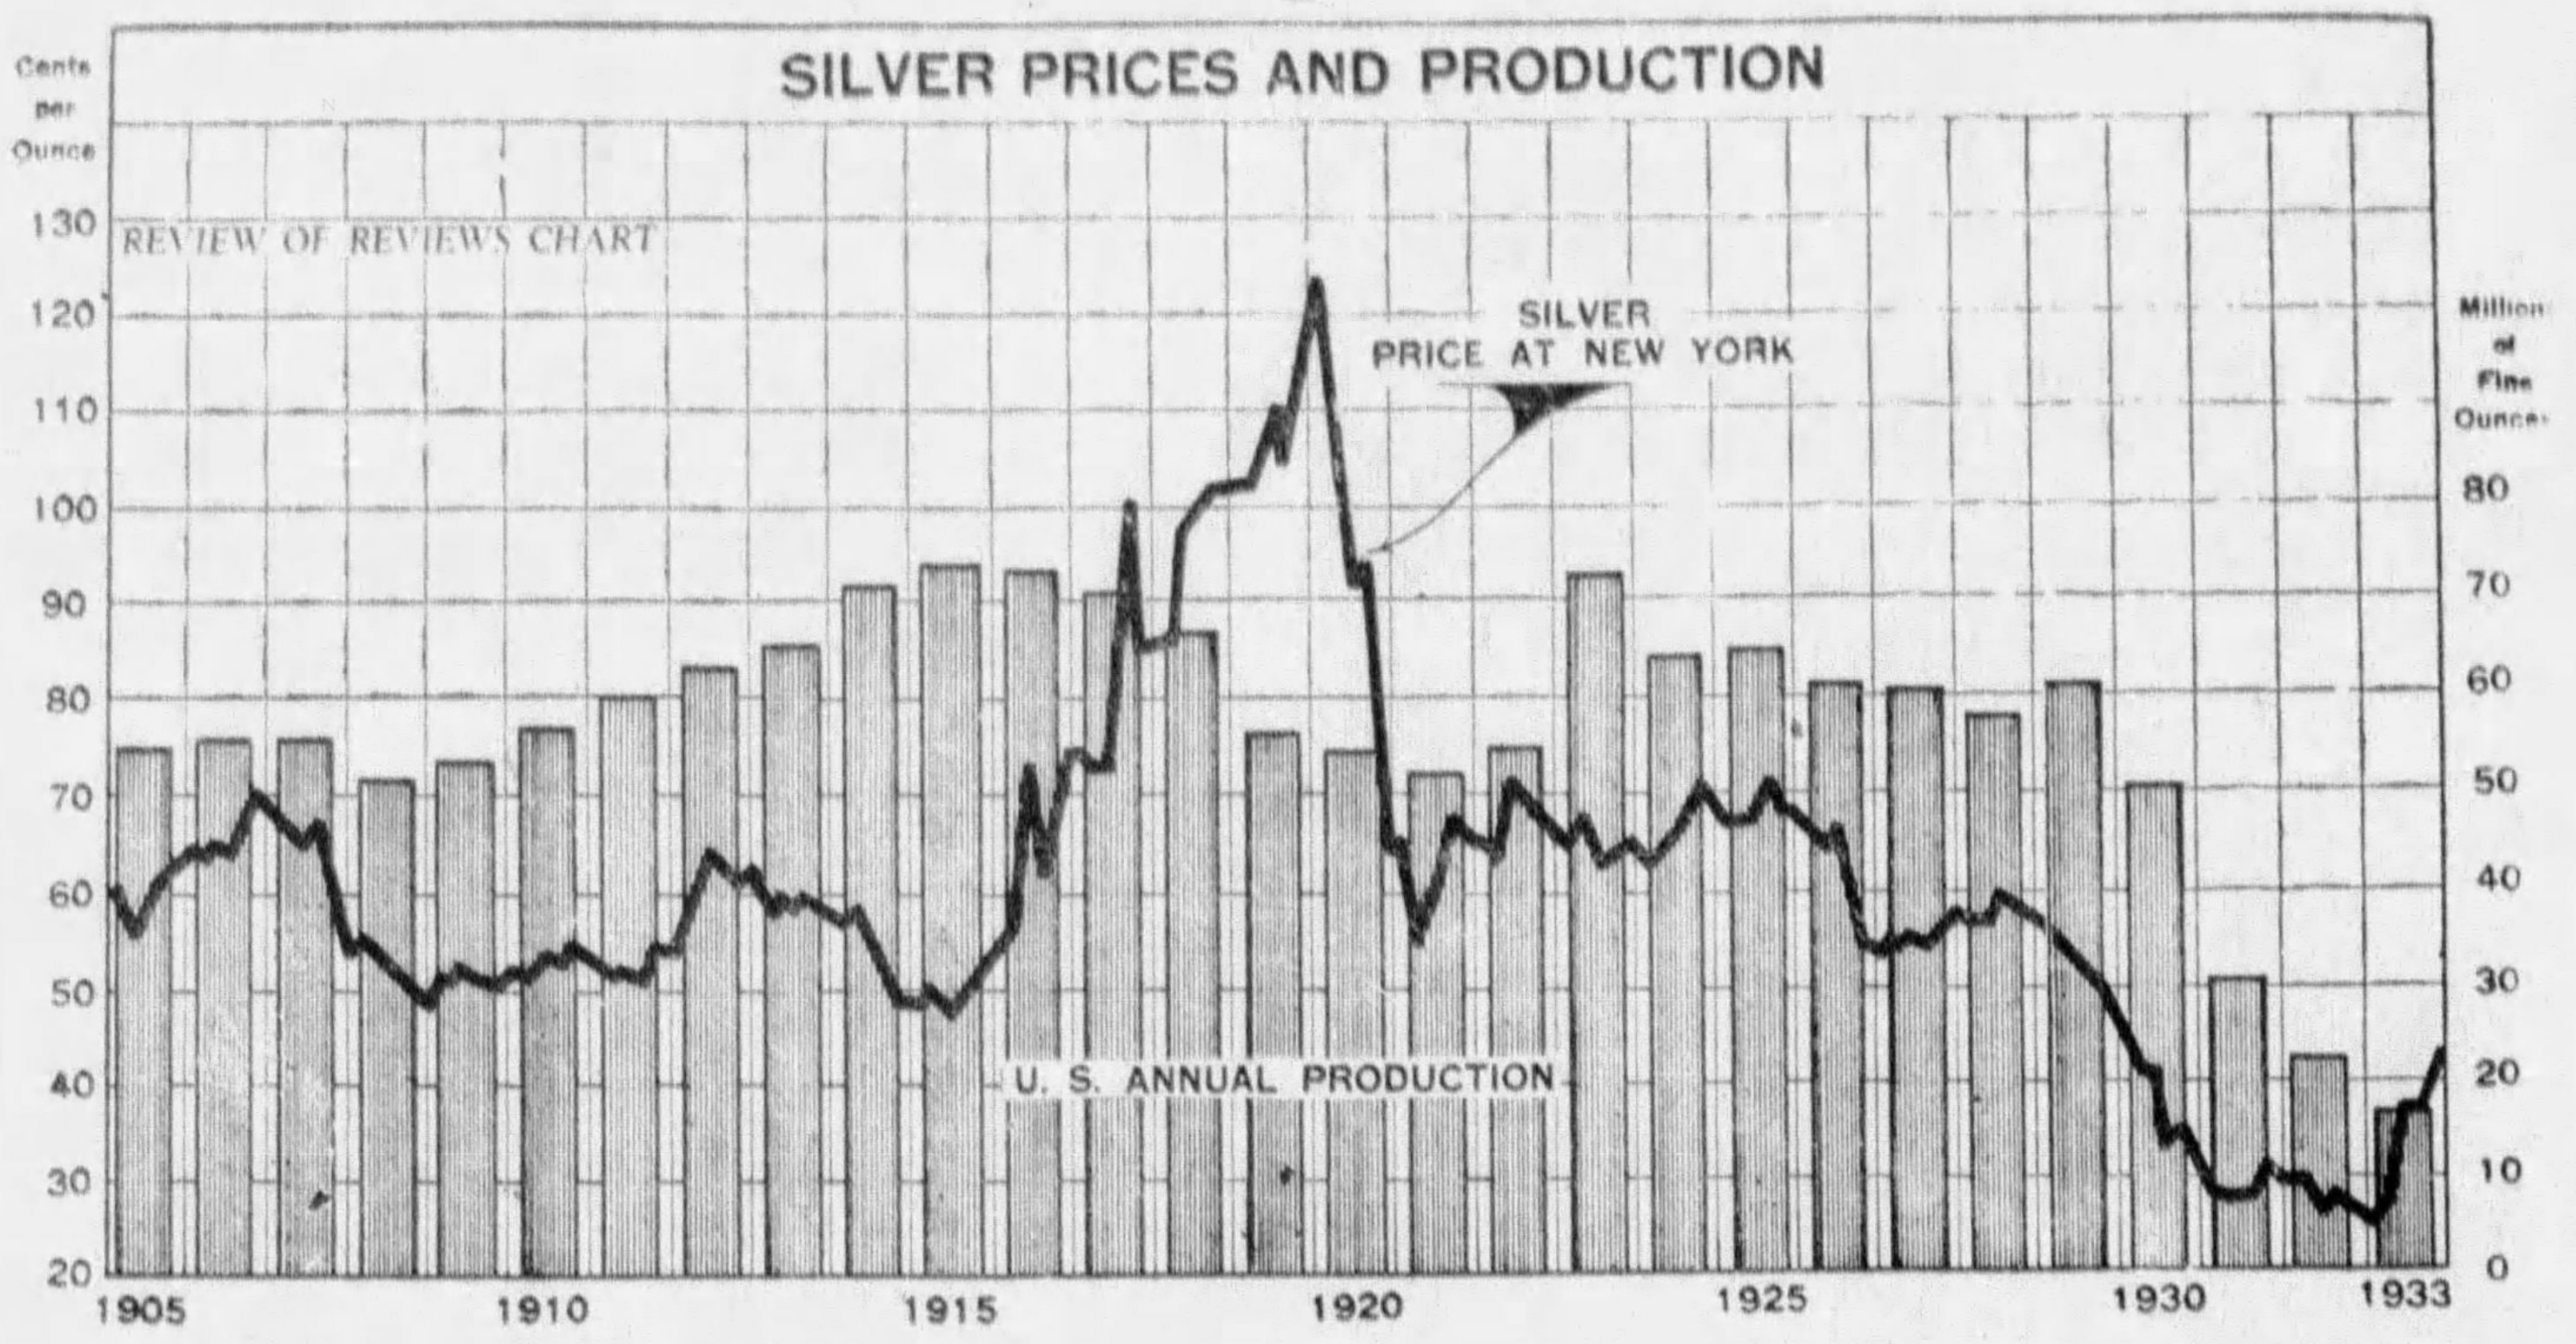
Silver Advocates Press Cause as Gold Teeters on Single Standard Pedestal



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Review of Reviews

Under the terms of the President's silver purchase statement the government is prepared to purchase the annual output of American silver producers at a price of $1.29 an ounce. This, as the English would express it, is a handsome price.

The difficulty is that Uncle Sam exacts an equally handsome commission for converting the silver bullion into money, a commission which absorbs exactly one half the price. This leaves the producer 64.5 cents an ounce. Even so it is a decided improvement over the all-time lows which succeeded each other during the previous years. Silver still falls short of the old legal price of $1.29 an ounce.

This is a sore point with producers and friends of silver. Where gold today sells for $34.06 an ounce, 65 per cent above the old legal price, silver is only one half its former value. The government furthermore coins 371¼ grains of the white metal into a dollar and it passes into circulation at its full monetary value. Silver advocates are unable to see why the government cannot treat them with the same favor it does the gold producer.

It is difficult to argue the matter on abstract principles. In the abstract, silver may be considered just as valuable for monetary purposes as gold. Furthermore if the recession in world prices today has been the result of inadequate supplies of the sovereign precious metal, gold, then a restoration of silver values has the added social virtue of elevating the price level.

It is the contention of the silverites who occupy a key position in the inflationist camp that the free coinage of silver would at once solve the price problem of this country and perhaps of the rest of the world as well. They obtain considerable satisfaction from the premises of Prof. Warren, the monetary advisor of the President, whose impressive demonstrations of price statistics seek to prove that the world does not have enough gold to support the volume of production and trade prevailing during the postwar period.

Whatever final effects on prices the silver policy may have and whatever validity the theories of the silverites may possess, the fact remains that the rise in silver price is a great boon to the silver producers. Taking the prices of the first of March, gold has gained 65 per cent and silver 144 per cent.

Atlas Tack Reports Profit for 9 Months

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Atlas Tack Corporation reports for the nine months ended September 30 net profit of $61,200, against net loss of $41,303 for the same period last year. The balance sheet for September 30 shows current assets of $587,139, which included $136,806 cash. Current liabilities were $62,203.

Fluctuations in the stock of the company which preceded the sharp break last month are now under inquiry by the securities bureau of the state Attorney General's office.

India and China Crux Of Silver Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A substantial rise in the world price of silver is dependent upon the resumption of large importations of the metal by India and China, and their ability to buy is contingent upon an improvement in economic conditions, says the annual silver market review of Handy and Harman, bullion brokers.

The firm estimates the 1933 world silver output at 163,000,000 ounces, divided as follows: United States, 21,400,000 ounces; Mexico, 69,100,000 ounces; Canada, 15,400,000 ounces; South America, 13,500,000 ounces; all others, 43,600,000 ounces. The estimated output is slightly less than the production in the preceding year.

With reference to the recent steps by the government to improve silver values, the Review says:

"So far as market appreciation from congressional action is concerned, although the possibility of a greater use of silver in our monetary system is not to be overlooked, nevertheless we feel that the maximum which may be expected in the matter of actual purchases has already been accomplished by the President's decree to buy newly mined American silver.

"It is inconceivable to us that without International co-operation, which seems most unlikely, the United States government will adopt bi-metallism, which would ultimately put this country on a silver standard; and it would appear highly improbable that unrestricted purchases of silver from world supplies will be authorized."

GERMAN CHURCH WAR GROWS

International News Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—Unless banned in the meantime, a new series of protest meetings will be held in Lutheran churches of Germany tonight against Nazi control of religion. They will follow indignation sermons preached in hundreds of German Protestant pulpits yesterday.

The struggle is against Primate-elect Ludwig Mueller, friend of Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Nazi head of the German Evangelical Church. The lead is being taken by the Rev. Martin Niemoeller, who wears an iron cross and commanded a submarine during the World War. In his Sunday sermon he declared paganism had entered the church and that Mueller had resorted to force.

Estimates of the number of pulpits, in which a protest statement was read, range from 4,000 to 6,000, according to Lutheran spokesmen.

That Chancellor Hitler does not intend to be disobeyed on his choice for a head of the Lutheran Church was indicated Sunday night when police broke up a procession by 1,000 Sunday school boys and took their leader into custody.

NUDE BOY DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—Inspector John I. Navarre, of the homicide squad, said that an accident apparently caused the death of Charles Bertle, 17-year-old high school boy whose nude and fantastically trussed-up body was found on a piano bench in his home Friday night.

This announcement was made yesterday after the police had advanced and rejected theories of slaying and suicide.

Inspector Navarre said a coroner's inquest will be asked to definitely establish the cause of death. It was planned to ask recorder's court psychiatrists to study the case.

The boy's mother found the body when she returned from her office Saturday night. The body lay face up on the piano bench in the center of the living room. Death apparently was caused by strangulation from a rope which had been wound about the throat and knotted about the trunk and thighs. Coroner Edmund Knoblock said it was possible the boy had fainted after trussing himself up.

Police still sought for questioning a former inmate of Illinois State Prison known to have visited the Bertle home recently.

JEALOUSY ENDS IN KILLING

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Jan. 8.—(AP.)—J. Francis Welsh, 30, an insurance salesman and a member of a prominent Kalamazoo family was shot to death early yesterday following a quarrel with Alexander J. Wolf, 27, over Welsh's friendship with Mrs. Wolf.

The police said Wolf, an unemployed salesman, surrendered and confessed the shooting. He was held without charge. His wife, Zelda, 25, was held as a material witness. Mrs. Wolf is a waitress in a local hotel.

Police said the shooting followed a party at a night club. Welsh was a former high school basketball and baseball star and was the son of the late Dr. Francis J. Welsh, prominent Kalamazoo physician.

WOMAN KILLED IN HOTEL LEAP

HARRISBURG, Jan. 8.—(AP.)—A woman registering as Evelyn G. Bauer, of Danville, Pa., plunged 12 stories to her death from the Hotel Harrisburger early today.

Police said they found in her room a note arranging for the disposition of her body and directing that $4.50 which she had left be used to pay for her hotel room and a telegram.

Police said the note read:

"If I should die, please notify M. G. Youngman, president of the Danville National Bank, and tell Thaddeus Vincent, mortician, to come and get my body."

The woman was alone and registered last evening. She was fairly well dressed.

FOURTH DEGREE

By K. S. DAIGER

CHAPTER IV.

But in spite of our victory, I was feeling far from good. Any decent reporter ought to be able to get away with murder itself, let alone a few snaps in a hick burying ground.

My first action upon arriving at the office that morning was to tack a large and prominent sign over my desk:

ANYBODY INQUIRING HOW I FEEL WILL GET A BLACK EYE.

I didn't expect it to shut off any inquiries, but it made me feel better.

Bob Reynolds, the managing editor, was the first to notice my return and to descend on me.

Synopsis

When Officer Dickey Carroll saw a stranger emerging from the Paige estate, in Baltimore's exclusive residential section, at 2 o'clock in the morning, he failed to make an arrest. Carroll did not know then that stark tragedy had invaded the home which Randolph (Ranny) Paige shared with his popular young wife, Sonia. Returning from business in Washington, Ranny found his wife hanging by her silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. The coroner returns a verdict of suicide. Carroll, disputing the verdict, reports to Chief Inspector Anderson and Sergt. Williams, about the man he saw leaving the Paige property. They attach little importance to this so Carroll, in anger, gives his story to a newspaper with the hope of forcing the police to reopen the case.

Now Go On

"Had a nice trip, I take it?" he said casually, glancing at the sign with interest. "The pictures were perfectly rotten. I wouldn't have used them if there'd been aything else!"

"Uh-huh," I grunted. "Go tell it to Clayton. He's the photographer."

"Say, Kay," continued Reynolds, "I wouldn't expect you to do anything as strenuous as writing a story for this newspaper, but I wonder if I could trouble you to jot down a few lines about the Paige murder—just a little description, you know, in your delightful style—nothing that requires any work or thought?"

"What Paige murder?" I asked nastily. "You mean the Paige suicide?" (I had read the lurid accounts of Sunny's death the night before, and although I would not have admitted it for worlds not a little of my depression had been caused by this very tragedy. She had been so lovely!)

"No," said Reynolds smoothly. "You know that young policeman Carroll—the one who's always getting into trouble—he's here in the office now and he states positively that he saw a man emerging from the Paige estate at the very time that she was dying. He's going to move heaven and earth to get the case re-opened. Says the Department is whitewashing a murder and he won't stand for it."

Objects to Job

"Yeh?" I inquired with only languid interest. "So I'm expected to write three or four columns with an eight-column head on the strength of this young fool? What do the police say about it?"

"Intimate it's so much foolishness and refuse to re-open it. But you talk to him, will you, and get his story and see if there's anything in it? If we send him away he'll walk straight over to the Herald."

"No I won't," I answered. "I'm not supposed to report for work today. It's my day off. I've got a bum head and a lame finger and only one finger to type with. Besides I feel rotten."

"I wanted to ask you how you felt," said Reynolds pleasantly, "but I didn't exactly like to. I'll send Carroll right over." He looked at the sign which I had forgotten and walked away.

While I sat with my hat jammed down over my eyes, scowling at my typewriter and inwardly cursing the whole crime game, I heard a voice say:

"Oh, good morning. How do you feel?

I doubled up one fist threateningly, thinking that the first of the cubs had descended upon me, and then I found myself looking into the smiling frank countenance of a young officer whom I'd often seen at Headquarters and to whom I'd always said "Hello" just because he always said "Hello" to me.

Wants Investigation

Then he saw the sign and flushed. Yes, he actually did, and in the intriguing interest of discovering the first genuine blush since 1900, my ill humor evaporated.

"Glad to see you," I said. "Take a seat, if you can find one. Anything you wanted with me — I'm not working today, however—or is this just a little social call?"

"Say," he began, carelessly knocking a dozen or so of my best stories on the floor and bending over confidentially, "do you know who I am?"

He asked me in a whisper as though he expected me to reply that I thought he was the Prince of Wales incognito.

"Haven't an idea in the world," I denied cheerfully. "Go ahead: shoot!"

"I'm Carroll," he announced in a melodramatic voice. "You know, the guy at Headquarters who's always getting into hot water."

"You seem pretty gay for a chap who's in trouble, though I guess you're used to it by this time."

He colored again, so beautifully that I leaned over and patted his shoulder.

"That's all right, boy," I told him. "They're a pack of old ladies up there. Dismiss them from your mind. What's the rumpus about this time?"

"Well, sir," he began, "you see it's this way. They say that Sunny Paige committed suicide, but I'm not sure that she did. It's my idea that she may have been murdered by a man that I saw there in her lane at about the time she died. I've gone to Inspector Anderson and to Sergeant Williams at Towson and asked them both to re-open the case but I can't get them interested.

"And here's another angle. You certainly know the reputation Ranny Paige has. It strikes me that his story of his actions the night before last could be investigated."

'I don't seem to follow you entirely," I said at last, interested in spite of myself. "In one breath, you seem to insinuate that Paige himself actually murdered his wife. In the next, you apparently mean that she was murdered by some mysterious man whom you saw leaving her grounds in the neighborhood of 2 o'clock. You aren't trying to say that Paige and this man are one and the same, are you?"

Carroll shook his head. "They don't look a thing in the world alike. Paige is short and very slender. This man was tall and stooped-over. Not young at all, I should say. But you get me all wrong; I'm not trying to insinuate anything. I haven't an idea who killed her—or if she was killed at all. I'm just demanding that a more thorough investigation be held!"

Photographs Shown

I chewed on the butt of my cigar in silence for a while. "There's one thing," I said finally. "You say you left the Paige lane at two o'clock. How is it that you didn't see Mr. Paige return in his automobile or pass him on the road?"

"Because he turned off at Towson and came up the back way," explained Carroll. "About a mile and a quarter out of Towson there's a dirt road that runs up to the Paige estate and to a lot of those big houses along there. It's in good condition now because it hasn't rained for a long time. Paige was late and took that road because it was shorter."

"Then, as a matter of fact, he may actually have been in his own home at about the very time that you were parked on the highway?"

"More than likely he was. His phone call came in some time before I reported back to Towson."

"It's your idea that his return may have scared this mysterious man from the house?"

"It's possible."

He pulled two photographs from his coat pocket.

"Here's another point, too," he continued. "I wish you'd look at these and tell me if anything strikes you."

It was the official picture of Sonia Paige's body as it had been when the coroner examined it. I took it, and for the first time looked at the slender graceful body, the lovely neck with its profusion of curls encircling it. It was a beautiful woman, in spite of the distorted face with its blackened distended features, its protruding eyes, its swollen tongue.

"Think I'll get a drink of water," I said, abruptly rising. "This shoulder of mine pains like the devil."

"That's the way I felt when I first looked at it," said Carroll. "And I knew her, too—knew how beautiful she really was."

"I see nothing unusual about the picture," I commented when I returned a minute or two later from the drinking fountain at the other end of the big editorial room.

Uncommon Knot

"Look at the other," said Carroll.

The second photograph showed the room where the tragedy had taken place, the chandelier with the slender rope dangling from it, and the overturned chair beneath.

"Tell me," I said at last. "What's wrong with either picture? You evidently have a joker up your sleeve but they look all right to me."

"It's this cord," explained Carroll, pointing to the knotted rope on the electric fixture. "Do you notice how it has been tied?"

I studied it carefully. "Not particularly," I confessed.

"It may mean a lot or it may mean nothing," continued the patrolman. "It strikes me that that is a most remarkable knot for a woman to have tied. I can't give it any name, but it's an uncommon knot. I doubt that I could duplicate it and I know a good many varieties."

From a desk drawer I pulled a magnifying glass and focused it on the cord. It was true that the knot seemed to be an intricate one, unusual for a young girl to have known.

"That is as it may be," I said. "Mrs. Paige may have had this particular knot taught to her by someone. I'm not certain that we could establish that fact unless this proves to be some distinctive type known only to a surgeon or a sailor, let us say. It's not enough to make us cry 'Murder—Murder!'"

"Then you won't do anything about it?" asked Carroll hopelessly.

"I didn't say that," I answered, for I knew perfectly well that if my office turned him down he would continue on his way to the Herald, which was bitterly antagonistic to the present police administration and would welcome an opportunity to roast it.

PRESIDENT ANDREW JACKSON'S SECOND TERM—DESTRUCTION OF NATIONAL BANK

Jackson's proclamation against South Carolina's nullification (establishing federal government as supreme over states) won him a second term (1833-1837). He completed destruction of the National Bank (recharter vetoed) by ordering government deposits shifted to state banks; see above cartoon, expressing popular sentiment.

Inflation, speculation followed, ended in panic (1837) after Jackson issued his "specie's circular," requiring gold and silver payments for public lands. Another mistake was the "spoil-system."

National Republicans under Clay, disappointed Southerners, opponents of the spoils system, united in the "Whig party" against the Jacksonian Democrats. Social movements to improve the lot of wage earners, for temperance and woman's rights appeared in the Jacksonian era. Courtesy of Yale University Press. (Pageant of America)

CRIPPLED CHILDREN HAVE FUN IN HOSPITAL SCHOOL

Wheel chairs and crutches do not keep these children from having fun. What the camera could not catch is the heartbreaking reel of physical and mental sufferings to be unwound in the future of these little martyrs to disease. We should be thankful and happy for having able bodies, should avoid carelessness in inviting sickness, accident. Also we should offer every possible help and assistance to the unfortunate, who are handicapped by some physical defects. (Character Building)

SUNLIGHT AND VITAMINS

Ultra-violet radiation produces vitamin D (antirachitic) in foods and body; so does sunlight, containing ultra-violet rays.

Sunlight is necessary to maintain health, especially for babies to develop straight bones and good teeth. Ultra-violet rays do not pass through clothing and window-glass.

KING JOHN OF ENGLAND SIGNING MAGNA CHARTA

Feudalism—small communities headed each by a lord, all ruled over by a king—characterized the Middle Ages. Strong kings managed to collect revenues, maintain powerful armies and unite the communities into a nation. Toward the close of the Middle Ages, royal power, the new nationalism, eclipsed feudalism.

As protection against despotism several sovereigns were compelled by the nobles and people to grant charters, guaranteeing liberties. Most outstanding is "Magna Charta" of England (1215), the germ of the constitutional English monarchy. (World History)

PIONEERS OF STEAMBOAT BUILDING—HULLS—SYMINGTON—FITCH—FULTON

The first steamboat probably was built by Jonathan Hulls, who patented it in England, 1736. Above left: His patent drawing. In 1788 a Scotchman, William Symington, built a steamboat with two paddle wheels in the middle of the deck. In 1786 John Fitch, an American, built a steamship and carried passengers on the Delaware (1790). Starving, he killed himself. Robert Fulton, a Pennsylvania painter, built his first steamboat in France (1803). Unsuccessful in interesting Napoleon, he returned to America, built his "Clermont" in New York, launched it in 1807. His first trip covering 150 miles up the Hudson in 32 hours marks the beginning of commercial steam navigation.

THE LAST TIME I LISTENED TO A FORTUNE TELLER WAS JUST BEFORE THE STOCK MARKET BUSTED IN MY FACE.
THIS WOMAN TOLD ME I HAD A DAUGHTER AND THAT I WORRIED A GREAT DEAL ABOUT HER STILL BEING SINGLE. ALSO THAT PEGGY HAD CHANCES TO MARRY BUT WAS TOO PARTICULAR. IMAGINE.

Bugs Baer

The Bug Forgot to Duck

Looks like a repeal ain't such an improvement on prohibition. That's human nature and cracker crumbs won't disguise it.

First, the boys pleaded for another chance. Give 'em one slug of liquor a week and they would run as even a temperature as an Egyptian mummy in the Smithsonian Institute.

When we loosed up on them a bit they started to plead for a foot on the brass rail.

Now, they want their hats in the sawdust.

"Be good, boys," we implored, "Take it easy. Drinking for taxes is patriotic. But it will get you no refunds. A bird in the bottle is worth two chirps in a cage. Why rush in where angels fear to telephone? It was a 14-year haul across the burning sands. And you're going back as sure as robin eggs are blue."

They paid not the slightest attention to The Bug. They were intoxicated with bonded success and drunk with chasers.

"Listen, me lads," said The Bug, "The difference between temperance and indulgence is so fine that a cricket couldn't play it on his hind legs.

"We got you out of chancery once but you are rushing the scorched toast back into the burning building.

WHAT'S TH IDEA OF SOCKIN' YOUR FRIEND ?
TH' JOKE'S ON YOU – I DON'T KNOW HIM !

"We can't play fairy godmother all the time. Not with this gravel-throat tenor. We're tired of changing the six white mice and the pumpkin into a beautiful crystal chariot and prancing white steeds. It wears out the mice.

"If you are going to carouse, bellow and slug your neighbor as thyself, it will not be long before the crow is back in the brewery chimney and the jackal is howling from the distillery tops.

"Don't forget that The Bug wrote in favor of personal liberty for 14 years. But he quits when it gets too personal. The Bug is now walking around with a purple and green eye donated by a total stranger for no reason at all and charges prepaid. That's no way to treat the historian of moderation and the prophet of repeal.

"Don't overlook the percentages. Out of 48 states only 36 voted for it and but 28 want it. That leaves 20 states for us old patriarchs of temperance to hole up in.

"Possibly, the total stranger didn't know whom he was popping on the glim. Maybe he did. If so, then retribution has driven up and the chickens have come home to roost.

"Bring out the old road map. We're fleeing West and we want to skirt the large cities."

Political Parasites

Superfluous Officeholders in an Obsolete System of Local Government Are Crushing the Taxpayers

Millions of Americans North, East, South and West begin the new year bending under the yoke of an obsolete system of county and local government.

This overlapping, inefficient, onerous and wasteful system is breaking the backs of the taxpayers upon whom the burden of its support devolves.

It is closing the public schools of the country by the thousands and depriving young Americans by the millions of that free schooling which is their birthright.

It is putting in jeopardy other vital governmental services throughout the several states.

It is feeding at the public trough a horde of political parasites whose salaries and expenses the people can no longer afford to pay.

This iniquitous system of overlapping county and local government plagues every state in the Union. It is an evil inheritance from the early days of the Republic when the oxcart was a widely used means of transportation.

To meet the governmental needs of the people in the day of the automobile, this hand-me-down system is as ill-suited as the oxcart would be to meet today's demands for transportation.

In 1934, TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND separate governments will collect taxes from the people throughout the Union.

ALMOST FOURTEEN THOUSAND separate taxing units will be active in the state of New York alone. Ohio will turn loose FOUR THOUSAND upon her people, and Indiana will authorize TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED to collect from citizens of that state.

In fact, more than half of every dollar the American people will be compelled to pay in taxes in 1934 will go for the support of county and local government.

This is only another way of saying that MORE THAN HALF of every tax dollar will go this year to pay the salaries and other expenses of county and local government in thirty-five hundred counties, in more than sixteen thousand five hundred incorporated cities, towns and villages, in one hundred and twenty-seven thousand school districts, and in other thousands of township and special districts into which government in the several states is now divided.

Attempts to patch up county government over a long period of years have failed in state after state. They will continue to fail for the reason given by Prof. Herman G. James, of the University of Texas. This student of the problem has the courage and the common sense to sound the death knell of county government in these words:

> "The American county is neither a natural unit for the administration of state affairs, nor does it constitute a natural division for the conduct of local affairs.
>
> All compact settlements with more than two or three hundred inhabitants are natural and proper units for local government organization. The strictly rural population can have its administrative governmental needs more effectively filled by means of direct state administration."

ABOLITION OF COUNTY GOVERNMENT THROUGHOUT THE UNION is the first step toward the restoration of responsible and truly representative government in the sovereign states that make up the Federal Union.

Governors and Legislatures with the common sense to comprehend that county government is obsolete and ought to be abolished will take this first step in 1934 if they have the courage to follow where this obvious fact leads.

Pymatuning Swamp

It Is Gratifying to Learn That Wild Life Will Not Be Entirely Destroyed By the New Lake

The dam across the Shenango valley which is to turn Pymatuning Swamp into a lake 18 times as big as Conneaut Lake, has been completed.

While lovers of aquatic sports have been rejoicing over the prospect of a great new playground, Pittsburgh naturalists have been grieving; for the swamp was the habitat of unusual flowers and birds. Many excursions have been made to Pymatuning by students of botany and zoology in local educational institutions.

They can cheer up. Dr. M. Graham Netting, of the Carnegie Museum staff, told the Sewickley Audubon Society that many species of the swamp's interesting fauna and flora will survive in swamp land on the fringe of the lake. And Dr. George M. Sutton, the ornithologist, said he would not be surprised if the lake attracted cormorants, hooded mergansers and other water fowl now rarely seen in Pennsylvania.

Furthermore, Dr. Netting has discovered another swamp—in Warren County—which, while not nearly so large as Pymatuning, is fully as rich in lady's-slippers and the other treasures of plant and animal life which have made Pymatuning such a happy hunting ground for nature lovers.

We think the coming of the lake, now slowly being formed back of the dam, can be hailed with satisfaction by everybody—by the industrialists in the Shenango and Beaver valleys whose water supply is to be improved, by people who like boating and swimming and fishing, and by the naturalists.

Auto Registration

The American Petroleum Institute Presents an Argument For Changing the License Date

In states where new automobile licenses must be procured on January 1, 20 per cent of the cars are idle between that date and April 1, according to the American Petroleum Institute. This is attributed to the unwillingness or inability of the owners to pay the license fees at a time when Christmas gifts and other end-of-the-year expenses are imposing a heavy drain on their pocketbooks.

Twenty-four states have accordingly postponed the final day for registering motor vehicles and paying fees until later in the year.

If many automobiles are not used during the first three months of the year because of the requirement that a new license be obtained on January 1, it is probable that the state loses much money in gasoline taxes.

Pennsylvania might find it to its advantage to follow the example of the 24 states which have postponed the date.

Uninformed Professors

Tulane Examinations Show It Is Possible to Be Intelligent But Ignorant,

In answer to examination questions submitted by students, faculty members in the women's division of Tulane University answered:

Primo Carnera is a dancer,

Clara Bow is a brunette.

And no one on the faculty knew how to define "necking" or seemed to have the slightest idea what "Boop-oop-a-doop" was all about.

It is often possible for a person to be intelligent but ignorant.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Diary: Up and donned my fur greatcoat and found in it an undelivered note for my wife to call up Eileen Rothacker at Hotel George V in Paris and, looking about, tore it into fine bits. And went down the elevator whistling a gay tune. To breakfast with Vash Young and much fine talk.

So walking along the avenue and saw a pick-me-dainty whose shoe uppers were salmon pink. Then back to my kirn to work a while and off to the Bruce Bartons' tea and afterward Helen Young's to see her daughter Elizabeth, returned from her triumphs in the Hollywood studios.

In the evening W. W. Hawkins and Laura Cobb to a dinner of pheasants Lee Olwell sent. And later picking up lovely Doris Kenyon, of the cinema, at the Chatham, and all to see Grantland Rice's daughter Florence in her hit play. To bed late reading Dan Henderson's autographed volume of his "The Crimson Queen."

* * *

At the Lambs they were discussing why men who approached a large open fire invariably stood with backs to it. For a half hour they watched member after member approach and wheel into this position. Irvin Cobb offered this explanation. When Noah's ark sprung a leak a dog shoved his nose into the aperture until he could no longer withstand the cold. Then a woman held her hand over it with same result. Noah then sat on the opening until the chill became unbearable. And that, Cobb offered, is why a dog's nose is always cold, a woman's hand chilly and a man stands with back to the fire.

Arthur Jay Levy tells about the fertilizer wagon breaking down in front of an insane asylum. Some of the inmates peering through the fence asked what the stuff was for. The driver told them it was to cover strawberries. Screamed one: "We put cream on our strawberries, and yet they call us nuts."

Eddie Cantor is established again with his wife and family of girls in New York. They reside in an extra-sized penthouse on Central Park West in the Sixties. And Cantor, someone tells me, has become a morning canterer (pun) along the bridle path. His days in Hollywood enslaved him to early rising. Before trekking the Santa Fe trail, he had not beheld the morning sun in 15 years. He breakfasted at 4 p. m.

Young Willie Vanderbilt, who met sudden death a couple of months ago in a motor smash, was among last of the juvenile spenders. While not spectacularly so, he was extravagant. His occasional Paris soirees often set him back $5,000 per, a gigantic sum for over there. Although widely traveled, he loved New York, and his anxiety to get here precipitated the tragedy. His long boon companion was a distant kin, Erskine Gwynne, blue-eyed Paris playboy and columnist, with him at the finish.

Jimmy Shelton, 23 years old, from Paducah, Ky., is newest sensation of the music publishing world. After rattling around for several years on a slim fare, he suddenly accomplished his goal in one leap. In that swoop he wrote tunes for Betzi Beaton in the Follies, had new songs sung at the Algonquin supper club and Merry Go Round night club and articled to write ditties for a musical. He is a grandson of the late Hal Corbett, believed by many to be the original of "Judge Priest." Although he wasn't.

Bagatelles: The late Ralph Barton's net estate was less than $2,000 . . . But he saw more of life than many octogenarian millionaires . . . James J. Montague has written a poem a day for 29 years . . . Katharine Brush was born Katharine Louise Ingham . . . Donn-Byrne, who called himself "last of the Irish story tellers," was born in New York City . . . Rob Wagner spends leisure time in his garage making chests and cabinets.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

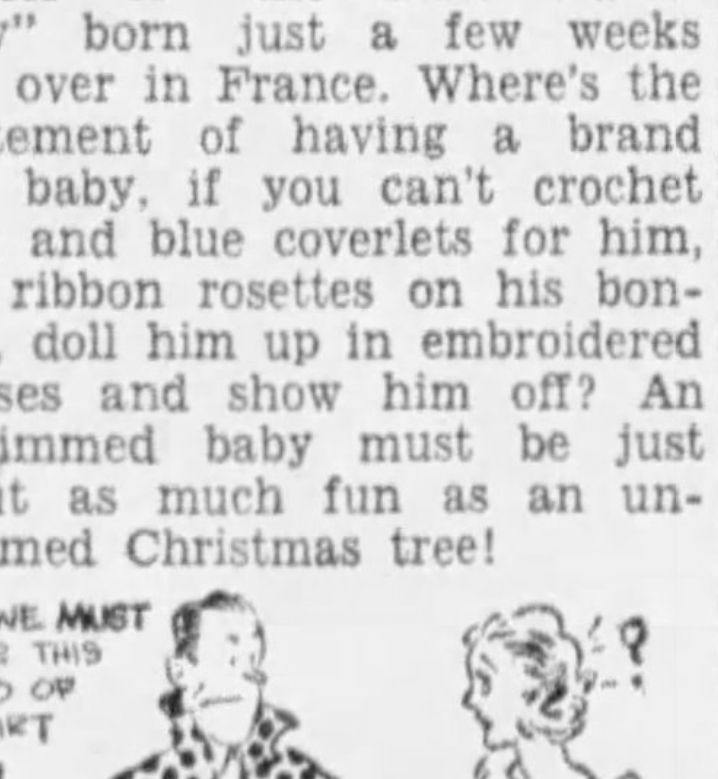
Man's Symbolic Clothes

Every normal woman's heart must have sympathized with the mother of "the First Nudist Baby" born just a few weeks ago, over in France. Where's the excitement of having a brand new baby, if you can't crochet pink and blue coverlets for him, sew ribbon rosettes on his bonnets, doll him up in embroidered dresses and show him off? An untrimmed baby must be just about as much fun as an untrimmed Christmas tree!



YES WE MUST WEAR THIS KIND OF SHIRT

But, of course, Man cannot START anything, from a new cult or a new religion to a new government or a revolution, without doing something odd about his clothes.

* * *

It all began away back in the Garden of Eden! What did Adam and Eve do, the minute they got a new philosophy of life? They PUT ON CLOTHES! And there has never been a change of creed, a change of politics or an advanced movement since that day, which hasn't been inaugurated by putting on something or taking off something, in the way of clothes.

* * *

Gandhi couldn't see his way to starting the struggle in India, until he had doffed his neat little European clothes and wrapped himself in a sheet. The first thing that Kemal Pasha did to remodel the government of Turkey was to fling away the picturesque Turkish fez and doll all his followers up in modern tophats.

* * *

Premier Mussolini had all sorts of brilliant ideas for the salvation of Italy; but first, he had to work out the symbolic sartorial effect. So he discovered the Black Shirt. And Hitler decided on the Brown Shirt, before he could work out the Nazi movement.

* * *

That's the way men are! The moment one of them joins a lodge or an order, the first thing he does is to buy a lot of gold-braided regalia and trim himself up like a Christmas tree. Then he's fit to be initiated.

* * *

No college boy would think that he could pass for one of the future "intelligentsia," unless he went around the city hatless; although just what there is about going bareheaded that signifies intellect is hard to fathom.

* * *

And, of course, no savage could get up any enthusiasm for a war, unless he had painted his face up to look like a filling station and stuck a lot of feathers in his hair.

* * *

Women are not quite so determined to express their sentiments and views sartorially. But feminism and flapperism were begun by discarding the iron-clad corset. And now the return to pseudo-Victorianism is being heralded by putting them on again. Back to "old ironsides!"

SURE THERE'S A DANCE AT TH' X.Y.Z. HOUSE TONIGHT

"Nudism," like companionate marriage and all the other foolish fads, will pass lightly over our heads and soon be forgotten. And then, Man will have no way to express his next violent enthusiasm, except by going back to red flannels—or Indian blankets!

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Expect Kindness!

She thinks she is waging a great fight for her boy. Yet, poor soul, if she were feeding him daily doses of poison she couldn't be doing a greater harm.

Three years ago her husband was killed and she and her nine-year-old son were left penniless.

* * *

"We soon discovered," she writes, "that our friends were only fair weather ones, so I made up my mind to fight the battle of life alone, without depending on anyone. At present I'm working from 7:30 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. every day, including Sundays, running a store. AND THE ONLY PLACE I'VE LOOKED FOR SYMPATHY WAS IN THE DICTIONARY. I try to be father as well as mother to my boy. He's too little yet to know what it's all about. Some day he may be able to remember his mother WHO GAVE ALL AND EXPECTED NOTHING."

Can't you see the picture? . . . such a pitifully common one. Suddenly, into a guarded life, the shock of death, the nightmare of poverty. Then the brave determination to go on alone and the gallant entry into that working world of which she knows so little. And then, swiftly . . . disillusionment!

No man can possibly understand what that effort and disillusionment means to a woman who has never worked before and who must face life, without training, to support her child. To a man the world's impersonality is a normal and expected thing. But, to such a woman . . . and there are thousands of them in these chaotic days . . . that impersonality is a monstrous, individual affront . . .

At home she mattered so much . . . now she doesn't matter at all! At home there was someone who cared. Now nobody cares. She has had no experience by which she may understand this alien attitude. She can only use the standards by which she has lived in the past, the standards by which she judged a new neighbor. So, bitterly, she condemns this newest, largest neighbor as cold, callous, heartless and determines to "fight the battle alone."

* * *

You know the rest of the story. You've seen the rest of them fighting that battle, growing more bitter, suspicious and resentful every day. Gradually, in time, getting a grim satisfaction out of her own hate . . . a perverted pride out of their own pain.

AND ALL THE TIME THEY THINK THEY'RE SETTING UP A FINE BRAVE RECORD FOR THEIR CHILDREN TO FOLLOW.

Poor, tangled spirits . . . they couldn't set a worse. It isn't wise to stop expecting kindness . . . or brave to armor oneself against humanity. We are all a part of each other and we cannot exist, normally, without each other. The life that cuts itself off from other lives, decays as surely as a limb that is cut off from a body.

"But suppose people won't help?"

* * *

People will help if you give them a chance, partner. But you've got to use both sense and patience in dealing with them. You can't expect the same leisurely, personal attention on Broadway that you received across the back fence down home. And it's plain, poisonous egotism to expect people to climb over barriers of suspicion and resentment to get at you and your trouble. But, if you don't set up a lot of unreasonable demands you can always bank on human kindness. Leave the heart's door open and love will find you. Shut that door and life will stagnate in you.

And the child suffers even worse than the adult when love is shut out. To such a child the world becomes a jungle, beset by foes. He enters it abristle, suspecting every person he encounters. Nothing a mother may ever give her child can compensate for the harm she does him if she makes him live with hate.

Human Side of the News

The Case of Lord Dufferin, a Hair-Raising Ghost Story—Scotland Yard Baffled

By Edwin C. Hill

GHOSTS are queer customers. That much, at least, may be ventured about them. They are so various and eccentric in their haunting; some like castles, some like blasted oaks. Others are content with quite humble farm houses or a mere crumbling stone in a country graveyard.

These observations are inspired by a considerable output of literature recently on the subject of spooks—all sorts of spooks. For example, Elliott O'Donnell, who gave us "Ghosts of London," writes now in "Family Ghosts and Ghostly Phenomena" of spooks that have haunted the Bourbons, the Bonapartes and the Hohenzollerns; of family ghosts in England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, Germany and the United States.

The underlying theme of his study of phantoms is the dreadful reality, the idea assumed in the minds of human beings only a century of two ago. As a matter of fact, it is still a reality with countless persons who might hesitate to admit it. Perhaps, too, there is even a bit of evidence on their side of the case. Incredible instances do occur—inexplicable from any normal and natural point of view.

Dufferin Case Utterly Fantastic

DR. LOUIS K. ANSPACHER, noted playwright and member of the American Society for Physical Research—the folks who are continually on the trail of ghosts—produces in "The Town Crier" the most startling, utterly fantastic and hair-raising ghost story this writer, at least, has ever stumbled upon. It is the case of Lord Dufferin, who, at various times, was the British ambassador to France, ambassador to Italy, governor general of India and governor general of the Dominion of Canada—a cool and poised statesman and man of the world, entirely ungiven to fancies, unaccustomed to strolling about in the Fourth Dimension.

Yet something occurred in his life which, considering the personality and character of Lord Dufferin, can scarcely be doubted on his relation of the facts. It was an incident—a double incident—which was carefully investigated by the French psychologist, De Moratray, and by the British Society for Physical Research, and which, for some time, engaged even the attention of that body of men who seldom seek the guilty among disembodied spirits, Scotland Yard.

Lord Dufferin was visiting an old friend in Ireland. The night is fine, moonlit, calm, serene. Lord Dufferin undresses, goes to bed, falls to sleep, and, for no reason at all, finds himself wide awake. He feels something ominous and foreboding about him. The pale moonlight glides into his bedroom. He lights a cigaret and tries to compose himself. He feels that he is getting foolish and moonstruck, like a credulous, romantic young girl.

Through the open windows a variety of sounds reach him—the stirring of the breeze in the tree, the whisper of his own bedroom curtains. But something else as well—the sound of a human being, panting and moaning.

* * *

Sees Man Stagger Under Coffin

THE large French windows of his room give on to a lawn, shaded by majestic old trees. Dufferin, at the window, stands peering into the shadows of the lawn. Suddenly a figure emerges into the full light of the moon. A man staggers under an enormous weight, a boxlike thing he carries upon his shoulders. Dufferin looks closely. The boxlike thing is a coffin.

Dufferin rushes from the room, across the lawn, calling out:

"Look here! What have you got there?"

At the challenge, the man with the burden raises his head and shows his face. Lord Dufferin gazes at a face of such ghoulish, baleful ugliness, so terribly repulsive, that he falls back a step. It is a face of such hate and contorted violence that it burns itself indelibly upon Lord Dufferin's mind. He nerves himself and calls out again:

"Where are you taking that?"

He strides forward a pace and walks straight through the evil man and his evil burden!

There are no footprints on the dewy grass; nothing but the mocking moonlight and eerie noises of the night.

Some years later the distinguished diplomat and statesman is sent to France as British Ambassador. He attends a diplomatic reception in the Grand Hotel, in Paris. The foyer of the hotel is crowded with representatives of all the different countries. Dufferin's private secretary conducts his chief to a private elevator before which many gentlemen are standing, waiting to be taken above stairs. The elevator descends and the door opens and Dufferin's eye falls upon the man who is operating the elevator. Dufferin recoils with a start of horror. He sees before him the very same face which branded itself upon his memory that strange night in Ireland. The same ghoulish leer, the same contorted features, malicious countenance and squat, toadlike body.

A man of immense self-control, the British Ambassador makes a conventional excuse for not stepping into the car and turns away just as it begins to ascend, crowded with officials. Almost at once there is a terrible crash. Cries of anguish ring in the corridors. The elevator, run by the very man Dufferin saw in Ireland—walked through on that moonlight night—has fallen from the fifth floor, crushing and mutilating all those inside the car.

The accident is historic. The newspapers of the time were filled with it. Among the dead was the mysterious elevator man. But although Scotland Yard, exhausted its wide resources and the French Surete took up the case, neither they nor Lord Dufferin was ever able to find out the least thing about the toadlike man with the horrible face who was thin air, coffin-burdened, on a glorious night in Ireland, and a living creature operating the cable of a lift in Paris.

Spoils System Menacing Good Government

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IF "public office is a public trust," as Grover Cleveland said it was, the new year offers a golden opportunity for Congress and the President to drive from the temple of government the spoilsmen of politics.

President Roosevelt is already under promise to give to the postal service better protection against the spoilsmen than now exists. This can be done by executive order. Candidates for postmaster can be examined just as other applicants for the classified civil service.

But exclusive of postmasterships, there are also more than 5,000 federal offices which can be converted into the competitive service by executive order of the President. Most of the federal offices now excepted from competitive examinations have been excepted by special acts of Congress. To place these positions in the competitive service will require legislation.

Action by the President, however, to protect those federal positions which need only an order from him to be taken from the political pie counter and added to the merit system would arouse public sentiment to the necessity of Congressional action to the same end. And federal leadership toward the goal of better government at less cost would encourage the people in the several states to renew warfare against the spoils system.

* * *

Hoover Offered Little Leadership

IN his annual message to the Congress on December 3, 1929, President Hoover recognized the opportunities for extending the competitive system under the civil service law in the federal system, but he offered little leadership in this direction. He urged the competitive selection of postmasters of the third class, but did not seem to realize, as the council of the National Civil Service Reform League pointed out, that this would be "but an inconsiderable contribution to the cause of good government."

Out of a total of almost six hundred thousand federal offices for which the American people were paying when President Roosevelt was inaugurated over seventy-five thousand are still filled by the spoilsmen of politics and without the fair test for which the competitive system provides.

However much a President and his cabinet may prefer to appoint to office those best qualified to serve the federal government efficiently, they are under the most harassing pressure from politicians and other special interests to fill federal offices in accord with the spoils system and contrary to the merit system.

As the council of the National Civil Service League has said:

> "Until the advice of political factions generally as to proposed appointments to public office be treated with indifference by the Chief Executive and the department heads, administration of governmental affairs solely in the interest of the public is well nigh impossible."

* * *

Badly Needed in Justice Department

NOWHERE in the federal service is there greater need for the immediate extension of the merit system in the making of federal appointments than in the Department of Justice. Probably few Americans realize that practically all the positions under the federal courts—numbering over 4,000—are still outside the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission. These positions are still filled upon the recommendations of politicians, and the most of them are filled upon the recommendations of county and local politicians who dictate how the spoils shall be distributed.

Appointments under the federal courts to these subordinate administrative places are made by the judges. No competitive tests to determine qualifications or fitness are required. This puts the federal judges in the improper and doubtless frequently embarrassing position of being distributors of political patronage.

Attorney-General Cummings has made a hard fight to protect the division of investigation and the division of prisons in his department from raids by spoilsmen. But he has no control over appointments by federal judges.

Few of the offices created by the Roosevelt administration have been filled by the merit system. The bulk of these positions have been filled on political recommendations.

Less than one-fourth of the states have yet enacted effective civil service laws, and out of 850 cities with a population over ten thousand the spoils system still operates in all except about 250.

If the "new deal" in government is to mean better administration at a fair cost the merit system must supplant the spoils system in the filling of federal, state and local offices. No President ever had a greater opportunity to lead the nation toward this goal than fronts "the man in the White House" today.
